LINDY SOARS OVER JUNGLE

Today

The Safety Valve.
Trotzky and Pompey.
Lindbergh, Only 27.
The Average Business Girl.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

IN CATALONIA, where trouble usually starts in Spain, the army has been put in charge and civil rights suspended.

Primo de Rivera proceeds in method usual with dictators. Result will tell how he compares with Mussolini, Kemal Pasha, real dictators.

TELLING newspapers what they must print is like sitting on the safety valve—all right until things blow up.

Napoleon said that if he allowed liberty of the press he could not last long. He did not allow it and he did not last long.

TROTZKY, disillusioned Bolshevist leader, is said to be tossing in a gale on the Black Sea, his ship missing, on the way to Turkey.

Trotzky must remind himself of the great Pompey, after his defeat by Caesar, Stalin playing the part of Caesar. But conditions since have improved.

When Pompey took refuge in Egypt, to be met by false friends, he was stabbed in the back, his head cut off and taken to the young Ptolemy.

BERLIN last night reported that Trotzky had probably been murdered, the story about his "trip on a missing ship" being part of a plan to account for his disappearance. That sounds improbable. Russia is not squeamish about killing anybody whose longer existence seems undesirable.

LINDBERGH, on his way from Miami to Panama, "hopped off" on his twenty-seventh birthday.

Only twenty-seven, and his name is known wherever men are civilized.

Only twenty-seven, and already he has conquered the ocean, and what is more important, the respect of every man and woman.

THIS young American's history makes millions of others feel as Caesar did when he read the life of Alexander the Great and suddenly burst into tears, realising that Alexander had conquered the world when he was younger than Caesar was then.

"HERBERT HOOVER may find important aviation work for Lindbergh." Nothing more probable. An engineer knows that somebody who knows how to do what you want done is valuable.

MR. HOOVER understands the engineering part of flying and all its importance, from mail carrying to national defense.

Col. Lindbergh understands the flying part. A fine combination. Many hats would go up in the air if young Lindbergh were put by Mr. Hoover at the head of a separate department for national air defense.

THE "average business girl" works and lives in the country's biggest, richest city as follows, according to figures carefully prepared:

She earns $23.50 a week, spends $7.56 for clothing, gives $9.53 to relatives and the church, saves $4.75.

THIS average business girl spends the greater part of her leisure time in reading, three times as much as in athletics or dancing, ten times as much as in bridge playing.

YOU are told that the essentials for a successful working girl are "personality, education, ability, health, neatness." They all count.

But more important is her ability to act as a shock absorber for some nervous individual who thinks he is busy because he doesn't know how to organize his work.

IN FLORIDA Mr. Hoover will inspect the Lake Okechobee district, where many were drowned last year, to see what can be done.

The national government controls the waters of Lake Okechobee and will not permit Florida to lower them, by safety canals, below a certain point.

Consequently the government is responsible for damage done when high winds cause an overflow of waters, too high in the lake.

A skillful engineer, Mr. Hoover will be able to suggest a remedy for that situation, and it will give him satisfaction to do something for a state that, for the first time, went Republican in his honor.

THE House Naval Committee votes favorably on the Britten bill to establish an air base on the Pacific Coast, to cost $5,000,000.

The West Coast should have half a dozen such bases, with plenty of fighting airplanes to visit them.

SOON the Pacific Ocean will be as worthless for defense to this country as the English Channel is now to Britain. The only important ocean is the air.

MRS. JOHN POPP, JR.

MRS. POPP GETS JOB OF JAILED SQUIRE

Castle Shannon today has a new justice of the peace—Mrs. John Popp, Jr., who succeeds her husband, now serving a jail sentence for conversion of a bail bond.

Her appointment was approved last night by the Legislature.

While his wife dispenses justice, Popp will pay the penalty which that same justice demands. He has been in jail since January 1, sentenced to from nine months to two years.

Popp and his constable, Mike Blazier, were found guilty of converting $1,200 bond posted by Mike Palischak, of Braddock. Testimony showed Popp and Blazier kept $700 of the bond. Blazier was sentenced to six months to two years.

Mrs. Popp was ill in bed today when news came from Harrisburg of her appointment. She was expected to take up her new duties in a few days.

Mrs. Popp is Allegheny County's second woman squire. The other is Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley.

Mrs. Popp was elated at news of the appointment. She said it would be her sole means of support.

Both Mrs. Popp and her daughter declared the appointment was a vindication of the family's integrity.

FIND GRADY GUILTY IN TAX TRIAL

The government won its second victory against alleged tax evaders in two days, this afternoon, when a jury in Federal Court returned a verdict of guilty against Martin J. Grady, described in testimony as a gambling racket partner of Police Magistrate John W. Orie.

The first defendant, summoned for trial, Milton Meyers, referred to in court as chief South Side bootlegger pleaded guilty yesterday.

APPEAL FILED

Attorney A. M. Oliver, in behalf of Grady, filed a motion for a new trial immediately. Judge Nelson A. McVicar gave him four days in which to file briefs.

Grady was convicted of evading payment of more than $24,000 income tax on an income placed by the government in excess of $200,000 for the years 1924 to 1927 inclusive. Most of his income, the government attorneys contended, was from operating a gambling dive.

ORIE IDENTIFIED

William Arlow, assistant treasurer of the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, called as a defense witness, today testified that Grady's bank balance was not large enough at any time to justify interest being paid on daily balances. 3 MEN ARE HURT IN TUNNEL

Three painters were hurt in the north tube of the Armstrong tunnels today when an automobile crashed into a scaffold beneath which they were working. The scaffold collapsed and the men were caught beneath the heavy timbers. All were taken to Mercy Hospital.

The injured are Charles Haley, 25, 302 River avenue, North Side; J. A. Schwab, 28, 4825 Paum boulevard, foreman, and Wallace Watson, 27, 302 River avenue, North Side. All suffered body bruises. The motorist, A. F. Oliver, 32, 6431 Monitor street, was arrested and taken to Central Police Station, where he was being held on a suspicious person charge.

Oliver, said to have been driving at high speed, crashed into one of the supporting timbers of the scaffold, which collapsed, pinning down the men.

CONTINENT HOP SETS RECORD

International News Service.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Capt. Frank M. Hawks, flying a speedy monoplane, swooped down into Roosevelt Field and landed at 2:58 o'clock this afternoon, shattering the transcontinental record for a nonstop flight from Los Angeles to New York.

Hawks, accompanied by his mechanic, Oscar E. Grubb, hopped off from the airport at Los Angeles at 5:37 Pacific Coast time (8:37 New York time) yesterday. Hawks piloted a Lockheed-Vega monoplane, an "air express," as it was called because of its tremendous speed.

Capt. Hawks' time for the flight was 18 hours and 21 minutes. This betterer the previous record of 18 hours and 58 minutes, made by Col. Art Goebel, and the late Harry Tucker in another Lockheed monoplane by 37 minutes.

THRONG CHEERS

Cheers went up from the crowd at the flying field when Hawks, who had not been sighted for hours, shot in from the west and, swerving in a wide arc, came gracefully to the ground.

He smiled when he jumped out of the cockpit to receive the congratulations of the officials of an oil company for whom he is employed as technical adviser.

They had been waiting at the field for hours to greet him.

In breaking the record set by Goebel last August 19-20, Hawks established himself as the second man to make the West-East flight across the American continent.

De Valera Arrested Breaking Ulster Ban

BELFAST, Ireland, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Eamon de Valera, Irish Republican leader, was arrested at Newry on the Ulster border today while attempting to enter Ulster in contravention of a long standing order barring him.

Citizen Again

PRINCESS CHAKIR

Princess Syida Suad Bey Chakir, the former Sidi Wirt Spreckels, regained her American citizenship when re-naturalized in San Francisco yesterday. The former wife of the late John D. Spreckels, Jr., lost her citizenship in 1922, when she married the Turkish prince, Mustapha Chakir, in Constantinople. Her refusal to live in Turkey resulted in a divorce two years ago.

SIDI SPRECKLES, CITIZEN AGAIN, SUED FOR PEARLS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 5.—Repatriated after having surrendered her American citizenship to become the bride of Prince Suad Chakir, of Turkey, Sidi Wirt Spreckles, widow of the late John D. Spreckels, Jr., of San Francisco, today faced a suit in Federal Court here by Tiffany & Company, of New York, for $80,000 over a string of pearls.

Mrs. Spreckles regained her citizenship in the United States District Court here yesterday, as the result of her being divorced from the Prince in 1927.

As Sidi Wirt, of Garden City, Kan., in 1910, she entered the limelight by announcing her engagement to Hugo Leal, a Brazilian, but the next year she eloped with her childhood sweetheart, Harry C. Williams, of Hutchinson, Kan., leaving Leal waiting at the church.

The marriage ended in a divorce a few months later. She then met Spreckles, son of the millionaire sugar manufacturer, while serving as a cabaret singer here, and they were married in 1915. Divorce proceedings threatened to break up this union also, but Spreckles was killed in an automobile accident in 1920 before the case was heard.

FLAMES ATTACK COUNTRY CLUB

Fire threatened the $300,000 Allegheny Country Club, Sewickley Heights, this afternoon. Starting on the second floor, apparently from an overheated flue, the flames followed a partition to the roof.

Sewickley Heights Township firemen, whose station is on the club property, responded quickly and were joined in a few minutes by the Sewickley and Emsworth firemen.

Their combined efforts prevented the flames from gaining much headway. Damage was estimated at $1,500 to $2,000.

The club is surrounded by beautiful homes of many of the city's prominent residents. A few weeks ago the Edgeworth Club was destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of over $100,000.

10-Hr. Saturday Won By Laundry Workers

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—San Francisco's Chinese laundry workers today won their strike for shorter hours. Some 3,000 of the Orientals deserted their tubs, irons and spraying cans a week ago when the laundry owners refused their demand that five hours be dropped off the Saturday work schedule. The boys were willing to work 15 hours a day for five days each week, but they demanded a 10-hour Saturday shift and an occasional Sunday off.

Burns Kill Man, Rescue of Wife, Child Vain

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Ben Johnson, 43, died in St. Vincent's Hospital here from burns sustained two weeks ago when he made an ineffectual attempt to save the lives of his wife and a small child when fire destroyed their home near here.

Johnson managed to carry his wife and child from the blazing house, but both were so severely burned that they died within a few hours after the rescue.

Johnson was never told of the death of his wife and child, and for two weeks waged a fight to recover from his burns.

STANDARD OIL BREAKS RECORD

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Shares of Standard Oil of Indiana stock touched a new high record on the Chicago Curb Exchange today, shooting up to $107 shortly after the market opened. A reaction sent it back to $104.50, with about 600 shares changing hands. It opened at $100 after closing Monday at $97.50.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—A block of 70,000 shares of Standard Oil of Indiana sold on the Curb Market today at 100¼, up 4¼ points from Monday's final quotation.

The overnight demand for the stock was so great that it required more than three hours for the specialists in the stock to make their calculations and announce the "opening price," which did not appear on the ticker until after 1 o'clock.

Attack Tires Foch; Temperature Rises

PARIS, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Marshal Foch was able to get some sleep last night after an attack of indigestion had disturbed his earlier hours, his physicians, Drs. Deveniere and Heitz-Boyer, said this morning.

EXCHANGE SEAT HERE SOLD AT $25,000

Memberships on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange soared to a new high record today. A seat changed hands at noon for $25,000, an advance of $7,000 over the price yesterday and $20,000 over the level prevailing before the present buying movement got under way.

Three seats were sold this morning. The first was bought for $20,000 and the second for $22,500. Moore, Leonard & Lynch were the buyers at the $22,500 figure. The names of the other purchasers and sellers were not disclosed.

THREE SOLD SATURDAY

On Saturday three seats sold for $15,000 each.

After selling for years at low levels, memberships on the local exchange suddenly came into demand last December. Buying by several New York houses pushed the price from $3,000 to $14,500. No further transactions took place until last Saturday.

BIGGER LISTINGS AID

An increased volume of listings on the Pittsburgh market and the fact the memberships on the exchange here have been far lower than on other organizations which form a part of the Association of Stock Exchanges have been responsible for the rise in value. The overcrowding of security markets in New York is expected to force a greater proportion of trading into the local exchanges.

Mrs. Knox Silent On Divorce Charges

WASHINGTOH, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Mrs. Josephine Poole Knox declined today to amplify her reasons for filing a suit for limited divorce, alimony and custody of their children against Philander C. Knox, son of the former Secretary of State.

Lindbergh was here less than an hour, having arrived at 10 o'clock from Belize, British Honduras.

The weather was reported clear and the airship making good time.

CARRIES BIG GUN

Lindbergh carried a heavy automatic pistol and ammunition in event he was forced down somewhere in the trackless jungles of Central America.

His route has already been mapped and if he should meet with an accident searching planes would know just what line of travel to look for him. But Lindbergh was confident there would be no accident. In conversation with officials he spoke as though he considered the flight an accomplished fact.

Col. Lindbergh left Belize, capital of British Honduras, at 8:10 a. m., Honduran time, or 9:10 a. m. Eastern Standard time, arriving at Tela at 9:43 a. m., Honduras time. He took just one hour and 33 minutes to make the 125-mile hop from Belize to Tela.

HARRIS TO ANSWER ARMSTRONG VOTE MACHINE CHARGES

BILL SCORED AS USURPER OF POWER

State Senator Frank J. Harris, father of the voting machine bill which has met unexpected opposition from County Commissioner Joseph C. Armstrong, will make an answer to Armstrong's objections when he returns from Harrisburg tomorrow, he said last night at the state capital.

Letters from Armstrong were received by all the Allegheny County members at Harrisburg yesterday. Commissioner Armstrong objected strongly to several sections in the bill, saying that they were "discriminatory and unfair in that they attempt to usurp the responsibilities of public officials duly elected by the tax-paying citizens."

OBJECTS TO PURCHASE

His first objection concerned what he called the first section of the bill, giving the secretary of the commonwealth and three expert examiners power to select the type of machine. This, according to Armstrong, reflects upon the intelligence and ability of the county commissioners, and attacks the competitive bidding laws.

He declares that voting machines should be purchased just as other materials used by the county, by advertising for bids and awarding them to the lowest bidder.

The manner in which Senator Harris states the bill requires the machines to be installed beginning at the First District of the First Ward and proceeding upward is attacked by Armstrong, who declares in favor of a provision dividing the time of installation equally between city and rural districts.

LOBBYING CHARGED

"The commissioners of our county haven't any objection at all to the use of voting machines as our constituents have approved of them," he wrote, "but we do object to placing the power for their selection, purchase and distribution into the hands of an appointive officer of the state rather than where it rightfully belongs, under the jurisdiction of the county commissioners, duly elected by the people, for just such purpose."

Manufacturers of voting machines, he charged, have carried on "a great amount of work and lobbying in Harrisburg for a number of years."

TWO DEATH CAR DRIVERS HELD

Two drivers of automobiles in which occupants were killed were held on manslaughter charges today by a coroner's jury.

John F. Flinner, 83 North Lincoln avenue, North Side, was held in $2,000 bond as the result of an accident early on the morning of January 7 in which Jane A. Charles, 17, 512 Sherman avenue, North Side, and Alexander R. Flanagan, 19, 860 Western avenue, North Side, were killed. The car crashed into a pole at Brighton road and Lecky avenue, North Side.

The other driver held on the same charge was Donald E. McGuire, Frontenac Apartments. On November 6, Gladys M. Thorp, 20, 1479 Park boulevard, Dormont, was a passenger in an automobile driven by McGuire. The car struck a fire alarm box opposite 1100 West Liberty avenue. The girl died at Mercy Hospital.

Steel Worker Killed At Braddock Plant

His skull fractured when he was caught in a piece of machinery at the Braddock plant of the Edgar Thomson Steel Works, John Shalener, 23, of 1306 Orchard street, Braddock, died a short time after the accident in the Works hospital. The body was taken to the morgue.

With her husband, Lew Cody, seriously ill in New York, Mabel Normand is making daily telephone calls from Los Angeles to inquire about his condition. Recently Mabel was ill with pneumonia and Cody was at her bedside constantly. The couple have been apart much of the time, but it is believed illness is drawing them together again.

TEACHERS' PAY, TAX BILLS ADVANCE

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 5.—Two bills affecting the Pittsburgh school administration today passed the Senate finally and were submitted to the House for concurrence. Both were introduced by Senator W. D. Mansfield, of Allegheny County, and pertain only to Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, which are first-class school districts.

One would direct an increase of one-fourth mill in the school tax, for all purposes other than teachers' salaries and sinking fund, to be made for the years 1930 and 1931, and that an additional increase of a quarter of a mill be made thereafter.

The second would extend the number of annual increments in salary for school teachers. Elementary school teachers now restricted to eight increments beyond the $1,200 minimum salary would be allowed the $100 increases for 10 years. Teachers in junior high and teacher training schools receive a minimum salary of $1,800 and by terms of the bill could be placed under the present system of eight annual increases of $125 or a new schedule of six annual increases of $175 each.

The Pittsburgh School Board would be increased from 15 to 18 by a bill of Representative Sowers, Philadelphia, introduced today in the House. His bill provides that all present members serve until the end of their terms.

Gardner by a committee of McKees Rocks ministers regarding the Sunday movie shows said to have been given by the Regent Theater, 539 Helen street, McKees Rocks. BLUE LAW FIGHT OPENED AT CAPITAL

By WILLIAM I. GRUNDISH,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 5.—The drive against the Sunday blue laws has started in earnest.

The bill drafted by the Association for Modification of the Blue Laws of 1794, introduced last night by Representative James Wettach, of Pittsburgh, today was sent to the House Committee on Law and Order.

THREE OTHER MEASURES

Three other measures aimed at the blue laws, including the Musmanno bill, already are in the hands of that committee. The chairman is Mrs. Ella Adams, Uniontown.

The Allegheny County members of the committee are William F. McCann, Albert B. Davidson, Joseph G. Steedle, Arthur Storer, M. A. Musmanno. The committee has 40 members.

Wilmer M. Jacoby, a member of the executive committee of the association, left here today for Philadelphia to enlist aid there for the Wettach bill.

CLERGYMEN TO PROTEST

A delegation of Pittsburgh clergymen will go to Harrisburg next week and voice their objections to the modification plan. Copies of resolutions adopted by the Pittsburgh Ministerial Association yesterday will be presented to the Legislature and Gov. John S. Fisher.

The association at its meeting in the Second Presbyterian Church unanimously objected to modifying the present Sunday laws. A group of five clergymen was selected to disseminate the viewpoints of the association. Dr. J. Sala Leland, of the Fourth Methodist Protestant Church, was named chairman.

The others are: Dr. Robert M. Galbreath, of the Bellevue Presbyterian Church; Dr. W. I. Wishart, Eighth United Presbyterian Church; Dr. M. R. Kunkleman, of the McKees Rocks Lutheran Church, and Dr. Charles R. Zahniser, secretary of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches in Christ.

FLIER IS OVER JUNGLE WASTES

flying to Belize by way of Havana, spent the night in Belize.

HONORED IN CITY

All of Belize turned out to honor the famous American flyer, who paid his second visit to the place. He was there about a year ago on his Goodwill flight over Latin-America. He landed in the harbor at 2:55 o'clock yesterday afternoon (3:55 Eastern standard time), after successfully flying the first 750-mile leg of his long and venturesome flight.

There is a dangerous and difficult stretch of territory to be covered between Tela and Managua. The route lies in a slightly southeasterly direction over mountains and jungles and above a district of Northwestern Nicaragua where the Sandino rebels have long been active against U. S. Marines. The distance to Managua is about 400 miles.

Lindy Can't Bring Mail Back to U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—An attempt to rush a bill through the House legalizing the carrying of return air mail by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, now blazing the Pan-American air mail route, was blocked today by Representative Schaefer (Rep.), of Wisconsin. Other members also questioned the proposal of Representative Kelly (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, to pass the bill under unanimous consent. Kelly explained that under a ruling of Comptroller General McCarl, Col. Lindbergh cannot legally bring foreign mail back to the United States.

Sullivan, Roadhouse Host, Forfeits Bond

Maurice Sullivan, once prominent roadhouse proprietor on Babcock boulevard, failed to appear today in Criminal Court when called for trial on a charge of keeping a gambling house. SLOT MACHINE WAR BARED IN DEATHS OF 2

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—A gamblers' "war" for control of a $1,000,000 slot-machine business was uncovered today by the investigation into the death Friday of Mrs. Selma Brink Burnham and that last July of her husband, Sanford A. Burnham.

Exhumation of Burnham's body, it was reported, may be ordered, for his death was almost equally "as sudden and as mysterious," police said, as that of Mrs. Burnham last week.

That Burnham was an influential figure in the gambling world was evidenced by the books of the slot machine company, seized by the public administrator, and that the Burnhams had enemies, and that they had to operate their slot machine business in constant fear of interference, was shown, it was said, by the layout of the properties.

The Burnham home long had been a "house of mystery," it was learned. It is an old-fashioned mansion, surrounded by a high, iron picket fence, and the "factory" in which the slot machines were made was in the rear of the building.

CONVICT GRADY IN TAX CASE

tween Grady and John Orie. The latter, Arlow testified, was a police magistrate.

Alderman Frank Halloran, testifying among other character witnesses for Grady, said he considered Grady honest and knew that he played cards and speculated.

GAMBLING FIRM CHARGED

At the opening of the trial yesterday, Donald M. Houston, a special agent of the internal revenue department, testified Grady told him he and John Orie were in the gambling business together. Stanley Orie also was named as a partner of Grady.

The government exhibited in evidence bank records showing Grady's deposits. Assistant United States Attorney Joseph A. Richardson summed up the prosecution's case.

Milton Meyers, reputed South Side bootlegger, pleaded guilty of evading payment of more than $4,000 income tax yesterday and was sentenced to three months in jail by Judge McVicar.

FARM FOR JAIL PROPOSED IN STATE BILL

HARRISBURG, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Probably the most outstanding piece of legislation among the whole administration group was the bill prepared here by the Department of Welfare to substitute the 67 county jails of the state with 10 workhouses or industrial farms.

Philadelphia and Allegheny counties, under provisions of the measure, would form separate districts because of their size, but the other eight institutions would be divided among the remaining 65 counties. Each institution which would serve more than one county would be administered by a board comprised of one county commissioner from each of the counties comprising the district.

Instead of letting prisoners be idle as at present, they would be given some work and compensated, the products of their labor to be used in operating the institution, much in the same manner as the present method in use in the state's penitentiaries.

A measure for sterilization of mental defectives, also submitted, would set up the same standards for recognizing "qualified psychologists" for determination of warranted subjects as are now in effect in New York state.

French Steamer Grounds in Japan

MOJI, Japan, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The French steamer General Metzinger, carrying mail and 10 passengers from Shanghai, went ashore 10 miles from here today. Salvage tugs were sent to assist it. Of 10 passengers, three were first class.

PLAN REVISION IN LAYOUT OF POSTOFFICE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 5.—Without definitely promising, officials of the Federal Building Commission gave the impression today that they intended to change the designs for the new Pittsburgh postoffice to put the offices for the sale of stamps on the first floor.

In so doing they will accede to the wishes of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, which protested against the plan to establish retail sales departments on the second floor.

"HI-JACK" RING BELIEVED BARED IN ARREST OF TRIO

With the arrest of three men early today while they were trying to force their way into Allen's drug store, 2019 Noble street, Swissvale, police say they have uncovered a "hi-jack" ring that may clear up scores of liquor thefts in the Swissvale-Braddock district.

Patrolman John Mawhinney, of Swissvale, who had stopped at the drug stores while making the final round of his beat, surprised the men, he says, as they tried to force a window, and held them until the arrival of Lieut. Andrew Farina and a squad of officers.

Private Mawhinney says an investigation is being conducted by Police Chief John W. Morris. Chief Morris refused to divulge the identity of the prisoners until the investigation is completed.

More than a score of druggists, whose whisky supply had been stolen recently, will view the men in an attempt to identify them. The prisoners are being held in Swissvale Police Station.

MICROPHONIC EAR ALLAYS DEAFNESS

Teachers of deafened or hard-of-hearing pupils at the Western Pennsylvania School for the Deaf, Edgewood, need no longer shout themselves hoarse, thanks to the installation of an ingenious device, invented by E. A. Myers, radio engineer, of 3400 Forbes street.

The invention, expected to revolutionize teaching methods hitherto applied for the deaf and hard-of-hearing, is known as the radioear teaching set.

The vital element of the set, now in use at the school, is the radioear microphone. The device embodies the simple principle of radio amplification, resulting from ordinary radio tubes. Whether the teacher stands close to the microphone or at a distance, her natural voce, entering through the microphone, is amplified many times and then transmitted to 12 desks.

VOLUME CONTROLABLE

Each desk is equipped with a separate control so that each child can regulate the volume according to the degree of his hearing loss. By means of earphones, the child hears the natural sound of the instructor, as well as his own voice and acquires correct speech at the same time as he receives his general education.

The operation of the radioear teaching set was demonstrated by Rachel Dawes, principal of the school, and Evelyn Heideman, teacher.

SUCCESS DEMONSTRATED

A. C. Manning, superintendent of the school, characterized the radioear teaching set as an epoch-making invention and "one that is proving an invaluable aid in the teaching of deafened and hard-of-hearing children."

DEADLOCK, DRY BILL RETURNS TO SENATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The House and Senate conferees on the deficiency appropriation bill failed to agree today on the Senate amendment to provide $24,000,000 for dry law enforcement.

The $24,000,000 item was placed in the bill against the wishes of Secretary Mellon. A move to have the House vote directly upon it failed several days ago.

After today's conference the Senate conferees prepared to return the item to the Senate for reconsideration.

The majority of the spokesmen for the House refused to consider the increase in funds for enforcement of the dry law. The Senate conferees demanded that the House be given an opportunity to vote directly on the measure.

The bill in dispute also carries $75,000,000 for tax refunds and $250,000 for a presidential inquiry into prohibition.

RADIO FANS THRILL TO 5SW REBROADCAST FROM KDKA

DX radio fans had a new boast today. They brought in London strong and clear. However, there was a bit of catch about it.

KDKA and 5-SW of London, England, exchanged programs last night.

Tuning for the regular KDKA dinner concert at 6:30 o'clock last evening, fans were surprised to hear a new voice on the air. It had a decidely English accent. Listeners hastily concluded that KDKA had added a new announcer. But when the voice said "this is 5-SW broadcasting from studios in London," the telephone at KDKA began ringing to bring excited queries.

REAL DX THRILL

Those who thought they had 5-SW direct lived in momentary bliss until KDKA came shooting through at 7 o'clock with a regular station announcement. No announcement was made by the Pittsburgh station between 6:30 and 7 o'clock the entire 5-SW program being relayed exactly as broadcast from the studios in London.

At 10:01 o'clock, the Pittsburgh station reciprocated by broadcasting a special program for Britian. It was a play, "Superstition," written by Mrs. Helen Stringer, of Lancashire, England. It went out on 62.25 meters and was rebroadcast by 5-SW.

The program from 5-SW was picked up on 25.3 meters at the new KDKA relaying station on Duff's farm, near Wilkinsburg.

HEAR BIG BEN

One of the most interesting phases of the rebroadcast came exactly at 7 o'clock, when KDKA boomed forth the midnight chiming of Big Ben, the Westminster Abbey clock.

The rebroadcast of 5-SW is particularly noteworthy because it is the first time that any American station has picked up London and rebroadcast it without the use of various amplifying devices. Last night 5-SW used 10,000 watts. The regular power is 3,000 watts. The program originated in the studio in London and was carried 60 miles by land wire to 5-SD at Chelmsford.

DONAHOE'S SALE OF PROPERTY DENIED

Out of the maze of rumors attending downtown real estate transactions that have given rise to reports that Donahoe's are contemplating leaving Fifth avenue today comes another emphatic denial from the Donahoe organization.

The statement issued by John A. Donahoe, president of Donahoe's, Inc., follows:

"Persistent rumors have been in circulation for the past month concerning an alleged sale of our Fifth avenue property and the removal of our store therefrom. These rumors have now gained a force and credence which make it necessary to state that there is absolutely no foundation for the statements that we have sold our Fifth avenue property to the Fox or Roxy theater interests for the fantastic sum of $7,000,000, nor have we sold it to anyone else for any sum whatsoever.

"Also, there is not a particle of truth in the rumor that we are going to move our Fifth avenue store over to Fourth avenue and Diamond Square to the buildings now occupied by Simon Brahm's Sons and others.

"Such a rumor is supremely ridiculous.

"Through our representatives, Donahoe's, Inc., have purchased the Brahm property on Fourth avenue, together with some adjoining property running through to Diamond square and Diamond street, for certain purposes of expansion, but, most assuredly, such plans for expansion never have, nor ever will, include the removal of the Fifth avenue store.

"Some time ago, Donahoe's, Inc., bought two properties on Fifth avenue, adjoining the present store, and, in due course, we intend to rebuild these two properties and add same to our present Fifth avenue frontage."

The girl got the revolver out of a drawer while telling her story and snapped the trigger, thinking the weapon was unloaded. Williams was taken to a hospital.

HOOVER PLANS SURPRISES IN CABINET

By GEORGE E. DURNO,
International News Service.

BELLE ISLE BEACH, Fla., Feb. 5.—Speculation over the makeup of President-elect Hoover's cabinet was at fever heat here today. Two men have been "appointed" within the last 24 hours, a third man has been "appointed" to succeeed one of the lucky pair in his present capacity, all three "appointments" have been denied unofficially, and Mr. Hoover himself has blandly refused either to confirm or deny any of these efforts.

The latest additions—by newspapermen—to the official family of the next administration are Henry L. Stimson, of New York, now governor-general of the Philippines, as Secretary of State Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University, Palo Alto, Cal., as Secretary of the Interior, and Brig. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, recent supervisor of the Nicaraguan elections, as governor-general of the Philippines, succeeding Stimson.

The President-elect confided to friends on his last fishing trip that the makeup of his cabinet was going to surprise the speculators, that it was going to be a particularly strong one, and that it would contain some names not yet hit upon.

Arrangements were going forward for two trips next week that will take Mr. Hoover away from Miami Beach. The first calls for a motor trip across the state to Fort Myers on the west coast to attend Thomas Edison's birthday dinner next Monday. The second will be a two-day auto tour of the Everglades and the storm-damaged Lake Okeechobee region starting February 15.

VISITING GRAND DUKE HERE RENEWS ACQUAINTANCE

Old days in St. Petersburg were recalled to the Grand Duke Alexander Michailovich, of Russia, during his visit to Pittsburgh by a meeting with Andrey Avinoff, director of the Carnegie Museum, who in 1911 was a gentleman-in-waiting, in charge of ceremonies, at the court of the Emperor Nicholas II, the Grand Duke's brother-in-law.

Mr. Avinoff was acquainted with Grand Duke Alexander in Russia before the war, but was better acquainted with his brother, the Grand Duke Nicholas Michailovich.

Nicholas was president of the Imperial Geographic Society and also was an entomologist of distinction, specializing in butterflies. These scientific pursuits brought Mr. Avinoff and Duke Nicholas into association.

Another tie lay in the fact that Mr. Avinoff's father and uncle, both generals in the Russian Army, served under the Grand Duke Michael, father of Alexander.

Grand Duke Alexander visited Mr. Avinoff at the museum. Mr. Avinoff's sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Shoumatoff, of Merrick, L. I., a portrait painter, also was present.

The Grand Duke, Mr. Avinoff said, expressed appreciation of the exhibits and was impressed by the cordiality, sincerity and good-will that he found here.

The Grand Duke was charmed, Mr. Avinoff said, by the spirit of Pittsburgh.

Enlist this aid in guarding against "Flu"!

In nearly every case, "flu" and other winter ills are indirectly caused by intestinal poisons. It's a high price to pay for neglect, especially when Ex-Lax makes the relief of constipation so easy and pleasant.

This modern family laxative cleanses the body of intestinal poisons without griping or upsetting the stomach. It quickly restores normal elimination and so protects health.

And unlike nasty, old-fashioned doses, Ex-Lax is the laxative children beg for. It tastes like chocolate candy. It is chocolate treated with a tasteless, non-habit-forming laxative agent that physicians prescribe for relief at all ages.

Ask your druggist for Ex-Lax today. Three sizes, 10c, 25c and 50c.

DRY THREATENED, 'ATTACK ON U.S. PROPERTY' CHARGED

A statute of the Federal Criminal Code was used Monday for the first time in the memory of the oldest attaches of the Federal District Court, in arresting three men for an alleged attack on Prohibition Agent James B. Lewis.

They were Robert Manion, a county employe, former chauffeur for County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Jack Barrett and Joseph Faniock. The statute provides for attacks made on government property.

The arrests, made in the corridor of the courtroom floor, were witnessed by many jurors and others attending court. The three appeared on the scene during noon recess of court and Manion was said to have made inquiries as to the whereabouts of Lewis. When he located the dry agent he accused him of "doing a dirty trick" on his brother and threatened to beat him, it was said.

During the argument Manion was said to have grabbed hold of Lewis, and the latter took him to the marshal's office, where they grappled again. During the scuffle a bottle of whisky fell on the floor and broke. Manion and his companions were prevailed upon to leave the building, but returned in the afternoon.

The argument was resumed and the three men were arrested by Deputy United States Marshal D. A. Goldman. Pending a hearing today, Faniock was released under $500 bond and the other two were committed to jail in default of bonds.

Coraopolis Police Charges Dropped

Charges of inefficiency in enforcing the law made against Police Chief Samuel Riddle, of Coraopolis, were dismissed last night at a meeting of the borough council. Five recommendations for future conduct of the police department were presented and three were adopted. The report of the public safety committee stated that the charges against the police chief were insufficient. This committee recommended that Burgess Fritz C. Gangloff be directed to exercise his legal disciplinary powers over the present force. Riddle also was ordered to submit a detailed monthly report and an applications system for police aspirants was recommended.

$360,000 RAISES URGED BY STATE SALARY BOARD

Special Telegram to the Sun-Telegraph.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 5.—The report of the salary survey commission, which would give local politicians complete power over the number and wages of small jobholders while it grants substantial boosts to the "big fellows," has surprised the members of the Legislature.

The salaries of officials and judges of Allegheny County alone, according to the recommendations of the Commission, would be boosted $46,000 annually if the measures carrying the report into effect are approved by the members of the Legislature.

All of these raises which total more than $360,000 in the state, are for the more important officials. The small jobholders, under the principle of "home rule" in fixing salaries, are placed at the disposal of local authorities.

JUDGES' SALARY RAISE

The judges of the state, according to the recommendations of the Commission, would get salary increases averaging $2,000 a year each.

While advocating in general the principle of home rule, one of the nine bills presented in connection with the report fixes the salaries of all major county officials and another fixed the salaries of all judges.

The first bill would increase the salaries of the sheriff, prothonotary and controller of Allegheny County from $8,000 to $10,000 annually, the pay of other officials remaining the same. The other bill would increase the pay of Allegheny County judges of the Court of Common Pleas from $12,000 to $14,000 and of judges of the County Court from $8,000 to $10,000. The president judge of the latter court would get $10,500.

The Commission recommended that the salary of the governor be raised from $18,000 to $20,000, the Secretary of the Commonwealth from $8,000 to $10,000, the Attorney General from $12,000 to $15,000 and of the Adjutant General, Secretary of Agriculture, Secretary of Forests and Waters and Secretary of Property and Supplies from $8,000 to $10,000.

MAY STERN'S FEBRUARY SALE

Do You Shun Visitors or Welcome Them?

Lots of 1929 people live in 1905 homes. Many dare not invite friends because of a conviction that their home fails completely to measure up to modern standards. They pursue zealously the latest styles in wearing apparel and motors, yet, inconsistently, live amidst furniture that went out of style with nickelodeons. They would ridicule a passer-by in hoop-skirts, yet they retain furniture bought in the era when hoop-skirts were fashionable.

Negro Spirituals—
"You hedda min'"
"Ezekiel saw de Wheel"
"My Lord, What a Mornin'"
"My God Is So High"

Pittsburgh can again be very grateful to Roland Hayes for the splendid recital he gave in Carnegie Music Hall last night. The ever-growing popularity of this Negro tenor, and the unusual response of of his large audience must have spurred him on to the fine music he achieved in every song that he offered.

He revealed a deeper voice, almost a baritone, in one song, that was a complete surprise, for this singer likes to use his higher softer voice (without exaggeration, however) whereby he attains his greatest emotional effects.

The program was a model; a score of songs in four languages, all distinguished by truest diction. The Italian and Handel airs were marked by their ease and purity of tone. In Schubert, Hayes is ever mindful of the lyric qualities, yet never slights the philosophic composer behind the text. His French is wistful. The spirituals are plaintive, gripping, and fortunately, not amusing.

One never wearies of this singer's art. There is nothing sensational about his singing; only a deep musical nature and vast intelligence prompts his work. Percival Parham was a very effective accompanist, and shared honors with the tenor. As encores came by request Schubert's "Nacht und Traeume," and a delicate Japanese poem, "So-Fei Gathering Flowers" set to music by Griffes, another spiritual, "It's Me, Oh, Lord," and a Negro tune "Going Home," the motif for the Largo in Dvorak's "New World Symphony."

YOUNG AND OLD SEEK TRUE TEMPERANCE PLAN

MANY LEADERS LAUD HEARST CONTEST

Plans, many of them of highly intelligent conception, continue to be entered from all parts of the world, from the cold North to the steaming tropics, in the $25,000 Temperance prize contest, to find a sensible substitute for prohibition, initiated by William Randolph Hearst through his newspapers.

Professional men and women, and young and old, in all walks of life are enthusiastically entering the contest. Letters received show that young folk feel the stir of interest in the contest that has gone through the entire country. A young girl writes as follows:

"As one of the younger generation, so much discussed these days, I speak with authority when I say that drinking has become rampant among young people as the result of prohibition.

"It is a common, though unlovely spectacle to see girls in their teens imbibing the vilest bootleg liquor and offering the underworld toast, 'Here's success to crime!' We young folk are not to be censured really. We are merely products of our time.

"Like young monkeys, young persons are great imitators. Their parents make a jest of prohibition, so they do also. They hear father telephoning: 'Send around half a dozen cases tonight, Al. We are celebrating our twenty-fifth anniversary.' What can parents, some of whom are legislators, expect under such conditions?"

From H. A. Balif, merchant of Balboa, Panama Canal Zone, comes the suggestion that when a progressive business man finds his methods have become obsolete and ineffective, he changes them, so why shouldn't the American people, through their Congress, do as much to achieve temperance, prohibition having proved a failure.

William Schley Howard

"I approve entirely of Mr. Hearst's attitude toward prohibition. I think that we have endured long enough the absolutely farcial attempts to enforce prohibition. Some sane, sensible means of controlling the liquor traffic that really means something should be welcomed by prohibitionists and temperance people everywhere.

"In offering a prize of $25,000 for some intelligent substitute for prohibition, Mr. Hearst is rendering a real service. If he can evoke some sane solution of the problem, he will have helped the cause of temperance immeasurably. We have got statute prohibition, and drinkers can obtain all the liquor they desire. Prohibition is demoralizing the nation, especially young people. It has caused more immorality than anything else has."

Michael H. Crowley

Michael H. Crowley, superintendent of police, Boston:

"I agree with Mr. Hearst's plan and I wish that some sort of prohibition modification could be assured. We are all interested in temperance but we must admit that prohibition hasn't been helpful at all in the organized attempt of establishing real temperance. The present law's inconsistencies are too many to mention.

"The offer of a $25,000 temperence prize by Mr. eHarst is timely and helpful, and I hope that someone submits a plan which will not only assure temperance, but a modification of the present law."

H. H. McPike

H. H. McPike, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, California:

"Mr. Hearst no doubt is right in that public opinion is the greatest force in bringing about reform of this prohibition failure.

"The Hearst publications are the best element we have in this country for expressing opinion.

"Public opinion has never favored prohibition in the sense that we have it now. The people wanted to do away with the saloon and drunkenness. No one favors those things, but the conditions today are acknowledged to be worse than they were before the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"Whatever will improve this condition will make for better government, better health and better respect for the law. I am glad that Mr. Hearst has taken the initiative."

Dr. T. A. Leary

Dr. Timothy A. Leary, medical examiner, Suffolk county, Mass.:

"I agree absolutely with what Mr. Hearst says about prohibition and its failure. His campaign of education and effort is the wisest one in getting the matter settled in a different way than by prohibition.

"I am wholly in sympathy with Mr. Hearst's plans as outlined by him. My practical experience points out the truth that he so emphatically states, and what he is trying to accomplish through the temperance prize contest being conducted by his newspapers."

D. Witherspoon Dodge

"Prohibition has brought us fresh problems—those of the bootlegger, of governmental corruption and of the lawlessness of the respectable alongside of the increasing anarchy of the disrespectable. Just about the only problem that it has solved has been that of the legalized saloon.

"Nobody wants the saloon back, but in view of the dimensions and destructive power of the fresh problems, can it be unreservably held that this man-made law of prohibition has been the glorious success which was prophesied for it? This is doubted by many people of open mind, high ideals, deep sincerity of soul, humanitarian spirit and practical common sense.

"The plain fact is that our country has enacted a law which is regarded by large sections of our people, if not by a majority, as a joke, and for the enforcement of which scarcely any real effort is put forth by the government.

"Such a situation prolonged over a sufficient length of time would tend to unsettle all of the foundations of government, and open wide the door for entrance of that spirit of anarchy which would very seriously affect all phases of life. For this reason, such an open-minded discussion as Mr. Hearst proposes to bring about by his offer for the best substitute for the present ineffectual law of the country is to be sincerely welcomed."

Mrs. Marie Pernau Walsh

Mrs. Marie Pernau Walsh, past president of the California Club, San Francisco:

"I think Mr. Hearst's idea a splendid one. The public is not satisfied with prohibition because it does not prohibit. It is a failure.

"There is more drinking now than before prohibition, and the drinking of today is especially pernicious in both its mental and physical effects.

"If a plan to substitute for prohibition a better measure could be worked out, I think it would be a wonderful thing."

7 Rules of $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

23 High Schools' Teams to Debate

The subject to be debated is whether or not Congress should authorize the appointment of a secretary of education in the cabinet.

AMERICA
LUCKY STRIKE
LUCKY STRIKE "IT'S TOASTED" CIGARETTES

Chief officer Harry Manning says:
"Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet."

"WHEN I climbed aboard the 'America' after those cold, strenuous hours getting the men off the freighter 'Florida,' there was nothing I wanted so much as a Lucky—'By George,' it tasted wonderful! A Lucky is always refreshing. My tense nerves relaxed, my aching throat was soothed and the whole thrilling adventure just seemed a part of the day's work. As time goes by, and as I look back to that memorable night, I'll always remember the wonderful taste of that welcome Lucky. As I went around to visit the men we'd rescued, I found many of them enjoying Luckies, too. We really couldn't wait to get back to our ship and 'Luckies.' As an actual fact in returning to the 'America' I noticed one of our men* rowing with one hand and lighting a 'Lucky' with the other. There's no flavor to equal toasted tobaccos, and I always prefer Lucky Strikes. There's wisdom in the saying: 'Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet.' It helps a man to keep physically fit and we who follow the sea must always be prepared for any emergency."

It is true that during the year 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

"KONJOLA RESTORED MY HEALTH," SAYS PITTSBURGH LADY

States That One Bottle of Famous Medicine Gave Splendid Relief From Nervous Indigestion.

What a world of hope and cheer there is for all who suffer and who would be well again, in the countless indorsements from men and women who have found their first and only relief in this new medicine, Konjola. The files of this modern medicine fairly overflow with the glad statements of those freed from the clutches of stomach trouble, weakened kidneys, sluggish liver, constipation or rheumatism, neuritis or nervousness. Konjola is not a medicine of promises, claims or theories—but is a medicine that brings results and accomplishments — it strengthens and invigorates the ailing organs—preparing the system for the ever-welcome tenant, new, glorious and lasting health. What Konjola has done, is doing and will do for you, is being explained daily, by the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Company, formerly McCulloch, Penn avenue and Sixth street, this city, where he is meeting the public daily. It was his happy experience to hear the grateful statement of Miss Betty Craemer, 111 Burr street, Mt. Oliver Station, Pittsburgh, who had a most remarkable restoration to health through the use of Konjola. Miss Craemer recently said to the Konjola Man:

"Konjola restored my health after all other medicines and treatments failed. If I had not had actual experience with Konjola I would not have believed that a single medicine could work such wonders. To begin with I had a nervous disorder of my stomach that caused gas and all of its evils. Whenever I ate anything heavy, bits of the food rose into my throat, leaving a very sour taste. From this condition my disposition became irritable and unruly. I had little hope that anything would help me because I tried several medicines and failed to find one that benefited me.

"I had been reading and hearing so much about the amazing accomplishments of Konjola that I went to the Konjola Man to find out about this medicine. He merely told me what it had done in cases similar to mine and pointed out wherein Konjola gave wonderful relief in even more chronic cases. With renewed hope I started the treatment. It seemed to me that from the very first dose a radical change took place. The gas bloating disappeared and the fermentation ceased. I realized that Konjola contained real merit and wouldn't think of missing a dose. I took two bottles in all and can safely say now, that I am free of all terrors of nervous indigestion. My disposition is better and all signs of nervousness are ended. I have heard that Konjola is called the medicine with more than a million friends. Well, all that I can say is that it deserves fifty millions."

Upon such cases does Konjola rest its foundation of success. Not only does Konjola bring glorious relief from the most stubborn cases but in most every instance the benefits are lasting and sure. It is said that no sufferer can afford not to give Konjola a chance

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Company, formerly McCulloch, Penn avenue and Sixth street, this city, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine. Free samples given.

RUTH BRYAN OWEN TELLS WOMEN OF POLITICAL WORK

"We need ships to defend our shores against enemies from the outside, but there are two ships we need to defend our country inside. If we have citizenship and statesmanship we shall be safe from all enemies."

This from Ruth Bryan Owen, who with her beauty, her wit, her eloquence and sane, wise vision, stirred a large audience of Sewickley Valley Club members yesterday afternoon. And so intensely interesting and apt was her entire talk that one is hard put to choose from its multiplicity the few thoughts that space permits.

Mrs. Owen has a quiet, calm, yet exceedingly forceful eloquence that few women can even approximate, and she speaks out of the experience of one who always has been keenly aware of every moment of living and of its romance and adventure.

"Woman's Place in Politics" was Mrs. Owen's subject, apropos of which she said, "It will do Uncle Sam no harm to have a wife."

Woman's place, she pointed out, always has been and always will be in the home; but today there is a different limit on the home from the limit of a few generations ago. One's home is where one's children live, and the modern woman finds her children are not content with the four walls of a home, and that her responsibilities do not end there. No woman can be an intelligent mother unless she knows something of the laws which touch her children closely.

DISCUSSES LAWS

From pure food laws, safety, traffic and mothers' pension laws, she went on to discussion of what she termed "the greatest propaganda force in the world today"—motion pictures. She told of an educational experiment by means of which one-half the pupils in a class were taught from textbooks and the other half through motion pictures. At the end of a year the latter half remembered every detail, while the others had forgotten with equal thoroughness. "The news reel of today will be the textbook of tomorrow," she observed, in commenting upon what a living thing history will be when it is taught on the screen. She praised the General Federation of Women's Clubs for its educational motion picture work.

Whenever a test has come the youth of America has stood that test and it is only necessary, she said, to show the young people of today the needs of their country in which responsibility for government rests upon each individual. Mrs. Owen plans while in office as Congresswoman for her district in Florida to have one high school boy and one girl from every county in the state chosen each year on a basis of citizenship and taken to Washington for a week's study of the structure of government, to visit Mt. Vernon, to sit in the galleries of the Senate and the House (although it might be better to let them wait outside, she remarked), and to meet the President of their country.

GLIMPSES NEW DAY

In her peroration, tensely dramatic without being in the least theatrical, Mrs. Owen told of singing in a Port Said Hospital on a Christmas day during the war, singing to "boys" who were living their last Christmas. She concluded: "Across the years we women of today are glimpsing another horizon, one on which a battlefield and the bodies of their boys will no longer be coinage in which nations can pay their debts."

Nnder auspices of the Women's International League for Peace Mrs. Owen will speak tomorrow night in Carnegie Hall on "Opening Doors."

Inflow of Drugs Swamping United States, Warns Elenore Meherin

In an illuminating article in yesterday's Sun-Telegraph, Elenore Meherin, author, writing on the growing menace of "Dope" to the people of the United States pointed out that already there are 1,000,000 drug addicts in this country, all bound slaves of opium, morphine, cocaine and heroin and all victims of heartless profiteers.

She showed that the nefarious traffic has become so general that the United States is now only second to China and India in its per capita use of deadly narcotics.

Miss Meherin in today's article gives further astounding facts on this devastating traffic.

By Elenore Meherin

YELLOW gold blooming on a tree in your back yard—Buckets and buckets of it. Yours for the taking. And suppose just as you were plucking your golden treasure some one whispered: "Chop down that tree! It will bring frightful disaster to your neighbors."

Well?

There is such a plant scattered over fields of India and China—the opium poppy, literally flowering with riches. It needs only to be cultivated. The markets of the world are open, greedy for it.

No need to advertise. No promotion campaigns required. Thousands upon hundreds of thousands waiting voracious for the dream-giving potion.

Wealth to Grower, Death for Users

There is another side to the story—a ghastly side. For every dollar to the cultivator goes a curse to the consumer. A living crucifixion, slow death to the body, pollution to the mind.

The curse is spreading like a foul plague. Especially in America. This young, reckless country is the readiest and most profitable market in the world today for the surplus crop of the poison growers. They are dumping it here.

Not less than 10 tons for the final six months of 1928. Enough to put the entire population out of its senses. Enough to cram the madhouses and prisons with drug-crazed addicts.

This is the contraband—the excess beyond the utter maximum needed for the legitimate medical and scientific requirements of the people. Records of these seizures, valued between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000 are in the hands of United States Attorney Charles Tuttle.

The stuff is sent into our ports with satanic cleverness. As crates of scrubbing brushes. Huge crates within which were mammoth brushes built around tins. The tins filled with high-powered narcotics. As cases of porcelain. Wicker chairs packed with opium. Artificial limbs and even tombstones hollowed out and used as crates for the prohibited drugs.

Seattle, New York, San Francisco—every port along our 40,000 miles of coast has its bizarre, incredible tales. If we could but wave them aside as "incredible." Prison statistics prevent this easy dismissal. One-third of the criminals are addicts. This is a growing—a viciously growing proportion.

Because the drug is here in vast quantities and is easy enough to procure. Suppose we could import whisky in capsules—a quart or two in a hollow lead pencil. Neat and gay for the bootlegger!

Fake Pencils Hold Deadly Dope Potions

Recently in California so many thousands of pencils were being sent from the little town of San Anselmo that postal authorities became suspicious. They broke a few. And discovered concentrated heroin packed in the slender tubes where the lead should be.

Last year the beams of a ship were hollowed out, made soundproof and the cavity filled with opium. Last year, October 2, 1928, thanks to the keen, suspicious nose of Inspector Edward Starace, a big million dollar cache was found in a small compartment built into the eyes of the ship and concealed under 540 feet of the coiled, forward chain lockers. That's an example of the infinite, uncanny patience of the Chinese smugglers.

Four of the Chinese crew were arrested. But for each four caught 40 escape. The contraband, once across the lines, can be shipped from Maine to California without interference. There are big dealers willing to risk a year in prison against the certainty of $10,000 or $20,000 a month.

One ounce of opium contains 437.5 grains. A fair dose for the confirmed addict is five grains a day. So one ounce taken over a period of three or four months

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Every Man Has His Pet Economy

YOU never can tell what secret economy a man cherishes down at the bottom of his heart—nor just why or when a fit of frugality may strike him.

But you may be practically sure that it is something utterly trivial and useless—just a sweet hyacinth with which he feeds his spendthrift soul!

You can't judge a man's generosity by the size of his dinner check or by his tip to the waiter, any more than you can judge a woman's age by the color of her hair or the number of candles on her birthday cake.

HELEN ROWLAND

Many a man who spends more than half his salary on gasoline, tires and garage bills, will snoop in the icebox and groan bitterly at the sight of a wasted dill-pickle or a forgotten sardine.

Many a man who cannot pass a beggar without dropping something into his hat, and would give away his last pair of shoes, will drive a hard bargain with his charwoman and beat his laundress down.

A man who could not think of offering his friends anything less than a fifty-cent cigar, will sneak out and light his own with a candle or a piece of paper, just to save a match.

A man may bring his wife home a pearl necklace or a diamond link-bracelet tonight—and tomorrow night rage around the house like a wounded animal, because she happens to leave the hall light burning, and twenty cents' worth of electricity has been "wasted."

* * *

A man may be so open-handed with his money, that all the grafters in town have him on their list of "sure tips"—and yet be tighter with his own wine cellar than a new shoe and closer with his wife than a secret conference.

A man who buys French dinners for half of Broadway and casts pearls before gold-diggers, may secretly save cigar-store coupons and old-bottle corks and pinch on postage stamps.

The hardest task of a wife's life is to get her husband to let her throw away his old neckties and frayed sweaters—yet he may refuse to wear a pair of socks that have been DARNED, however neatly, or to eat a warmed over roast.

No doubt, even Nero's wife found a lot of old broken violin strings, dried laurel-wreaths and frazzled togas, hidden among his jewels and royal robes, after he died—mementos of his "thrifty" moments.

* * *

The average man is a natural-born spender and waster. But every man has his secret economy, which gives him a thrill of virtue and justifies him in his own eyes for all his other follies and prodigalities.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Fork or Spoon

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Should peas be eaten with a fork or a spoon? M. C.

WITH a fork. But, of course, if they are served in the old-fashioned way, in a lake of juice, we must use a spoon, if we wish to "enjoy" the juice. However, nowadays, when vegetables are served dry, with not much juice to take from their value, and are served with the meal on the dinner plate, the fork is the appropriate utensil to use.

Drop Middle Name

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly advise the correct way for a married woman to sign her name? Does she sign it—

Alice Jean Moran

or

Alice Jackson Moran

That is, does she drop her middle name or her maiden name? I have been informed that she should drop her middle name, and consider her maiden name as her middle name, but I think that this is wrong. A. M.

THIS is as she prefers, but in the great majority of cases she drops her middle name and makes the last name of her maiden name her middle—Alice Jackson Moran. This is sensible, I think, for certainly it is more important to register the surname of her maiden name than her middle name.

Many married women drop both the middle name and the last name, and use only their first name and the last name of the husband—Alice Moran. This, too, is correct. Some women keep all names—Alice Jean Jackson Moran, but, unless there is some special reason for this (as sometimes when the girl is called Alice Jean) it usually is cumbersome.

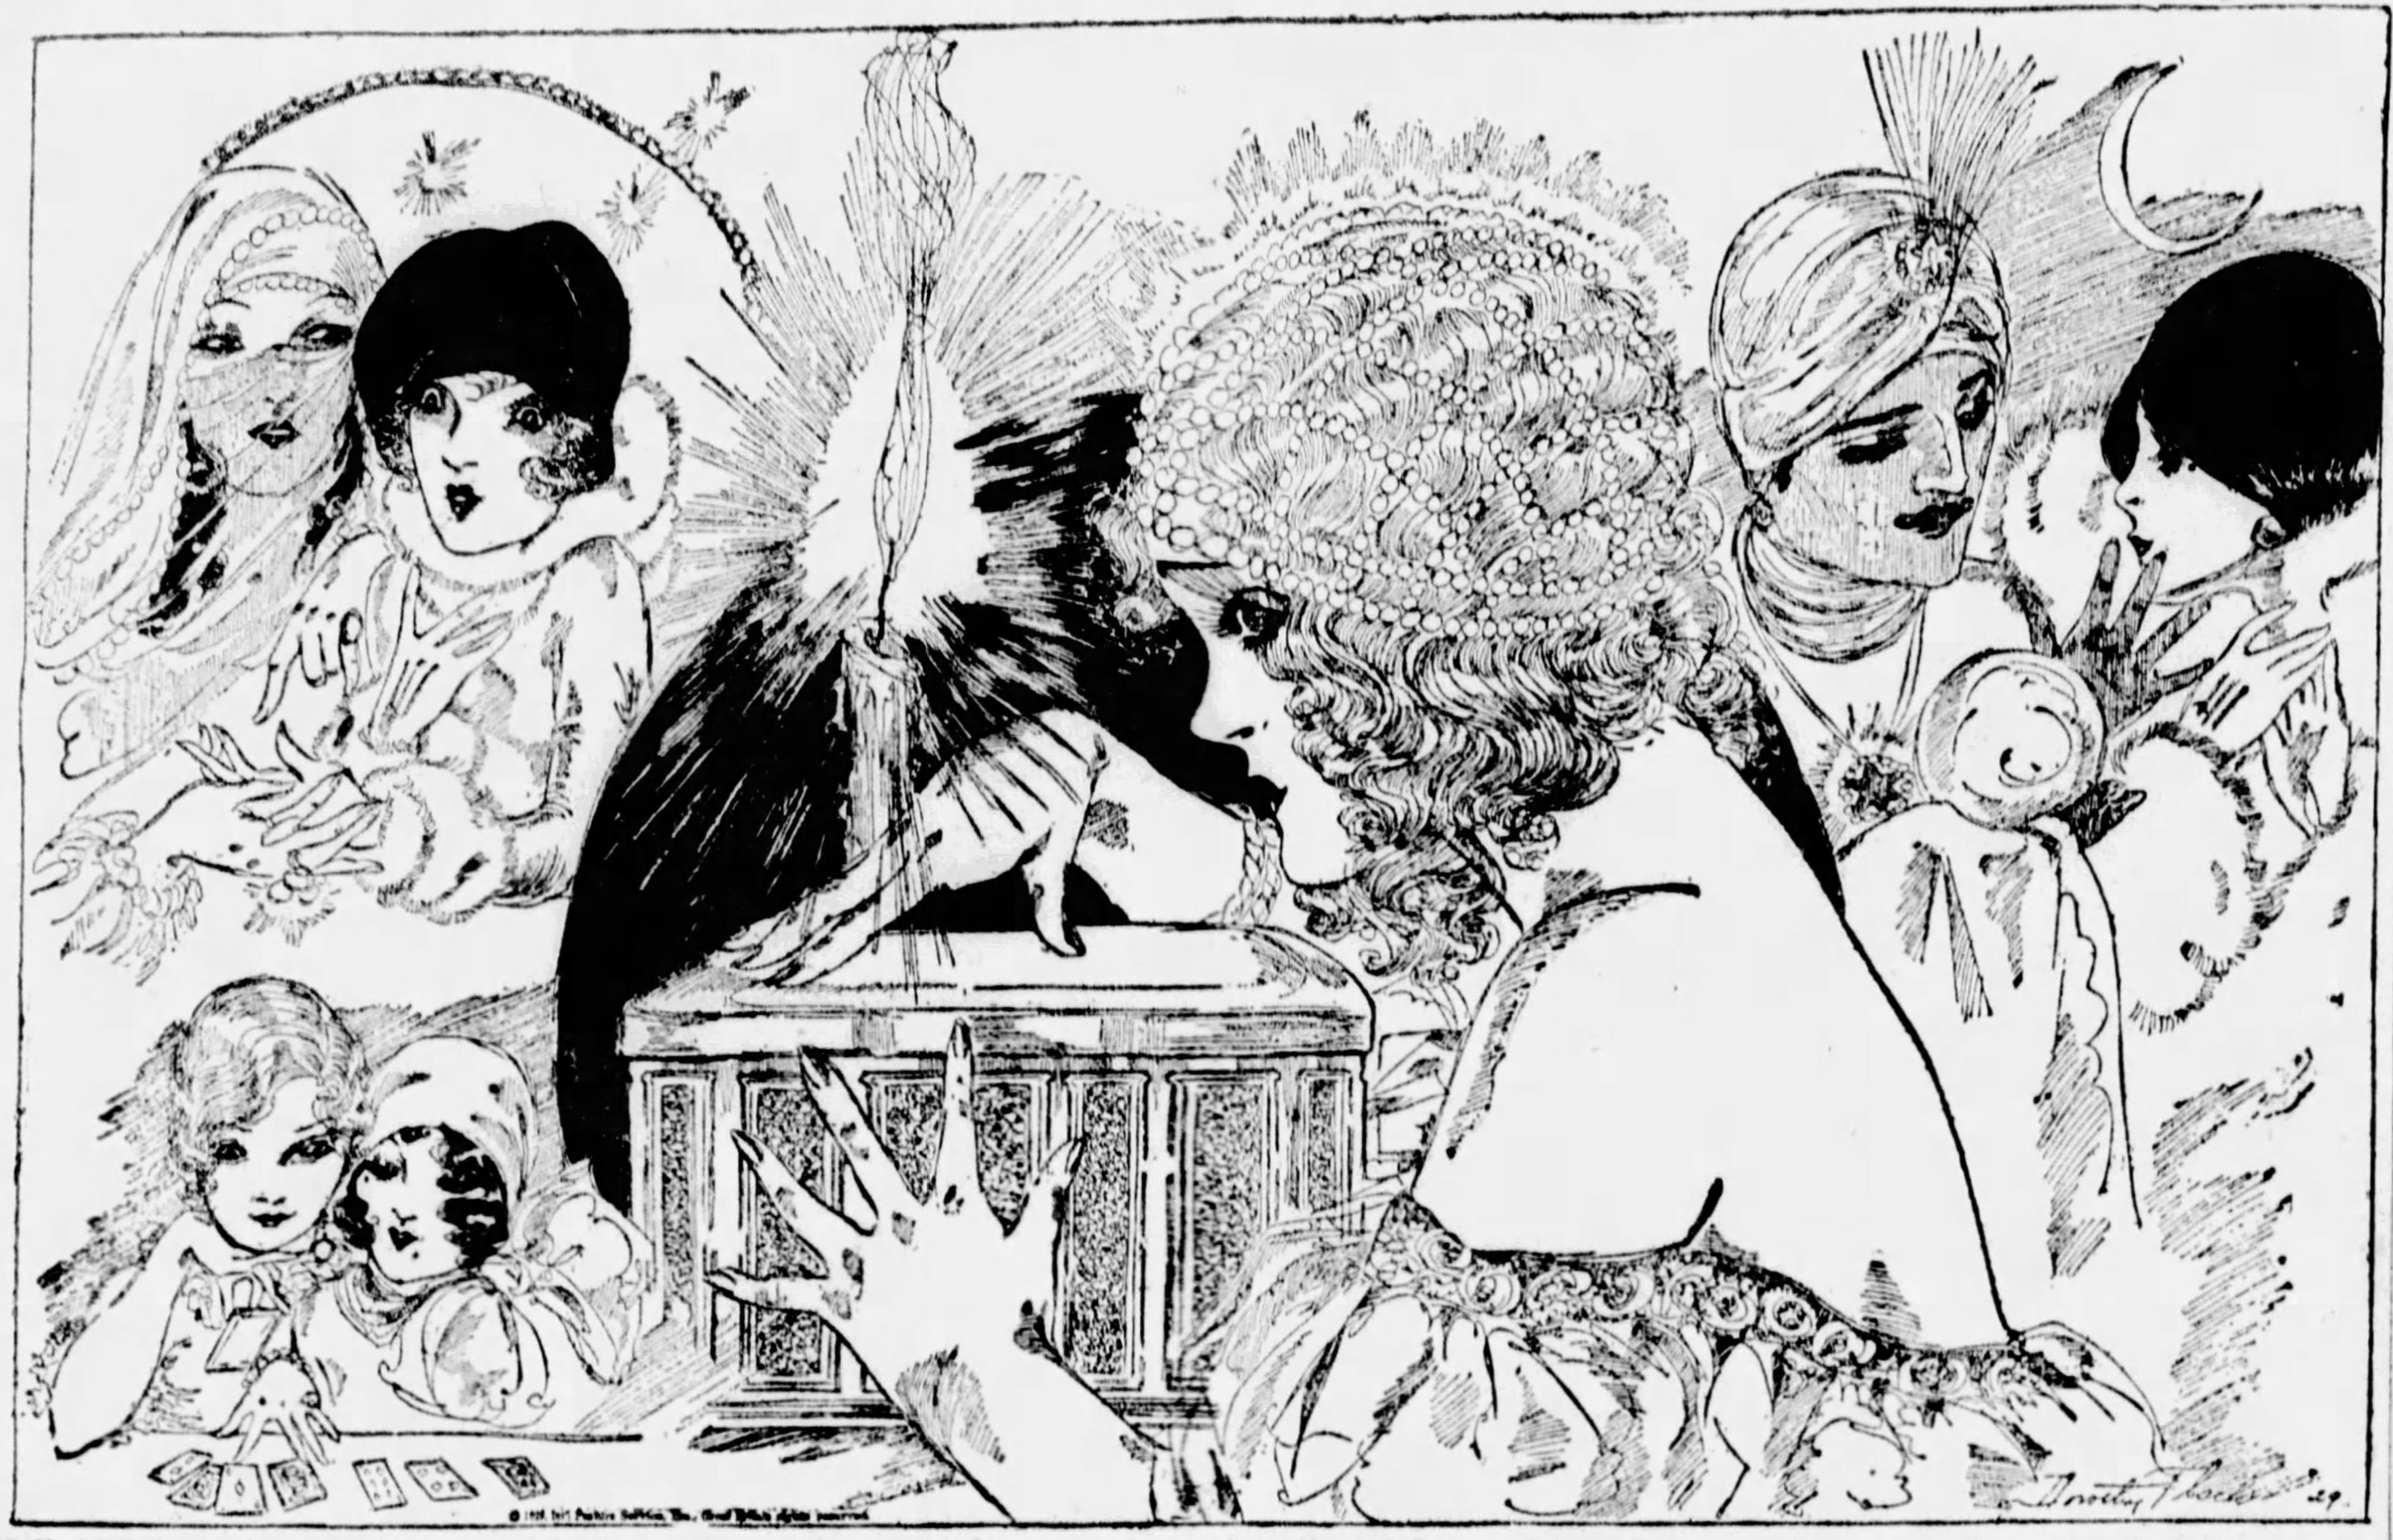
MODERN PANDORAS

Dorothy Flack
Drawn by



WE ALL know the old, old story of Pandora, who was entrusted with a casket which she was warned not to open. Her curiosity was so great that she finally opened the casket, thereby letting loose all the trouble in the world.

And so it is with the modern Pandoras, who seek to know what the future has in store for them. They're forever seeking the crystal gazer who predicts all sorts of wonderful things for them, and then they are so disappointed when they don't get them all, and develop a grouch against Life and Love and everything and everybody.

Perhaps they seek the "seventh daughter of a seventh daughter," who claims she can peer into the veiled realm of what is to be. Perhaps she can, but how much happier they would be if they only waited for whatever each day might bring to them.

Didn't you love when you were a little girl to be surprised? Of course you did! Then why not love it as much when you're grown up instead of trying to know what's going to happen? It will only make you unhappy, all these foretellings, for they're none of them true. Only ONE knows what the future holds for each of us, and in His wiseness and greatness He hides it from us, for He knows that we are but frail mortals, who could not stand to know what He had in store for us.

Be content with life as you find it. Of course, you can help to make of life what you will, especially if you take Love into your heart. For he's the greatest of fortune tellers, for when he claims you then and then only can you know that the future holds Happiness and Peace and Joy forever and ever.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Continual Sense of Fatigue Unnatural

LOTS of folks drag themselves about, having no energy whatever. It isn't a good sign to be tired all the time. If that is the way you feel, it should be a warning to see your doctor to find out what is wrong.

DR. COPELAND

Anything which is contrary to the general run of things must be viewed with suspicion. We are not built exactly alike and we have our own pet ideas about things. In the last analysis however, we are governed by the same rules and should operate in about the same manner as the rest of mankind.

It isn't "natural" to be tired all the time. Of course it is a wholesome thing to have a good honest tired feeling at the end of the day, especially at the end of a day given to hard work. But it isn't natural to get up tired, and to begin the day as worn out as when you went to bed.

There are lots of reasons for that tired feeling. It may be due to late hours, late eating, or disturbed sleep. In short, it may be caused by lack of rest.

Napoleon got along with four or five hours of sleep, but you can't. You must have eight or nine in all probability, if you are to thrive. I can get along without food, but I must have sleep, if I am to do my work at all well.

Chronic constipation and chronic indigestion are two causes for a tired feeling. The absorption of the retained intentinal material poisons the system and produces a sense of fatigue.

Kidney and heart troubles, as well as liver and other disturbances, may destroy the sense of well-being which is so essential to good health. Failure of kidney elimination leaves in the system poisons which lower the vigor and destroy the usefulness. Heart weakness reduces the power and force of the circulation and results in loss of vitality.

Any one of these troubles may be the underlying cause for the sense of fatigue. The tired feeling will not disappear until the normal health is restored. It is sure to persist till you eat correctly.

Pus absorption is a common cause for lowered vitality and loss of energy. A bad tooth, an abscessed roof, for instance, or pussy gums, may be the center of your trouble.

Diseased tonsils, or pus infected nasal sinuses are other seats of pus infection. You have not done your full duty till throat and nose have been examined.

If you are tired all the time find out why it is. A frank talk with your family doctor is likely to put you in the way of good health and bodily vigor.

Answers to Health Queries

E. M. Q.—Has salt any antiseptic qualities?

2.—Should the tonsils be removed if they are infected?

3.—What causes small swellings to appear on the hands and arms when exposed to the sun?

A.—Yes.

2.—Yes, they should be removed, since they are apt to cause infection through the entire system.

3.—This condition may be due to hives. This is sometimes due to food which causes irritation.

W. G. Q.—What can be done for albumen in the kidneys and what causes this trouble?

A.—May be due to a number of conditions—improper diet being the most important—overwork, excessive mental strain, worry and insufficient exercise are all factors. Careful diet and general care will bring about improvement. Have your doctor prescribe for you, since each patient must have specific attention.

N. Y. Q.—What can I do for superfluous hair on the face?

A.—Superfluous hair may be removed by the use of the electric needle. The work must be done by an expert skilled in this particular line. A good bleach is often helpful.

C. N. Q.—What causes snoring and what will prevent it?

2.—What exercise will reduce the hips?

3.—What will darken the eyelashes and increase their growth?

A.—Mouth breathing is the most frequent cause — this may be caused by sleeping on the back or there may be an obstruction or growth responsible. Have the tonsils examined.

2.—Running, skating, brisk walking, jumping and climbing should all be helpful. Reducing in general will also bring about results.

3—Application of 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment applied to the lashes at night should tend to increase their growth and make them appear darker.

Marion's Secret Packet Proves Difficult to Hide

DISMAY seized me as Katie boasted of her thorough search for Mary's case. I knew that Dicky, according to the plan he had outlined to me at the beginning of the long ride home, was even now in the house tucking away the case in the very recess which our little maid had just told of searching with no results.

To have the case discovered there now would only rouse Mary's suspicions. I knew Katie and her pride in her own efficiency. If the case were discovered in the recess after she had searched it, she immediately would proclaim loudly that it must have been put there since she looked for it.

Unless—I looked speculatively at my royal little maid, remembering her penchant for movie melodrama and her tendency to invest all our every day happenings with theatrical significance. No—enlisting Katie's aid must be my last resort, I decided, putting away temptation with an innate repugnance to confiding Mary's affairs to even so loyal a servitor as Katie. But I nudged Lillian and murmured for her ear alone:

"Keep the girls outside for three minutes."

She did not even nod in answer, but as I climbed out of the car and went up the steps I heard her voice in directions to the two girls about the parcels.

I found Dicky just rising from his knees at the bend of the stairs where he had said he meant to put Mary's case.

"Police! But that was a near thing," he whispered. "Katie dashed back into the house almost at my heels. I wasn't sure till this second that she was safe in the kitchen."

"You must get the case out at once and hide it somewhere else," I told him breathlessly, adding what Katie had said about searching the recess, and that Lillian was holding the girls outside.

"Well! I'll be—" he began wrathfully. "It can't be done." But he turned toward the recess nevertheless, and bent above it, only to straighten himself precipitately as Junior's voice called peremptorily from his room.

"You see!" Dicky's face expressed complete bafflement. "It simply cannot be done. You'll have to think up something else. At any rate, we have got a respite of a few hours anyway. Our handmaiden's word, no doubt, will be accepted for the present."

"Whose handmaiden and what word?" Junior demanded, from his father's arms. "Oh! I know. Katie's a handmaiden—that's what they call the maid in the Bible, isn't it?"

"I didn't mean Katie," Dicky said quickly. "I was just quoting some poetry to your mother. Do you know what Uncle Harry has brought home? You never could guess. I'll carry you down to see it?"

He carried the convalescent lad down the stairs, sending back an expressive wave of the hand which I knew consigned all further consideration of the problem to me.

I did not share his optimism concerning the respite of the few hours he had mentioned. I knew Mary's energy and I deduced from the entries in her checkbook that she would not rest until she had found some trace of the book. Probably the first thing she would attempt would be the search of the slot in the stairs.

There was but one thing left for me to do, and much as I disliked the choice thus thrust upon me, I did not hesitate in making it. I dashed down the back stairs to the kitchen and grasped my little maid's arm.

"Quick! Katie!" I commanded. "Turn down your gas under whatever might burn and take me upstairs to your room for a minute. I must speak to you alone before the rest get in."

Home-Made, but Ends Bad Cough In a Hurry

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Put this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and soothes away the inflammation. At the same time it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in obstinate bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, February 6

THE sidereal operations for this day point to a congeries of the unusual, extraordinary and complex. It is difficult to interpret the nature of the intriguing forces predominant. But the singular, peculiar and irregular may be expected, with sudden moves, abrupt journeys, speculative enterprises, surprising news, and contacts with eccentric individuals and experiences. It is admonished that precaution be exercised not to be ensnared by these singular visitations.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of the unexpected, abrupt and singular. Unplanned journeys, moves and changes, speculation, strange news, people and experiences—all to be safeguarded against, lest loss and peculiar entanglements ensue. Intellectually these astral conditions may give high stimulus.

BILLY DEVINE

Penn. Child Got Well Quick

"My little son, Billy, had a serious attack of constipation," says Mrs. Margaret B. Devine, 6032 Locust St., Philadelphia. "It left him very weak and pale. His bowels wouldn't act right, he had no appetite and nothing agreed with him.

"We decided to give him California Fig Syrup. It made him pick up right away, and now he is as robust and happy as any child in our neighborhood. I give California Fig Syrup full credit for his wonderful condition. It is a great thing for children."

Children like the rich, fruity taste of California Fig Syrup, and you can give it to them as often as they need it, because it is purely vegetable. For over 50 years leading physicians have recommended it, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows it gives satisfaction. Nothing compares with it as a gentle but certain laxative, and it goes farther than this. It regulates the stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup, so look for the name "California" on the carton to be sure you get the genuine.

Five Minutes Works Wonders

A Modern Miracle! Instant Skin Beauty—Lightens the Skin, Refines away Enlarged Pores, Dissolves Blackheads, Heals Eruptions and Corrects Oily Skin

The skin you are ashamed of today, you can be proud of tonight. So, read this and learn the quick, easy way to improve your complexion. Learn why this new discovery is called the Beauty Miracle of Modern Science.

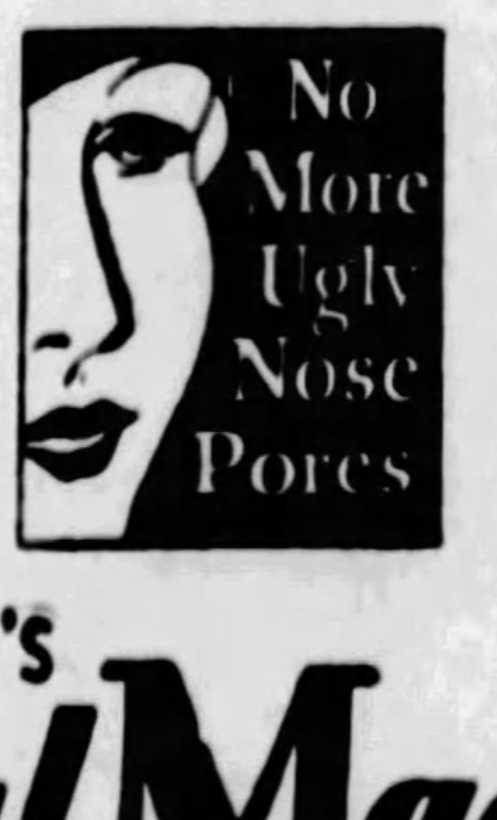
Look Lovely At Once

It gives instant skin beauty, five years younger in five minutes! Dull, off-color skins become ivory-white; enlarged pores are refined to the smoothest, finest texture; oily skin is corrected; blackheads are dissolved; persistent skin eruptions are banished and the tell-tale signs of age vanish as if by magic! Poor complexions are made lovely as if skin faults were wiped away with a sponge. You will marvel at the lovely face you see in your mirror tonight.

It's no fairy wand that works such wonders so quickly. It's simply due to the amazing, rejuvenating properties of a new form of magnesia, creamed, which rehabilitates the skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. All you do is anoint your skin with it, massage and rinse with water. It's as simple as washing your face!

Accidental Discovery

Until recently, creamed magnesia was known to be good only to heal eruptions. A prominent New York skin specialist prescribed creamed magnesia to hundreds of women as a quick remedy for these unsightly blemishes. But, these women soon discovered it also refines coarse pores, lightens the skin and makes the face look clear and years younger. They also found it cleanses perfectly, much better than any soap or cleansing cream. Scientific tests proved these women were right. So, thanks to this accidental discovery, science now offers you a priceless skin beautifier that is better for your complexion than any soap, cleansing cream, massage cream, astringent, skin tonic or face bleach. It lightens the skin and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons. Yet, it is so mild that doctors tell mothers to use it instead of soap to bathe infants.



No More Ugly Nose Pores

Nurses First Used It

No wonder thousands of doctors insist that their wives, patients and nurses use nothing but creamed magnesia to cleanse, protect and beautify their complexions. They say it keeps a fine skin fine and makes a poor skin lovely.

Until recently, creamed magnesia was used only by women who could afford to have it made up from a prescription. But, now this formula has been put up in uniform packages. And, it costs only one-tenth of the original skin specialist's prescription. When this fact became known, even the largest druggists everywhere soon found it hard to keep enough in stock to supply the tremendous demand.

To get genuine creamed magnesia ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. The dollar size holds three fifty-cent bottles. Remember, this treatment is guaranteed. So, get your magnesia today and look lovely tonight.

DENTON'S Facial Magnesia

Makes poor skin lovely—keeps fine skin fine

GUARANTEE

If Denton's Facial Magnesia does not make your skin look finer, lighter, clearer and younger even after the very first application, your dealer is told to refund your money at once without question.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Grand Duke Alexander Is Honor Guest Here At Club Dinner

ROMANOFF of the Romanoffs, that famous scion of a famous house, Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovich of Russia, who came to our town yesterday to give excerpts "Out of My Life" to the women of the Twentieth Century Club, was not permitted to leave without being entertained. After his talk yesterday there was a luncheon, of course, and last night a dinner was given for His Highness in the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

But before discussing the dinner, I want to tell you just a bit about the grand duke's distinguished lineage. He is a son of the Grand Duke Nicholaievich, who was viceroy to Tiflis, and a grandson of Emperor Nicholas I. He is also a nephew of Alexander II, who, if I recall my history correctly, was assassinated in 1891, and is a cousin of King George V of England. The grand duke married the Grand Duchess Xenia Alexandrovina, eldest sister of Emperor Nicholas II, his cousin. His own sister, by the way, married the Crown Prince of Germany. And no doubt you remember that the grand duke was the commander of aviation in Russia during the war.

The dinner was given in the club last night at 8 o'clock, with about 40 guests asked to meet the grand duke. Receiving with the guest of honor were Dr. Andre Avinoff, Miss Edna M. Sutton, Mrs. Katharine D. Murdoch and Mme. Leo Shoumatoff, and included in the guest list were Col. and Mrs. Samuel Harden Church, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Mrs. William J. Holland, Moorhead Holland, Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hillman, Mr. and Mrs. Greer Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard G. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Grant McCargo, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Shoemaker, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. May, Dr. Frank B. Edmundson, Mr. and Mrs. William Frew, Mrs. J. Verner Scaife, Mr. and Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, W. S. Arbuthnot, Miss Dorothy Slack, Dr. M. A. Chopra, well-known scientist from London; Wilson S. McClintock, Dr. and Mrs. Heinz Langer, Charles Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Grant McKinney, Mrs. Clinton Childs, John P. Hoelzel, Mrs. Nona Schmid, A. Roumanoff, Mrs. Percy E. Donner, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Gordon and James M. Magee.

BUT in the midst of all this talk about visits from royalty, we mustn't lose sight of our own social affairs. I have two more names to add to my list of debutantes for next season, and I am sure you will be interested in hearing who they are. One is Mary Elizabeth Floyd, daughter of Mrs. Thomas A. McGinley, of Lincoln avenue, North Side and she is going to make her bow at a tea which her mother is going to give some time in November. Then later in the season, on December 27, to be exact, Mr. and Mrs. McGinley are going to give a ball in the Pittsburgh Club in honor of Mary Elizabeth. The debutante-to-be is a pupil at Miss Nightingale's School in New York, and she will be graduated in June.

The other addition to the list of buds is Jane Bradley Miller, daughter of Frederic Walsingham Miller, of Shady avenue. Jane is the younger sister of the former Mollie Miller, now Mrs. William Bacon Schiller, Jr., of Aylesboro avenue, who was such an attractive debutante of a few seasons ago. And she is also a niece of Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, of Philadelphia, and of Mrs. William Thaw, III, of New York. Just now, Jane is studying at Miss Walker's School in Simsbury, Conn. Mr Miller hasn't announced any definite date for the debut, I understand.

THAT February performance of the Junior League marionettes, which I told you about a week or so ago, is set for Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the parish house of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension. The play, you remember, was written by a member of the league, and is a fantasy relating the dream voyage of Bobby Jones.

Mrs. Charles L. Snowden, Jr., is general chairman for this performance, too, and she is being assisted by Mrs. Herbert A. May, vice chairman; Mrs. Joseph Scribner, chairman of the marionettes; Mrs. William Larimer Jones, Jr., Miss Grace Fagan, Mrs. Oliver J. Keller and Mrs. Verner Wasson. The puppeteers will be Mrs. C. Dudley Armstrong, Priscilla Hall, Mrs. Sidney Hammond, Mrs. Kent Hanson, Mrs. Scribner, Mrs. Snowden and Mrs. Wasson.

THERE will be quite a few out-of-town guests here for the wedding of Sally Todd and Tyson Nimick, which, you know, is set for Saturday. The M. Lister, of St. Davids; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McCombs, of Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. James Tyson, Mrs. Columbus O. D. Lee and Mrs. Harry Guffy, all of Baltimore.

"THE danger from Bolshevism is stronger today than it was 10 years ago. Even if Soviet Russia pays her debts, she must not be recognized, because Bolshevism is based on all the negative powers of the world. It is a vicious system. Such a word as citizen is unknown and the only right one has is the right to be poor."

Such was the arraignment voiced by the Grand Duke Alexander of Russia when he appeared before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning. Tall, distinguished looking in every way, the royal personage, this cousin and brother-in-law of the former Czar Nicholas brought to Pittsburgh the message, for delivery of which he believes himself to have survived the Revolution. It is that the world shall be ruled by the religion of love, which is not a religion but a state of mind. The religion of love is based on Christianity, the speaker explained, and Christ's teaching is the poetic and moral expression of scientific truth. The first part of the lecture was given over to a sketch of the speaker's life—a truly remarkable and eventful one, out of which has come the lesson that love is the only thing in life worth living for and that the law of love is the principal law of the world.

The grand duke compared the America he sees today with the country as he knew it on his first visit 35 years ago. The difference lies, he said, not in the prosperity nor the technical development of the country, but in its inspiration and longing for art that shows the spiritual side needs something—that the people are already on the way to spirituality.

PEPPER POT

The soup your appetite remembers

Whoever first discovered Philadelphia Pepper Pot was a genius. Never has anyone perfected soup so entirely different, so unlike anything you ever tasted. The identity of its originator is lost in the misty traditions of Colonial Philadelphia, but you can today enjoy the very same savory Pepper Pot. Campbell's make it for you from a recipe of those early days.

Until you have tasted this delicious and famous old soup, you have a treat in store.

Pepper Pot stands out as the favorite of a city famous for delicious cookery.

A rich stock, velvety smooth and bland, hearty with tempting pieces of delicious meat, piquant with savory spices—thyme, sweet marjoram and ground black peppercorns, sweet pimientos, diced carrots and potatoes, fresh parsley, and further enriched with wholesome macaroni dumplings.

What a soup to set before a man! Serve it once and you will serve it often.

Pinchot Chuckles 't Story of Illness

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Gifford Pinchot, former governor of Pennsylvania, chuckled when informed that a report from Syracuse had him seriously ill.

"I'm very seriously ill as you can see," he said and laughed. "I fully expect to live, however. I have a bad cold and my wife won't let me go out of the room until I'm well, that's all."

Officers are Chosen By Ministerial Body

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Feb. 5.—The Greene County Ministerial Association, at its February meeting elected the following officers: The Rev. G. C. Aldrich, of Clarksville, president; the Rev. I want to tell You

ACIDINE is now the acknowledged victor over indigestion for 50,000 people right in this district.

If you are one of the 50,000 users you know it. If you are one who has not used it get ACIDINE today.

For mother, father, son, daughter and baby, ACIDINE is simply indispensible in any home. Indigestion, sourness, sick headache, gas, head colds, rheumatism and chronic dyspepsia all fall easy prey to ACIDINE because it is the greatest known enemy to the poisonous acids which cause all these troubles and the more serious aftermaths.

The moment ACIDINE enters your stomach you can feel its quiet, soothing, really delightful effect. For your sake and your stomach's sake keep a package of ACIDINE handy. It will save you many a heady day, an uncomfortable evening, a sleepless night. Most stomach sufferers who have used it say "ACIDINE is priceless to me."

Your druggist has it, knows its worth and will refund your money if it fails to relieve any of the above troubles.

"Don't COUGH Your Energy Away"

Stop hacking Coughs that wrack your whole system

DOCTORS advise coughs should be checked quickly They sap vitality—put a terrific strain upon the vital organs. A cough can wrack your whole body—tear at the delicate tissues of the throat—leave the muscles of your chest and stomach sore from sheer exertion. Your health demands that coughs be checked, before exhaustion or serious infection sets in.

At the first sign of a cough or throat irritation, take PERTUSSIN. It helps Nature free the air passages of germladen mucus, soothes the irritation and quiets the cough. PERTUSSIN has been prescribed more often for coughs than any other advertised remedy.

PERTUSSIN is safe even for small children and convalescents—a good remedy for "coughs that hang on". It is free from dope—does not upset the stomach and can be taken as often as necessary. At all druggists.

JOIN PATRIOTIC FLAG CONTEST!

and the patriotic societies, and therefore complete information and authority to conduct this contest in the various localities may be obtained by addressing the Flag Contest Editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, your nearest Hearst newspaper.

The awards to the winners of this contest will be perhaps the most valuable ever offered in a similar competition. The national winners—one boy and one girl—will be awarded the capital prize of a three months' trip around the world with all expenses paid. To the boy and girl from each of the regions whose list of answers and essay are regarded as the best, a week's trip to the National Capital and adjacent points of historical interest will be awarded. These trips also are free. Regional winners who will be chosen from among the school and organization winners, will be assembled in Washington, where a competent group of distinguished persons acting as the judging committee will select from the 36 boys and girls the pair who will win the around-the-world cruise.

ZONE AWARDS APPEAL

The questions are to be published from time to time in the Sun-Telegraph, starting Monday. The essays must be short enough to be recited in five minutes. The questions will have to do with the history of the flag, the correct mode of display, and with the things represented by the flag, such as the Declaration of Independence, and the growth and development of the United States.

The awards offered the Regional Flag Champions will instantly appeal to every wide-awake and patriotic boy and girl. Following the trip to Washington, which will be made in company with a responsible chaperon, the party will visit some of the most historical spots in America, the activities at which have made important impressions on American history. For instance, there will be a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon, Gen. Washington's famous old estate down the Potomac River from Washington; a jaunt over to Arlington, Va., once the home of the Confederate commander, Robert E. Lee; a trip to Valley Forge, Pa., the history of which is well known to every youth of the land; a visit to Fort McHenry, near Baltimore, where the tattered American ensign inspired Francis Scott Key to write the American national anthem. Think of visiting these spots of which you have read since the early days of your grammar school education! And at not a penny of expense to yourself or your family! It's worth getting busy on, isn't it? The winners of these trips will doubtless be the envy of every juvenile resident of their respective communities.

For the benefit of the contestants living in Washington and vicinity and to whom the sights, scenes and wonders of the national capital and its environs are comparatively well known, another trip will be arranged—one which will take the patriotic pilgrims up into the historical New England regions. There they will see the historic shrines about Boston, Concord, Lexington, Paul Revere's Old North Church, the scene of the immortal Boston tea party, Bunker Hill Battlefield and other notable spots which were the scenes of America's early struggles for freedom.

THOUSANDS TO ENTER

Messages have already come into the offices of the sponsors of this mighty competition which indicate that literally thousands of boys and girls from every section of the nation are going to participate in this monster campaign. It is apparent that the contest is going to stimulate to an unprecedented degree a new appreciation for the achievements of our youthful nation, with a new wave of patriotism born in the far-flung sections of the United States. Regardless of whether or not the contestants win one of the major awards, they will be enabled to grasp more readily the significance of the Stars and Stripes—what they stand for, how they were created and what it means to an individual to dwell beneath their protecting folds.

Every school boy and girl should see that fellow pupils are privileged to enter this contest. Just speak to your teacher or to the representative of some patriotic society and see that the contest gets under way in your community.

Gas In Stomach Hurts the Heart

Thousands of Cases of Heart Failure Are Caused by Acute Indigestion, Says Medical Writer

Gas pressure from sour, acid, upset stomach is not only nauseating and highly uncomfortable but some day it may prove fatal!

When your meals are followed by bloating, a feeling of fullness or pressure, shortness of breath and pains around the heart, you may be sure that the acid condition of your stomach is producing a GAS that is pushing upwards and crowding your heart. That's the reason for the shortness of breath and sharp, shooting pains.

Whether young or old, the presence of stomach gas is truly serious and should always be given prompt and careful attention.

To quickly banish gas, cleanse and sweeten the stomach, neutralize the acidity—nothing is better than the daily or "as needed" use of ordinary Bisurated Magnesia. It gives almost instant relief.

Any good druggist can supply Bisurated Magnesia, in powder or tablet form, at very small cost—but be sure you get BISURATED Magnesia—recommended by Doctors and Druggists throughout the civilized world for more than 15 years.

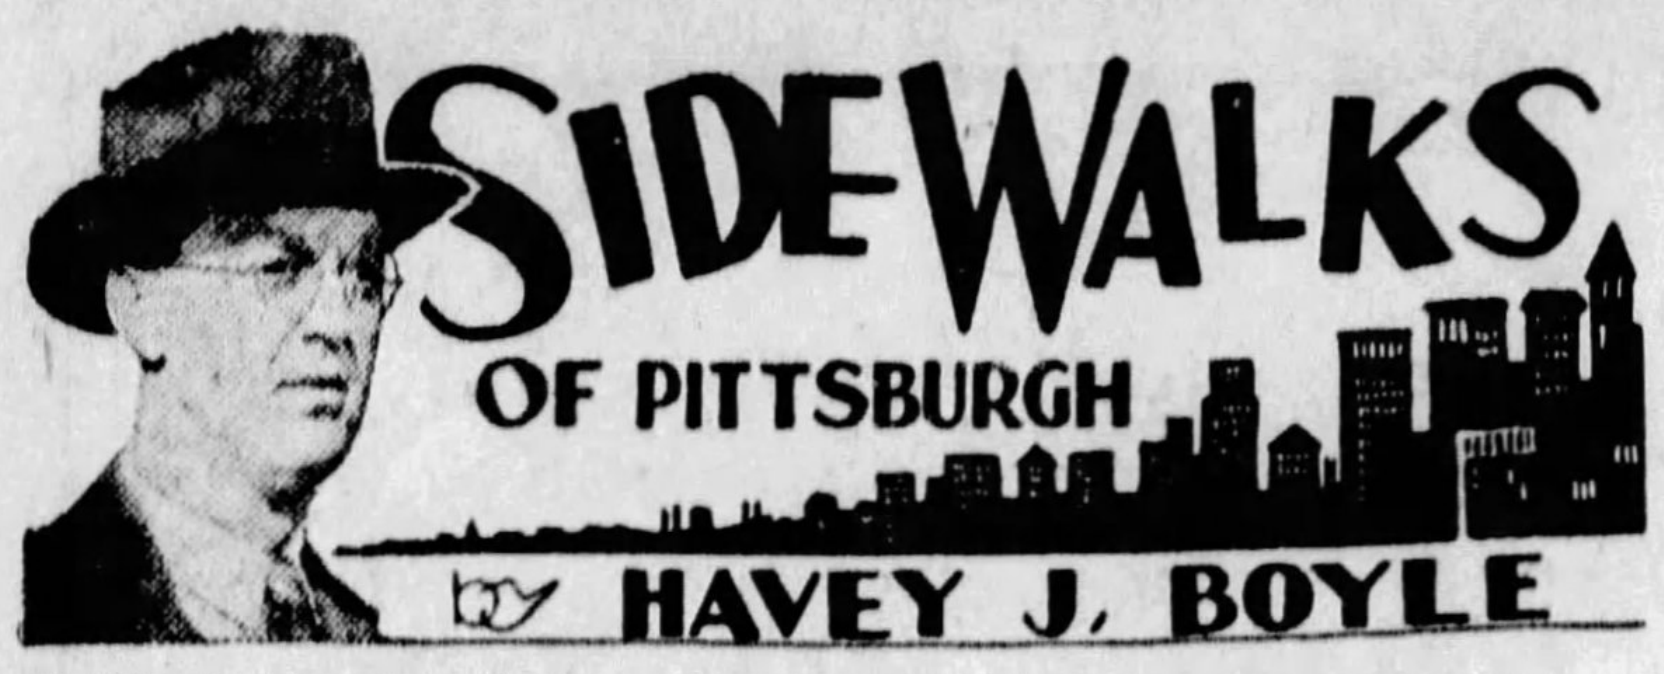
METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS



SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

ONE of the oldest banks in the district is turning modern, and we who always admired its antiquity are interested in the change. The general air of the institution suggested roots that sprouted a century ago. High desks and tall stools for the clerks made this bank different from the modern ones. The tellers' windows are arched and of thickly-carved wood. The clerical help, in the main, was engaged long before the citizens feared that Bryan and his free silver would ruin the country. Correspondence was taken care of with pen and ink, instead of with the help of the typewriter. Now there is a story that girls have been engaged to do some of the stenographic work. It always has been a place where the mill men and their wives did not feel altogether lost when going in to arrange for the purchase of a modest home by the mortgage route.

Some days ago there appeared here a note about a local boy who had made good on the singing stage. He called up a few days later and expressed thanks. This is a new experience for a writer accustomed to writing about celebrities in other lines—sports, for instance. My own testimony in this is backed by what another sports writer of long and capable experience told me—that of the thousands of sport celebrities he from time to time had "written up" only one ever had thanked him. The sports writer was not complaining. He was simply making an observation.

AND HE PHONED AND THANKED ME!
THAT'S ONE FOR THE BOOKS

TO REDUCE the noise and clatter of the city, a move is on foot to ban calliopes from the streets. At the present time they have been employed to advertise various things. But will the move include the monster calliope that follows the circus parades in the spring? If so, then quite a few of the kids who breathlessly chase after the calliope calling for favorite tunes will be disappointed.

What must go into the records as the largest birthday party in the history of the town was given by County Commissioner E. V. Babcock in his home the other night. Ben Anderson, the Commissioner's secretary, reports that 1,043 guests were present, and it was perfect in all particulars.

AT a recent banquet I asked a veteran what was the system of holding banquets before prohibition came along. My friend shook his head and said:

"They were dull affairs, indeed. All that you did then was to appear on time, sup a cocktail before you began to eat, partake of a small glass of wine during the meal, and perhaps towards the close of the affair you'd take a drink of champagne. No one got 'boiled,' so to speak, and it was a rare thing to hear one of the diners suddenly cry out 'whoopee,' or whatever may be the noise that man at the next table is attempting to make now.

"Now, of course, banquets are far more interesting. One usually goes to anyone of a dozen rooms before the banquet starts and there becomes sufficiently anesthetized so that the prominent speakers on the program will in no way reduce the enjoyment of the affair. There is an advantage to the speakers in the present system, too. In the rooms where we gather to make whoopee before the banquet starts, we get over all those necessary handshakes, greetings, and reminiscences—sometimes even singing a song or so—and thus when we at last go to the banquet room everyone is fairly well tired out and ready to listen to what the speakers have to say, provided we don't fall asleep.

WHAT D'YA WANT T'EAT FOR?
WHY DONTCHA KNOW WE'RE AT A BANQUET?

"And mark this, young man, if ever prohibition is abolished, you will find many of the men now attending banquets sighing, shaking doleful heads as they say: 'Ah, for the good old days when we had good and happy times under prohibition.' "

I wasn't certain whether there was a cynicism and a well-veiled sarcasm in the man's remarks or whether he really felt as he talked. I pass it along for whatever you wish to take out of it.

SERVING SUN-TELEGRAPH PLEASES GLENDALE BOYS

The boys who deliver the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to subscribers in Glendale and Heidelberg have declined to handle another paper instead. Recently they were approached by an agent of the other paper, who told them they would make more money if they would deliver it in place of the Sun-Telegraph. But they were not to be enticed with that bait.

The boys, who make from $1.50 to $5.50 a week by delivering the paper to subscribers after school, are so well satisfied with their pay and working conditions that they are not interested in making a change.

They receive their papers from T. E. Jolly, news dealer, of 409 Carothers avenue, Glendale. He handles the Sun-Telegraph alone, of the Pittsburgh evening and Sunday papers.

Mr. Jolly's newsboys stay with him until they "graduate." He has not had to hire a boy in seven years, because whenever one is to quit for any reason, he always has a brother or chum to take his place.

Joseph Berghenle of Railroad street, Heidelberg, is the fourth of four brothers who, together, have been delivering papers for Mr. Jolly for 15 years.

Stanley Chavinski, 13, of Magazine street, is the third of three brothers who have been in Mr. Jolly's employ continuously.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.

Jack Dempsey invited me to Miami to be master of ceremonies at the Stribling-Sharkey fight to see who will be Secretary of War. I felt it an honor when you know that Hoover, Coolidge, and Smith are all available.

I don't know what the duties of a toastmaster at a fight are, but I would like to tell 'em the advantages of California under a Hoover administration. We have imported silk worms in California, that are working twelve months a year, where in Japan they only worked three. They ain't organized yet.

Let's see, today is Tuesday. Donovan is out of the cabinet on Tuesdays.

Yours, WILL.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

GERTIE'S CHOICE

By WALTER E. BIDWELL

GERTIE MILLER was not of the flapper type. She did not smoke or drink or swear, nor did she keep unseemly hours. She was quite attentive at church and had been known at times to fill in as a Sunday school teacher.

A whole-souled, round-cheeked, laughing-eyed little trick, not much bigger than a full-grown gnat, with eyes that rolled and lips that beguiled. A wealth of hair that was an indefinable cross between brown and gold; and there was nothing slow about her, nor was she the least bit gross.

And yet she had never had for any appreciable length of time a steady beau, and the reasons whereof were not plain. Her girl friends, the whole kit and boodle of them, could not say why she stayed on indefinitely at the department stores while many other girls, not by any means as pretty, nor yet as enticing, stepped out and won the prizes awardded to and won the prize awarded to in old-style mansions on Lowry Hill and others gained access to glittering palaces on the Lake of the Isles boulevard. Some went abroad with a great display of rice and old shoes, their pictures in the Sunday paper.

Steady and attentive and painstakingly civil, never late in the morning, even though she had to grab a piece of toast and eat it dry on the way to the street car line.

She sat primly in her seat, just the proper amount of carmine on her cheeks and lips, then pranced on high-heeled boots from the car to the flowing crowd which ran of a morning through the big doors of the store, paying no heed to the "good morning, good morning" of the floor walker who welcomed them at the entrance.

And once in the store while Gertie was righting the goods on the shelves and before the morning trade began there was time for her to look about. Many a flutter was in the breast of an $18 clerk who eyed her clandestinely as Gertie was promoted until she became a head-buyer of Mexican drawn-work and Cluney lace and other expensive flubbery which came from the foreign shores. For Gertie had an eye for this stuff and an appraising mind which separated the true from the false and drew close lines of distinction which were even beyond the ken of the foreign buyers themselves.

And those who got down into the secret places of this girl's life, on occasion going home with her and dining with her, both male and female, were unanimous in the statement that Gertie was one "swell cook." The muffins and the peach cobbler and the soda biscuits she could make, and the fluffy potatoes she prepared, so light and creamy that they melted in one's mouth. And so no one would say that a lack of culinary attainmets had had anything to do with Gertie's failure to qualify for hymeneal honors.

Yet the riddle remained unsolved, and the years marched happily on, Gertie pirouetted in and out of the store doors, and those who had cast sheep's eyes at her and on occasion made leading suggestions, going just so far and no further, were almost legion. Gertie had long since failed to keep track of proposals and near-proposals.

Sometimes it seemed to appraising eyes that she was growing just a wee bit old. Her cheeks had lost some of their roundness, and her chin was just a trifle too heavy. At times over the years to those who watched closely it seemed that there were little dark circles under her eyes, powdered over and covered up as they were; still they were there. And her lips were just a bit too puckery from the fruit of disillusionment which she had eaten.

But one there was who knew. Perhaps there were two who knew. Gertie herself knew, even though the secret had never passed beyond her lips; and I suspect Jack Doerflier knew.

The big, easy-going, lack-lustre Jack Doerflier. A bit of German in him and therefore a bit slow. But true and faithful and dogged; a mind as unwavering as the march of worlds, Doerflier had never changed and his love had never grown cold. While Gertie remained on at the lace counter gradually climbing till her weekly wage jumped from $12 to $50, certainly nothing to be ashamed of, Jack had been promoted as well. He was now chief floor walker on the main floor, drawing $90 per week, his influence unchallenged by the boss himself.

"I want you to feel perfectly free to do as you see fit," this worthy said, "you have full charge and you alone are held responsible for what goes on here below."

But Jack was different and retiring. His great manly heart could not "crash the gates," as the boys put it. Somewhere up in the secret places of his soul he had placed this little "lace girl," as he called her, and there through the years she had remained, to be adored and worshipped and dreamed over, a source of inspiration and a source of strength. But still a "lace girl," a more or less imaginative sort of person; an ineffable, unapproachable creature. Strange that there are still some of the old type who dream dreams and have visions.

But Jack was of this type and while Gertie waited and her soul shrank within her, Jack was also losing patience. At times he pinched himself to make sure that everything was real.

Frequently he accompanied Gertie home and on rare occasions he escorted her to a movie. But somehow the barrier between them was never broken. Gertie, her soul refined and delicate, would not break it, and Jack did not have the brash hardihood to do it.

Finally Peter Hodkins, a bewhiskered old patriarch who was manager of the vast institution where these folks worked, took it upon himself to call Gertie. He was sending her to Europe, he said, as foreign buyer. Gertie in her exuberance and pride, unhesitatingly accepted the proffered position.

That very night Jack Doerflier saw to it that his course led him out on the same car with Gertie. At the door of her home, on a bleak night, with the wind blowing around the corners of the building Jack's heart was poured out to Gertie. And, because he had waited so long he was more insistent and more determined.

"You're not going, not one step, that's just all, Gertie," he averred. "You trot right into that old codger in the morning and tell him this Europe stuff is all off. I got a house out in Nicholson Park all paid for and the renters are leaving tomorrow, and I've got a right smart amount of money in the bank. Tomorrow morning, soon as you call this deal off, we'll be married. There's not going to be any more waiting or fooling around about it either."

So the matter was settled.

About 10 o'clock the following morning George Kretcher, who owned the store, moseyed into the manager's office and sat down on the edge of Peter Hodkin's desk.

"Say, Pete," he said, 'what's this talk about sending Gertie to Europe?"

"Well, it worked, didn't it?" said Hodkins, as he took up a bundle of letters and began to plow through them.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Joicey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair, and how to darken it with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

ENDED ALL LOCAL MAN'S AILMENTS

Says New Medicine, Ten Herbs, Relieved Long Suffering; Benefited Whole System.

"Never have I endorsed a medicine, but Ten Herbs has done me so much good that I cannot help but recommend it," was the statement of Mr. George Miller, 844 Freedmore Street, North Side, Pittsburgh, to

"I am 60 years old, and for years was an employe of the P. & L. E. Railroad, but had to give up my position on account of my health," Mr. Miller continued. "I have not been able to work for the past seven months. I was told that I had an ulcerated stomach. My digestive organs got so disordered that I had to be careful what I ate. In fact, there were few things I could eat without suffering afterwards. Meat, or anything greasy, was entirely out of the question. I would fill with gas and bloat terribly. I was always constipated. Other organs were disordered, too. I had dizzy spells and severe pains across my back. After suffering like this for several years, rheumatism developed in my knees. At times the pains were so severe I could hardly walk. My whole system became weak and rundown and I lost twenty pounds.

"I had been reading in the papers the statements of persons who had been benefited by Ten Herbs, and finally I started using your medicine. Now I can honestly say that all the ailments I have been suffering with have disappeared. I have a better appetite. I can eat about anything I want without having gas, bloating or any other distress afterwards. Biliousness, dizzy spells and pains across my back are gone. The rheumatic pains in my knees have entirely left me. My nerves are more quiet and I sleep better. Ten Herbs does not work on one organ alone, but seems to give the whole system a thorough cleansing. I am regaining lost weight and feel better and stronger in every respect. I shall be glad if you will publish my statement, that others may know what Ten Herbs has done for me."

Ten Herbs is being introduced at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, and can be purchased at all the May Drug Stores.

WHO'S GUILTY ????

CAN YOU SOLVE THIS DETECTIVE STORY ?

Mr. Tutby's Good Pearl

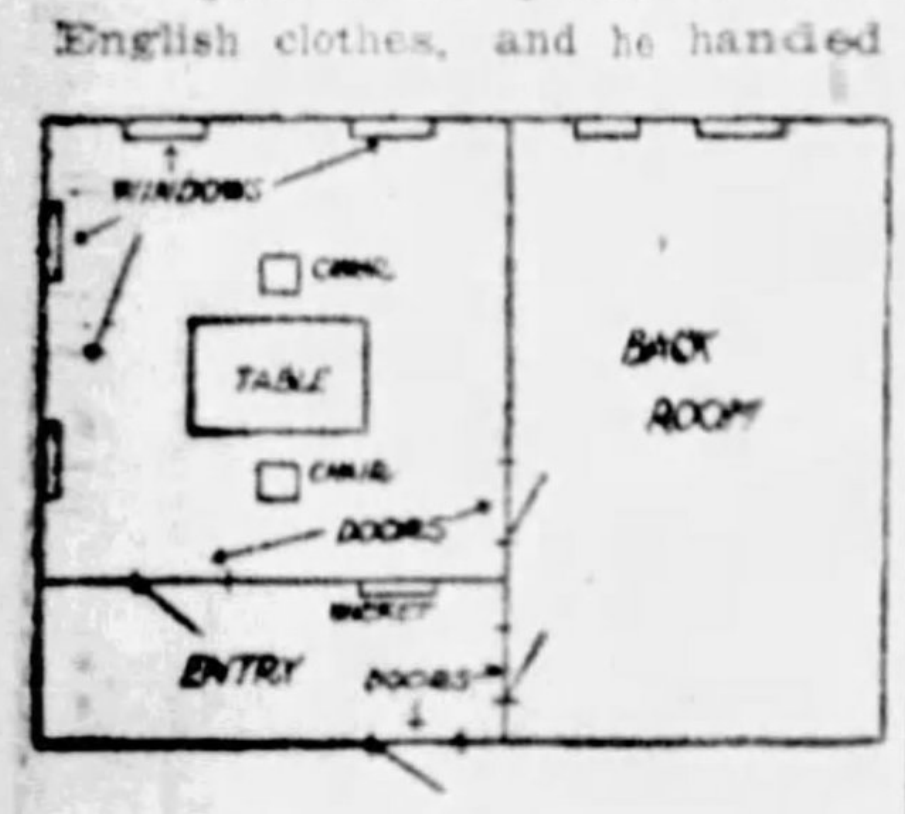
By Evelyn Johnson and Gretta Palmer

MR. TUTBY was a connoisseur of precious stones, and a dealer of the old school. He did not consider it suited to the dignity of his business to open a large store on Fifth avenue and hire a staff of decorative young men to sell clocks and cigaret cases and bronze statuary and novelty gold pencils. Accordingly, he had only a little office, like hundreds of others in London and Paris and New York and Brussels. But he had a very select clientele and a very fine collection of stones.

His office was in a dingy building with an inferior window-washer and a comatose elevator-man. A door at the end of a hall said merely Amos Tutby. You opened the door and it rang with a maniac frenzy. There was a heavily Yale-locked and Holmes-patrolled door in the opposite wall, and a little window such as ticket-sellers use. The head of a pepper-and-salt young man would appear in the window. For matters of record, this is Mr. Edward Shortt, Mr. Tutby's assistant.

At 4:45 one evening a tall, pleasantly-groomed person with an aura of Tuxedo, Racquet Club and Southampton, went through the formula of gaining access to Mr. Tutby and emerged victorious into the room beyond the little window and the locked door. Mr. Tutby was there, hat in hand, about to leave for the day, and carrying a copy of The Anatomy of Melancholy.

"I'M Mr. Westermore," said the presentable person in the English clothes, and he handed Mr. Tutby a card marked J. Cardigan Westermore and a card marked Mrs. Richard Van Gelder. Below the redoubtable name of Van Gelder was written in a flamboyant feminine hand, "This is to introduce Mr. Westermore. Will you please assist him as well as you always do me?"



Mr. Tutby smiled primly at the great lady's florid calligraphy, and assured Mr. Westermore that he was entirely at his service.

"Tomorrow," said Mr. Westermore, "is my my mother's seventy-fifth birthday. I have here a piece of family jewelry. This little topaz, as you see, is an almost worthless stone, but the diamond mounting is good and has associations. I would like a pearl, a very fine pearl, to put in the middle in place of the topaz, and I would like to have it by tomorrow."

Mr. Tutby set down his hat and book, retired into an adjoining room and returned with a tray of magnificent pearls.

FOR awhile Mr. Tutby's small dry fingers and Mr. Westermore's long spatulate fingers turned over the pearls. Mr. Westermore leaned closer. His elbow swept Mr. Tutby's handsome Anatomy of Melancholy to the floor. Mr. Tutby looked pained and bent over to pick it up. Mr. Westermore bent over simultaneously. One corner was badly doubled back. Mr. Westermore expressed his lasting regret.

A long discussion on the respective merits of two particular pearls ensued.

Suddenly Mr. Tutby felt a rapid sinking sensation in the pit of his stomach. He took out a slip of paper, wrote on it, and rang for Mr. Shortt. Mr. Shortt came in from the next room. Mr. Tutby handed him the slip of paper and continued with a glowing description of a certain pink pearl. Mr. Shortt glanced at the paper and his pale eyes started from his vague face. "Pearl missing," said the paper, "call police." Mr. Shortt somehow found himself in the adjoining room, and addressed himself to the telephone.

A LITTLE while later, Messrs. McCloskey and Schatzenstein, plainclothes men, appeared on the scene. They searched Mr. Westermore with thoroughness and dispatch while Mr. Tutby frantically searched the room. Then they departed with the protesting and apparently innocent Mr. Westermore.

A week passed. The cohorts of McCloskey and Schatzenstein had probed the clothing and epidermis of Mr. Westermore with the utmost fidelity. They had ascertained in their coarse way that Mr. Westermore had not swallower the pearl. Mr. Westermore was released.

Mr. Tutby had phoned Mrs. Van Gelder. Yes, Mr. Westermore was an acquaintance. He lived at the Allerton, she thought. She couldn't imagine such a horrible thing happening. It must be a dreadful mistake.

Mr. Tutby was baffled and hurt. He was afraid of being sued for libel, he was afraid of losing Mrs. Van Gelder's valued patronage, and he had lost his pearl.

HE was therefore perplexed when one day Mr. Westermore appeared in his office bearing a copy of The Anatomy of Melancholy. Mr. Westermore wished to assure him that there was no hard feeling. He wished to replace the valuable book he had damaged. He wished to assure Mr. Tutby that he realized that mistakes can be made. He was most fervent in his assurances. He put down his hat and stick and took both Mr. Tutby's hands in his. In his agitation, he knocked his hat from the table. He recovered it, and retired still protesting.

And yet Mr. Tutby's pearl provided Mr. Westermore with the wherewithal to spend many months within the chaste portals of the Allerton.

How did Mr. Westermore manage to take away the pearl?

Solution of Yesterday's Mystery Story: "The Lethal Watermelon"

JANE had finally rebelled against her aunt's tyranny and secured Tom's promise to help her kill the old lady. With his help she arranged a dictaphone close to the telephone where it would not be seen and got a record of Miss Welch's voice ordering her groceries. This the pair translated into a Victrola record. The next morning Jane put on her gardening gloves, attacked her aunt with a poker, and succeeded in killing her as she was seated at the telephone, preparatory to giving her household orders for the day. A few minutes before the Rector's wife usually passed Jane set the record going and went into the front yard, where she detained Mrs. Darberry in conversation until the expected scream—an addition made in Jane's own voice to the transcript of the grocery orders. Mrs. Darberry became suspicious when yesterday's order was delivered a scant 15 minutes after she had heard the same articles ordered.

NANCY DEANE By Roy L. Foley

CHAPTER XXVI.

"A WOMAN who lives on our street, a Mrs. Deane?" All the next morning, all that night, in fact, Howard Wescott's words, spoken so casually, kept pounding through Nancy's brain.

A Mrs. Deane!

Nancy knew Mrs. Deane was the mother of her own father, Caroline Glendenning Deane. Did Wescott know that this was her grandmother and was he playing a game with her? Was he setting a trap for her, so that he could watch her reaction when she and Mrs. Deane came face to face for the first time?

If that had been true, Nancy felt sure she would have detected it in his speech. If he had no inkling that Mrs. Deane was her grandmother, what an experience was in store for her.

The more she thought about it the faster her fingers flew through the great office files of the Wear-Ever Mills, Inc. She had cleaned up the accumulated correspondence, papers and contracts with such speed that even Harriet Crosby remarked about it.

"I guess I'm a little excited," Nancy said, when Harriet had asked why she was hurrying.

She knew Harriet suspected she was excited about the man in the inner office. Just then Wescott came out, business like, serious. What an actor he was, how different he was now compared to the evening before, compared to the moment when he lifted Nancy up from the floor there in Ginger's untidy room, and took her in his arms to brush her tears away.

"Take a letter, please," he said to Harriet, and started dictating before she had time to reach for her note book. Nancy listened to the dictation, to Wescott's quick, decisive words, his rather cold tone.

The letter was to a salesman in Indiana. Wescott told him that unless his business picked up immediately he might as well seek another job, that the Wear-Ever wanted a real salesman, and that real salesmen were waiting for the chance to jump into his job.

The manner in which he clipped out the words, machine like, seemed to give Nancy a new insight into a side of his character she had not known before. He sounded almost merciless, and Nancy's sympathies at once were with the salesman. Perhaps he would lose his job. Perhaps he had a family, worries.

It was easy for Howard Wescott, son of the president of the firm, with the advantages of the best education the country afforded, actually pushed into a lucrative position in his father's plant, to be hard on a salesman who wasn't making his quota.

Nancy thought of the money that Wescott lavished. He probably spent more in three days at his clubs, on his cars, on entertainment, than the salesman earned in a month. For the moment she almost hated the man standing before Harriet Crosby's desk. He had his back to her so that she could observe him closely, just as long as she pleased, as critically as she pleased. But try as she would to hate him, she could not.

How well built Wescott was. Athletics had done that for him. How capable in a business way. Nature had certainly given him brains, physique, social position, money and on top of this, such a charm that women were wild about him.

"A man must know when women are so crazy about him," Nancy concluded, "he must, if he has an ounce of brains."

The adoring manner in which Harriet looked at him sometimes, the flutterings of the factory girls when he walked through the work rooms, the deference of every woman who came near him, all were so apparent to Nancy, that she felt Wescott must know he had but to throw a word to any of these adorers and their hearts would flutter all day.

He finished the letter—"we must see a great improvement in your sales within the next 10 days or your resignation will be requested."

Nancy tried to hate him for the words, but she found herself hating only the words, not the man who uttered them. He was too compelling, even for her. She hoped that she wasn't going to fall so low that she would worship the master with a whip in his hand, worship him for the very way he cracked the whip.

"No, no!"

She clenched her hands.

"If I like Howard Wescott at all it's because he's such a gentleman and so finished. I like him for the way he wears his clothes, for the good things he is doing for me, for his manners and intelligence. Not just because he's handsome and rich and a kind of fascinating devil."

Nancy told herself all this, tried to make herself believe it was the truth. The real truth. And for the time she was almost convinced.

And if she would have admitted it, she feared Howard Wescott somewhat. That letter to the delinquent salesman had shown her so suddenly that he could be so hard.

Could John Blair have dictated a letter like that, had their positions been reversed?

The thought of John Blair again—the thought of him. His wanting to marry her. Her indecision. Her being whirled into a new world so fast, the zest of it, the delightful uncertainty of it. The thrill of being on her own.

Every time Nancy thought of John Blair she thought of muddy boots. First impressions. That day when she had first met him she had noticed the clay clinging to his heavy shoes. Now the association of the thing and the person was always there.

John and Howard. How different were these two!

Could a girl love two men at once?

The thought brought a frightened look into her eyes. Such an idea had never entered her mind before.

No, she wasn't ready to admit that she was in love with either. She couldn't truthfully read what was in her own heart.

That noon Harriet again insisted that Nancy go to lunch with her. They were hardly seated in the noisy cafeteria, before she felt Harriet had an object, as usual.

Harriet wanted to "pump" her about Wescott, but from her conversation she knew Harriet had no knowledge of her style show efforts, or that Wescott had driven her to the show.

"What DO you think of Mr. Wescott?" Harriet began.

She asked the question too sweetly for sincerity and Nancy knew it. All at once Harriet was too gushing to be truly herself. Nancy was on her guard more than ever. She tried to appear disinterested in Howard Wescott, and said:

"I hardly know Mr. Wescott, surely not enough to form much of an opinion about him. I think he's very capable, that's all."

Those were the words that were on her lips. Had she spoken what was in her heart she would have said:

"I think I'm half infatuated with Howard Wescott. I tried to hate him this morning but it wasn't in me. I must be just like all the other women. Of course you knew he was enough interested in me to help me find a lovely place to live. He wants me to have a quiet, comfortable flat away from everybody so I can study and get to be a real secretary in the shortest time possible."

As a matter of fact Harriet hadn't listened very closely to what Nancy had said. She was day dreaming.

Nancy smiled. What in Harriet's mind was so written on her face. That plain, be-spectacled face, which no man would write poems about. Harriet may have had a good soul beneath her severe exterior, but she was not a girl Ziegfeld would have put in his "Follies." Everyone had something, Nancy concluded. Harriet was a whiz of a stenographer, neat, speedy, accurate, dependable. That was a great deal. Looks aren't everything, she thought.

"To think it was you he and that Flemming man had a row over in the roadhouse," Harriet remarked suddenly, "wasn't that awful—and wasn't it lovely?"

Awful and lovely. Nancy couldn't quite see how it could be both at the same time.

"Let's not talk about that," Nancy said. "I never was so ashamed of anything in my life."

Harriet giggled, and the giggle made Nancy feel sorry for her.

Immediately after lunch Wescott again sent Harriet out to transact some business for him, and he told her, in Nancy's hearing, that since the errand would take most of the afternoon, she needn't bother to come back.

"I'm through dictating for today and I think Miss O'Day can take care of anything else I may want," he said.

Nancy knew Wescott was getting Harriet out of the office so that she too might leave, to prepare for the second of Ziegelbaum's style shows. The show was at Washington tonight, and Nancy could hardly contain herself. Her success at the first style promenade made her confident she could repeat. But Oh! how she dreaded to appear before the people in her own home town.

She knew the gossips would be out in full force, prepared to put their own construction on her sudden return as a model.

Still, she told herself she didn't care what these people said. It seemed years since she had left them and she felt that somehow she had grown beyond them. It was as though she had been elevated to some high place above them.

She had written Mud and Darry explaining her appearance, softening everything as much as she could. She even had asked Ginger to tone down a little when Mr. and Mrs. O'Day came around—if they did come to the theater at all.

"You know they're old-fashioned and still have funny ideas," Nancy had told Ginger. Ginger, good-naturedly, had answered that sure, she knew, because that's how her folks back home were. She promised to put the "soft pedal" on Vic too.

Vic was driving Nancy up late that afternoon. Somehow she wished it had been the other way, that Vic had escorted her on the first night and that it was Howard Wescott who was now taking her to Washington.

Mrs. O'Day wouldn't be able to read Wescott as quickly as she would read Vic Flemming. What Vic was, was written all over him. But he was nice to older people, too, Nancy learned. His faults were all on the surface. There was no suavity, no clever concealment about him.

As soon as Harriet was out of the office Wescott came to Nancy.

"I expect you're anxious to go," he said. "Wish I was driving you up. It's your home town, isn't it. No doubt John Blair will be out to see how his little prodigy is getting along. If you see him, give him my best regards, and a thousand thanks for sending you to me."

He reached over and took her hand. She pulled it away quickly and walked over to the closet for her hat and coat. Wescott followed her, took her by the shoulders and swung her around, saying:

"What's your big rush. I'm not through talking to you yet."

"I'll have to hurry," she answered.

"What I want to say," he went on, "is that mother and Mrs. Deane would like you to start helping them Monday. The reception is set for the twenty-fourth and the time is getting short. Mother is always a nervous wreck after these affairs."

WAS he trying her, looking at her so intently because he had discovered her relationship to Mrs. Deane?

Every time he mentioned the name Deane, Nancy's heart pounded and she felt guilty. It seemed as though anyone must notice it. Well, if Howard Wescott were playing a game, she would play a game, too.

"What kind of a woman is Mrs. Deane?" she asked. "I've read her name in the society columns."

"Mrs. Deane? Oh, she's all right. Terribly blue-blooded, if you know what I mean. The wife of Montgomery Deane, a banker here. They're very reserved, nice though. They live in a big house all alone. Guess I must have pointed it out to you on the avenue. They had two children, both dead. A daughter died while she was away at school and their son, disappeared a long time ago. There was some scandal about him.

"I was only a kid at a military school when they had some kind of a rumpus about him. Never did find out the details. In fact, I hardly know the old folks myself. They're friends of mother's."

Didn't he know? Didn't he really know?

Was it possible that a man as keen as he didn't associate the Deanes, and their son who disappeared so long ago, with the story that Nancy had told him of her parentage?

"So if you're ready to go Monday afternoon, I'll let mother know," he continued. "What say?"

No he did not know. He did not know. He had no suspicion. Nancy knew it, her intuition told her so. It was incredible. No doubt he had dismissed her story of her relationship to some family here in Pittsburgh, with the telling. He probably had never thought of it after he had tried so hard to guess the name as he drove past the Fifth avenue mansions after that luncheon at The Chalet.

Nancy wondered how much longer she could keep the secret to herself.

WINTER GARDEN SHOW MAKES TIRED BUSINESS MAN LOSE MANY BUTTONS

By GEORGE SEIBEL

GEORGE SEIBEL

THE Tired Business Man is tireder than ever this morning, several buttons off his waistcoat are being swept up the aisles of the Alvin Theater among the debris of last night's performance, his optic nerve is exhausted through following the wiggles of the willowy chorus maidens, and his vocal chords are strained in telling neighborly straphangers the latest wisecracks of Phil Baker and Jack Pearl. Perhaps he can even exhibit a tear-stain or two in his pocket 'kerchief as the result of listening to Aileen Stanley singing her sentimental ballads.

It was a great night for the Tired Business Man, who saw "Pleasure Bound," the new Winter Garden show, at the Alvin Theater opening. Being a fast show, it was over by 20 minutes to 12. If the Tired Business Man had been allowed to have his way, Phil Baker would have been at it yet. But even accordeons have feelings.

Incidentally there's an old man at Mendon, who used to conduct a Sunday School class in the village church, a gentleman by the name of Rabelais, who will probably enter suit for infringement of copyright, as some of the most mirthful episodes are improvisations upon his pet themes. A few of these morsels are funny and some are just overripe. Anyway, Rabelais ought to get credit on the program.

GOWNS THAT WERE GOWNS

But why cavil at a few specks in the red juicy apple that was offered the public last night in two big bites? There was comedy of all sorts, there was dancing of all sorts, there were songs of all sorts, and even a Fashion Show with gowns that are creations. Yes, Gowns, not what is called in western fiction the wide open spaces!

Jack Pearl is as funny as ever. Phil Baker is as funny as ever. Lee and Shaw are as funny as ever. And that epileptic comedian, Fred Hillebrand, with his passionate hot chimney comedy, is almost the funniest of them all. These comedians run riot among the audience as if it were a mystery play, and they dispense their laughs until every seismograph within 10 miles must have registered a disturbance. So what if some of these jests were not as clean as Aileen Stanley's face! Rabelais told them too.

Nobody was spared. There were even jokes about Ganna Walska and Peggy Joyce, who will no doubt appreciate the advertisement. Then to rest the aching ribs of the T. B. M., there was some dancing of the usual in-and-out variety, with a peppery tango by Veloz and Yolanda, and a new Park Avenue strut, and a very cute baby-doll ballet that was among the best things of the evening, after the hatbox parade.

GOOD TIME HAD BY ALL

The dances did not click perfectly at all times, but it must be remembered that the revue is just starting out, and as Jack Pearl observes, "the first pickle Heinz made wasn't so good either." Some of the songs served up by male voices may have been soaked too long in romantic emotion or it may have been adenoids. The thing that counts is that a good time was had by all—so why should the Sheriff, played so blusterously by William Bonelli, an old stock company favorite in Pittsburgh, exceed his authority and close up the show? He doesn't, though he pursues it from the New York modiste's shop to Palm Beach, where one luckless comedian hears that "land has been discovered on his property."

It would be difficult to pick out the best bits of the vast agglomeration of entertaining specialties. Some might like the colorful scenery and the costumes new in design and festive in hues. Some might prefer the speedy dancing, intricate and wild, of the winking and wiggling chorus, or of Rosita Moreno and Noel Francis. Many will extol the singing of Aileen Stanley—her demure Quaker song, her "Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Sailor." But, all will agree that the laughmakers had it their own way most of the time, and that there haven't been so many burst buttons and lame jaws in the present season. 'Twas 20 minutes of midnight when the Tired Business Man went home. And he didn't mind it a bit.

Grand Shows Comedy Film

Jean Hersholt and George Sidney talk, quarrel and makeup on the Grand screen this week in the sound production, "Give and Take." It has lots of laughs.

George Sidney

The story has to do with the owner of a canning factory, which his son, back from college, endeavors to place on a profit-sharing basis. A man, Kruger, life-long friend of the owner, is enlisted in the plan. But the owner can't see the idea at all—that is, not until the end, when the employes come to the rescue with their bank savings to keep the cans and the factory from going "sheriff sale."

COMEDY GETS OVER

The talk sequence in which Mr. Sidney, as Kruger, attempts to put over the profit sharing scheme doesn't go over so good with the owner, Hersholt, but it goes over big with the audience in a comedy way. The cast also includes George Lewis and Sharon Lynn.

Sound screen specialty acts and news pictures are on the bill.

Officers Elected By Wool Growers

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 5.—At the annual meeting of the Lawrence County Wool Growers' Association, S. B. Hayes, of North Beaver township, was elected president. The other officers elected were: R. B. Peebles, vice president; Miss Neva Moore, secretary-treasurer; directors, R. D. Walter, Francis McCracken, William C. Drake and J. A. Boak.

VOCAL FILM TENSE IN STANLEY

There is sufficient "talkie" in the melodramatic romance of the Latin quarter in "The Redeeming Sin" to give the admirers of Dolores Costello an opportunity to appraise the beauty of her voice. In several of the tense scenes in the picture the characters engage in dialogue which is faithfully reproduced in this Warner Brothers Vitaphone offering which yesterday attracted large audiences to the Stanley.

Likewise, the admirers of Conrad Nagel hear the engaging voice of that star who plays opposite Miss Costello. The spoken lines are the most vital in the story and bring effective climaxes as the action of the love story progresses.

TALE IS GRIPPING

It is a gripping tale strikingly told by the camera and carried to histrionic heights through the spoken words of the players.

The stage presentation, titled "The Frivolity Revue," includes on the bill several pleasing specialty numbers. These are Eddie Cook and the Shaw sisters, musical artists; Dick Ware, Louise Anderson, an acrobatic dancer of grace and rare skill, and Margie Nelson, blues singer. "Fonce" Kellams, Braddock hero in the life-saving crew of the liner America, gets a flash in the movietone news along with Capt. George Rried and Mayor "Jimmy" Walker.

Aldine Film Good Talkie

The Fox people have taken their movie talk paraphernalia out into the great open spaces and the result is "In Old Arizona," the week's feature in the Aldine. It is an all-talking production and it is by far the best thing the movies have given us in this line.

Warner Baxter.

The picture, based on an O. Henry creation, brings to the screen the bad and bold bandit, known as the Cisco Kid; his faithless sweetheart, Tonia Maria, and the hard-boiled, loud talking United States Army sergeant, Mickey Dunn, who has orders to bring in the "kid" dead or alive.

MANY SCENES

As the story unfolds the scene changes many times—outdoors and in—the stage coach post, the army barracks, the barber shop, the saloon, the open desert, Tonia's home and so on. But inside or out you hear the characters talk naturally and plainly. And the story's continuity does not suffer.

Warner Baxter plays the Cisco Kid and quite well he does it, too, even though there are some lapses in his Mexican dialect. The capable Edmund Lowe gives a neat and boisterous portrayal as the sergeant. Dorothy Burgess, recruited from the stage, shines, as the faithless Tonia.

GREAT CLIMAX

Along with the voices, there are lots of other sounds. Cows moo and donkeys bray. Guns bark and the thud of horses' hoofs sound.

And there's a great climax, too. From behind a tree, the revolver of the sergeant blazes away. Then there's a scream—it is Tonia screaming one of those screams that chill you through. Silence of desert and night and a lone rider galloping away. Yes, it is the final fadeout.

Special Acts in Academy Bill

"Wine, Woman and Song," burlesque in the Academy, in addition to the regular performers, offer Snooky Woods, singing and dancing soubret from the Pacific Coast, and Curl Wilson, in special numbers. Jyes LaRue, brunette, sings the prima donna role. Frank O'Rourke, straight man; Myrtle Wilson, blond soubret; Dorothy Lee, ingenue who sings "blues" songs; Eddie Lloyd, eccentric comic; Paul Jerome, tramp comedian, and Doug Fleming, are the principals. The chorus is a group of 16 girls.

Man Burned Thawing Pipe With Gasoline

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Feb. 5.—Bolden Davis, 20, of 210 Eighth avenue, is in Providence Hospital with burns on the arms and shoulders, suffered when his clothing ignited while he thawed out a frozen water pipe with rags soaked in gasoline.

NOVEL SPICE TO FROLIC IN DAVIS

What the Davis Theater presents this week in its new all-vaudeville program is a unified sort of revue in which Jack Benny acts as master of ceremonies, his quietly uproarious humor weaving the different acts into a continuous frolic. There is much novelty in the course of the long entertainment, so that it does not seem long at all.

Karyl Norman

With a female impersonator who sings a sweet falsetto and sports a silvery cocktail jacket, with Three Sailors who introduce some of the funniest anatomical clowning, with an Irish baritone who sings well despite the discouragement of laryngitis, and with Jean Bedini doing mock magic and playing havoc with china, there is enough material for the suave Benny to talk about; but he has an act himself, in which he introduces Marie from Akron, who tells stories and sings a song that brings back glorious memories of old amateur nights.

COMEDY GIFTS RICH

Karyl Norman, the Creole Fashion Plate, has a surprise for the audience and shows rich comedy gifts. Gladys Clark and Henry Bergman present a most amusing sketch full of laughs with a bit of sentiment. Frosini turns an accordeon into an orchestra. Chaney and Fox are graceful and dashing dancers.

Then there's another miniature revue within this miniature revue—furnished by Hamp and Beck with their associates. It is all great fun, and nothing more need be said, except that the Irish baritone's name is Walter McNally and that Jean Bedini has a daughter, Bunny, who is a pleasing compound of youth and grace. Jack Benny has a lot of good things to talk about—that's why the show lasts so long.

"Stark Mad" Enright Film

The photoplay, "Stark Mad," has brought a jungle mystery and a lot of talk to the Enright this week. In fact the picture, which is laid in the Central American wilds, is an all-talkie. Its title and cast also is announced by voice and the only written word used in connection with the production is the "The End" sign that flashes on the screen following the final fadeout.

Louise Fazenda.

The plot has to do with a wealthy elderly gentleman who heads a party that invades the jungle in search of his lost son. Murder is done right at the offset—the opening sequences showing the burial at sea of a member of the party. Vague warnings are conveyed that death awaits those who try to penetrate the jungle. But in spite of these the party makes for the shore and locates in the ruins of an old native temple. It is here that most of the action takes place.

The cast is capable in both vocal and silent histrionics. It is headed by H. B. Warner, Clyde Gillingwater, Jacqueline Logan and Louise Fazenda.

The bill also includes a stage presentation, "Modena's Flashes of Art," orchestra and organ music and several sound screen specialties.

Pre-Lenten Card Party Is Planned

A dance and bingo party in St. Francis de Sales School auditorium, Margaret street, McKees Rocks, next Monday, February 11, will close the social activities of the Usher Club until after Lent. Many prizes have been secured for bingo. Dancing begins at 8:30 o'clock, with modern and old-time dances on the program.

"THE END OF ST. PETERSBURG" EMPLOYS SYMBOLISM TO TELL ITS STORY

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS.

TO an American photoplay audience, accustomed to some semblance of continuity of action, carried to sufficient length to express the mood of the theme of the scene, "The End of St. Petersburg," photoplay made by the Russian government, will be interesting principally as a contrast of the things that appeal artistically to persons employing other mental measures than our own, as compared to those which appeal to us. It is hardly fair to judge the merit of "The End of St. Petersburg" by American dramatic standards. It is unfair because it involves decision as to the technique of unfolding the story and condemnation of the picture for the very reason that might make it be considered a masterpiece in Europe. Yet, as the appeal now is to America, that is the standard we must adopt.

The story will be briefly told first and then such comment as is deemed enlightening will be made. It is that of the abuse of power of the old Czarist government of Russia that led to the Red revolution, resulting in the provisional government led by Kerensky, the belief of the people that the government was just the old one of the aristocracy in a new coat, and of its overthrow and the substitution of the Bolshveik regime, the summation of which is the passing of St. Petersburg as a name and the dawn of a new era in the magic of the name, Leningrad.

SHOWS REVOLT OF LOWLY

This is exemplified through the fictional dramatic tale of a peasant who goes to the city to escape slavery, becomes a strike breaker, unwittingly betrays a relative as one of the leaders of the strike, expecting his kin will not be punished. When he learns that he has been he seeks vengeance on the factory manager and owner and is imprisoned. He is released and forced to "volunteer" as a soldier when the war breaks outs. Later he is instrumental in having the soldiers listen to his relative instead of Kerensky, who, by the way, is the only actual historical character in the film. The soldiers listen and heed—result, the end of St. Petersburg.

The picture has been praised by critics, but to me it seems not even ordinary. However, I do not wish to be unfair, hence the preliminary explanation. It makes far too great a use of symbols, for one thing, and condenses too much for another. A typical instance. The peasant, after his arrest, is to be the subject of a "lesson." You seen an official unglove his hand. Then the peasant lying in the corner. He looks up and there is an abrasion over one eye.

SPECTATORS NOT STIRRED

The spectator is unmoved. How an American director would stir one to revolt at cruelty in a scene like that! Another failure is that to create dramatic tension in the signal for the attack on the Winter palace. Something like Paul Revere's light that was to appear in our own history in the old church in Boston, this was to be a shot from Peter and Paul's. Rapid flashes of symbolic scenes representing the opposing sides. Long drawn out, but no tenseness.

There is no acting. Just posing. There is no real action except in scenes symbolizing the stock market frenzy to get rich. There are war scenes with a little horror but no thrills. In fact, there is nothing whatever in the picture to cause an American to be anything but passive as he looks at it. Except a possible desire to get up and leave to escape boredom.

Regent Shows "Abie" Picture

The screen version of Anne Nichols' "Abie's Irish Rose" is current in the Regent. It is a sound production. It teaches that love can conquer racial misunderstanding and bigotry. The music score includes a theme song, "Rosemary." In the cast are Jean Hersholt, J. Farrell MacDonald, Charles "Buddy" Rogers, Nancy Carroll, Bernard Gorcey and Ida Kramer. Short Vitaphone subjects and a news reel are on the bill.

"THE RESCUE" PICTURE IN PENN

Ronald Colman comes sailing into the Java seas on the Penn screen this week in a picture titled "The Rescue." And into the same waters—making her maiden voyage in American movies—comes one Lily Damita. Lily, the leading feminine member of the cast, makes an alluring photograph. But she's a bit weak on the histrionics.

The picture, based on the Joseph Conrad story, has love, adventure and general excitement. The central characters are a young English adventurer and gun-runner, who is involved in native wars, and the beautiful wife of another Englishman, whose yacht is stranded at the scene of the gun-runner's operations. The charms of the white woman cause the heroic gun-runner to neglect his native friends and bring the situations that lead to the climax—the blowing up of a steamer hull laden with gunpowder, rifles and a swarm of natives.

GO OPPOSITE WAYS

Ronald, in the role of the gun-runner, is his same old romantic and dashing self. Miss Damita appears as the faithless wife. But the two go separate ways in the end. The yacht and the woman go southward and Ronald orders his brig to sail to the north.

The movie makers have introduced a lot of pomp and glory into the Java atmosphere. The picture has sound effects. There is no dialogue.

The stage show is "Cheerio," with the popular Teddy Joyce much in prominence. It presents a quantity of dance, laughter and music. Among the featured performers are Arma Jackson, Wally Jackson, Helen McFarland, Dorothy Neville, Grace and Marie Eline and a chorus of dancing girls. An organlogue, orchestra overture and news pictures are on the bill.

SOUND FILM, STAGE ACTS IN HARRIS

Renee Adoree.

The picture, which has sound and talk, is "The Spieler." The cast includes Renee Adoree, Clyde Cook and Fred Kolher.

Bennett and Richards, blackface comedians, offer a lot of fun on the stage. One of the boys goes in for heavy dramatics and the other insists on dancing. The first thing you know both are stepping a lively pace. At the end the one drags out a chair and sits down. "Absolutely tired out," he says. But when the partner strikes up a dance tune on the harmonica, he deserts the chair and the two go at it again.

COMEDY TRIO

Boy Friends, another act on the bill, presents a comedy trio. The first member is a fat fellow, the second is very long and slim and the third is a rather small woman. They frisk about in a slapstick manner and sing and dance. They leave the audience laughing following their burlesque of the classical dance.

The vaudeville also includes a young man and a couple of dogs, which he juggles, and four male performers, who do some good playing on the banjo.

Transcontinental Bus Due Here Today

The first transcontinental autobus of the new Atlantic and Pacific Stages, Inc., autobus service is scheduled to reach the Ninth street bus terminal at 9 o'clock tonight. The bus comes from the Pacific Coast, via Kansas City, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Dayton, Columbus and Wheeling.

The first autobus to points west will leave the terminal at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Hardeen Tops Sheridan Bill

Hardeen, brother of Harry Houdini, is featured in the combination of talking pictures and vaudeville in the Sheridan Square the first three days of the week. He presents mysteries, including "The Flight of Time." The film feature is "The Spieler," with Renee Adoree and Alan Hale featured. It is a picture of carnival life, containing romance, intrigue and comedy. It has talk and sound. Another screen talkie feature is Mrs. Al Jolson (Ruby Keeler) in a vaudeville act. Charelle and Guiran, in a comedy offering; Russell and Marconi, in a novelty offering, and Lane and Osgood are on the stage also.

Price of Gasoline Cut in Youngstown

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 5.—For the second time in two weeks, the price of gasoline declined today. Standard Oil started the cut, reducing the price of motor gasoline from 19 to 17 cents.

Albert Spalding, violinist, will give the sixth May Beegle concert at Syria Mosque tonight. The major work on his program is Lalo's Symphonic Espagnole. Other numbers include Sonata in A by Corelli; Prelude and Gavotte in E major, for violin unaccompanied, by Bach; Chorale, by Bach-Spalding; Nocturne, by Chopin-Spalding; Hungarian Dance No. 7 and No. 21, by Brahms-Joachim, and Romanza Andaluza and Jota Navarra, by Sarasate.

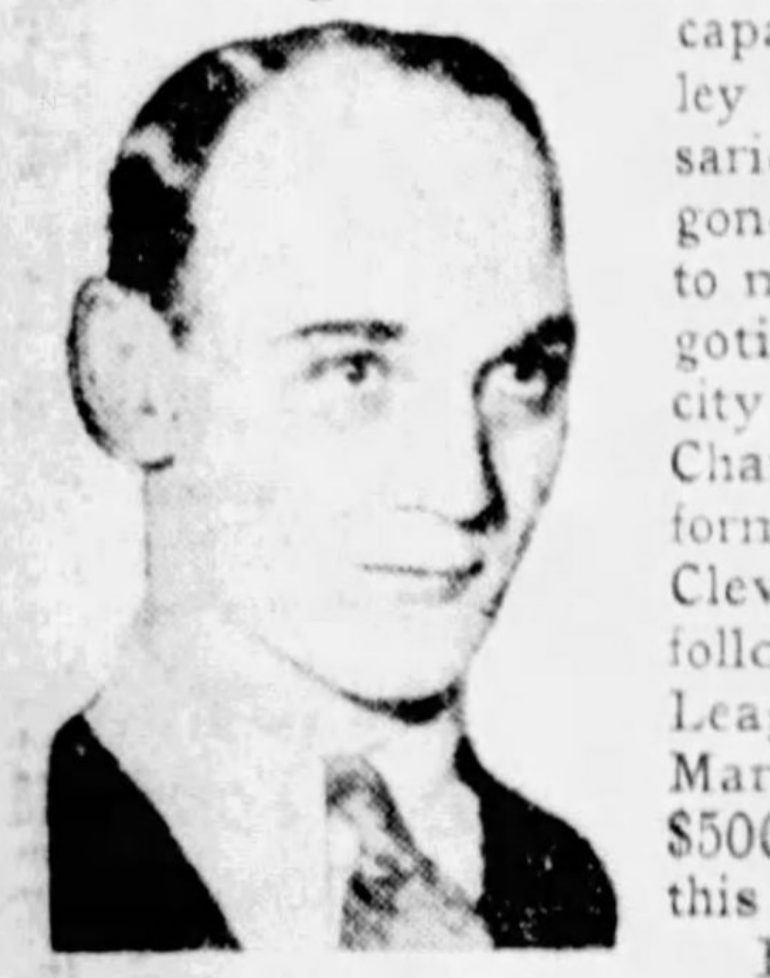
FORMER ROBIN WORTH BUC TRYOUT



Billy Greenwood

BILLY GREENWOOD having demonstrated so conclusively during the season of the Pittsburgh Three-Cushion Billiard League that there is no cueist in this city or vicinity capable of giving him a real test, Charley Ellis, the Diamond street impresario for whom Greenwood plays, has gone beyond the boundaries of the state to make a game for the local boy. Negotiations are under way for an intercity match between Greenwood and Charley McCourt, ex-champion and former Pittsburgher, now residing in Cleveland, to be played during the week following the close of the Pittsburgh League's season, which winds up on March 10. Plans call for a purse of $500, with blocks to be played in both this city and Cleveland.

Ellis' idea received impetus during a visit paid to Pittsburgh a few days ago by McCourt, who, according to Ellis, is playing better than ever. The Clevelander, after playing several blocks with Greenwood, was surprised at the latter's improvement since he last saw him, two years ago. McCourt expressed a willingness to meet the local ace in a match with something worth while at stake, and said that upon his return to Cleveland he would make the necessary arrangements there. The number of points and other details have not been settled.

SHOULD the match materialize, it will mark the first public appearance of McCourt here since the national tri-rail tourney of 1921, incidentally the only one ever held in Pittsburgh. It was won by August Kieckhefer of Chicago. However, McCourt, among all the billiards he has played all over the country, is best remembered for his spectacular winning of the three-cushion title from Ellis, 150 to 149, in the Davis room here in May, 1916.

Ellis had taken the championship from Alfredo De-Oro, the Cuban, in February, and had defended it against the late Pierre Maupome, Mexican champion. Both Ellis and McCourt were employed by the Davis room when McCourt challenged his friend.

TRAILING by a rather discouraging margin at the end of the first two 50-point block, Ellis, playing with the same doggedness that had brought him from behind to defeat both De Oro and Maupome, tied the score in the final block.

Frank Boucher

Inning after inning the lead changed from one to the other. Finally, each needing one, McCourt clicked off a natural to win, ending perhaps the most thrilling contest in which the crown has ever changed ownership. McCourt, some months later, lost the title to Hugh Heal, of Toledo.

HOCKEY appears to be one game to which the old wisecrack that a good big man always beats a good little man cannot be applied. At least that is the inference to be drawn from the case of Frankie Boucher, wiry center of the New York Rangers. It isn't astounding to find a player of Boucher's ability looming up as a strong candidate for the goal-shooting championship of his division, but it is quite a surprise to learn from the records that a puckster of such apparently frail physique is one of the real iron men of the strenuous ice game. Indisputable evidence of this is contained in the fact that Boucher has not missed a single game of the 122 contests that the Rangers have played since their organization.

BUN COOK, of the same team, has also taken part in all of the Rangers' 122 games, and Bill Cook, out because of the major foul rule, has muffed only one event in that number, but with everything considered Boucher is the outstanding performer from the standpoint of durability and steadiness, and his record is easily the best in regard to consecutive games played.

Figures show that the Rangers' brilliant center has missed only one game since he began his professional career eight years ago. His lone lapse occurred one night in Vancouver, when he was unable to play on account of an attack of ptomaine poisoning. With that single exception, he has been in the lineup every time his team took the ice, whether it was in the Western or National League, or with Ottawa, Vancouver or the Rangers. That is probably a record for hockey, at any rate for players as slight of build as Boucher.

SPEAKING of durability records in hockey, Eddie Shore, of the Boston Bruins, is another player who must be ranked among the iron men. Until he was forced out recently by a wrenched ankle, Shore had missed only one game out of 118 played by his team since he joined it.

Harry Riconda

Like Bill Cook, Shore would have had a perfect record up to that time but for the regulation that suspends a skater for one game after three major penalties. In three seasons, Shore has been put out of commission only once by an injury. And Eddie does not play gentle hockey, by any means, when he is in there.

OUT of Milwaukee has come a report, published in various parts of the country, to the effect that the Pittsburgh Baseball Club does not intend to keep Infielder Harry Riconda, obtained from Brooklyn in the Wright-Petty deal, but will shortly turn him over to Indianapolis, in the American Association, for which team he will play third base. The rumor was emphatically denied at Pirate headquarters. It is the intention of Manager Bush to take Riconda to Paso Robles for spring training with the rest of the Buccaneer outfit and to retain him, at least as a utility infielder, if he shows the right stuff. Anyhow, it is a pitcher, not an infielder, that Pittsburgh has agreed to turn over to Indianapolis after the spring trip to complete payment for Pitcher Steve Swetonic.

BASEBALL men in general are of the opinion that Bush is acting wisely in refusing to think of letting Riconda go until the new Pirate has been given a thorough trial. True his batting average of .224 made in 92 games for Brooklyn last year is not impressive, but there is a feeling that Riconda may simply have had an off year.

Certainly, Harry's figures for 1928 indicate that his slump was an unnatural one, in view of what he accomplished in 1927. Playing for Milwaukee that year he ranked sixth in batting among the American Association regulars, turning in the high average of .353. He made 255 hits for a total of 371 bases, his blows including the unusual number of 57 doubles, 18 triples and 11 home runs. A player capable of making such a record in the minors isn't likely to fall off so much in the big show without a reason. A severe leg injury suffered by Riconda may have had something to do with it. At any rate, he is well worth another trial.

THERE may be a chance of the famous diamond sculls being brought to the United States this year, from the Henley regatta. Jack

Johnny Dundee Wins Over Tony Ascencio

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Johnny Dundee came out of the past last night and won the decision in 10 rounds from Tony Ascencio, clever and hard-hitting Spaniard. Dundee weighed 127 pounds and Ascencio 124.

Henri Dewancker, of France, 121, won from Gaston Lecadre, also of France, 135, on a technical knockout in the eighth round of their scheduled 10-rounder.

Rosenblums Clinch Title in Pro Loop

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Personal fouls, the bane of a basketball player's existence, have given the Cleveland Rosenblums the first-half championship of the American Basketball League. It was personal fouls that gave them the victory in the deciding game with Ft. Wayne last night after a brilliant victory over the New York Hakoahs Sunday had put them in a tie with the Hoosiers.

DRAB PROGRAM OFFERED IN SECTION 2

Peabody High, trailing along in third place, will try today to knock the group-leading Fifth Avenue quintet from its high place in Section 1 of the City League, in a contest that looms as the feature game of the scholastic card.

In Section 2, where three teams are deadlocked for the lead, two of them will see action against teams which come pretty close to resembling the setup variety. Oliver High is idle, and for that reason may lead undisputed by evening, provided the two long shots come through and score upsets.

LAKERS AT SOUTH

In addition to the Peabody-Fifth game in Division 1, Westinghouse will tackle the second-place South High team, and Schenley, tied with Peabody for third position, takes on Ralston.

Allegheny High has only the weak Vocational passers to get past in Section 2, and South Hills needs but to defeat Langley to insure its sticking at the top, nay, even passing for the time being the Oliver quintet. Oliver has a soft game Friday, and for that reason will undoubtedly be back in there by the end of the week. The third game in the section today features Perry and Carrick at Perry.

In the W. P. I. A. L., Peck Lee's temperamental Ellwood City team, which was fired and then taken back, all in two days last week, engages Butler at Butler in Section 3. New Brighton, the sectional leader, has an idle evening.

MONACA VS. ALIQUIPPA

Monaca and Aliquippa clash in the feature contest of the Section 4 program. No team has been able to down the Lippemen so far, though Monaca, with a good team, has high hopes of turning the trick tonight. Ambridge, runner-up in the division, likely will hold its ground by beating Midland at Midland.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Northwestern University's hopes of rising in the Big Ten basketball standings at Indiana tonight were given another blow today when Coach Arthur Lonborg announced Capt. Hal Cleichman would not be in the game.

Cleichman fractured a rib in practice Saturday. But Walter, center also was out with an injured knee.

Girl Club Owner Out to Interest Women in Sport

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Miss Florence Killilea, who will take over the presidency of the Milwaukee club of the American Association at the forthcoming stockholders' meeting, will dedicate her efforts to interesting more women in baseball.

Plans of the 26-year-old daughter and heir of Henry J. Killilea, owner of the club, who died recently, were contained in a statement issued following a conference with her attorneys.

"I believe that women should take more interest in baseball than they do," she said. "It isn't a man's game. It's everybody's game. I'd like to have two ladies' days each week during the season. Now we have but one.

"I don't know just when the stockholders' meeting will be held, but it will be some time soon and I will accept the presidency. I will go with the club when it goes into training at Little Rock, Ark., this spring, and I will be at the ball park every day that I can. I know it's a big order, but I feel I can do it."

Youngstown Golfer Leads Local Men

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 5.—R. C. Steese, of Youngstown, led the Pittsburgh district golfers in Class A of the Tin Whistles medal play handicap event here yesterday with 92-11—81. Tom Morrison, of Oakmont, scored 95-10—85, and T. S. Jamison, of Greensburg, 99-11—88.

In Class B, T. A. Cheatham, of Pittsburgh, scored 89-16—73, and C. B. Fownes, of Oakmont, 93-16—77. Lawrence Barr, of Pittsburgh, tallied 100-24—76.

MEHLHORN COPS PLAYOFF

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Wild Bill Mehlhorn, bedazzler of the golf world the past fortnight, added new luster to his record by winning the South-Central open, his third successive and fourth major winter tournament.

After tieing Bobby Cruickshank, veteran Scot, and Horton Smith, young Joplin (Mo.) professional, with a 72-hole card of 290, Mehlhorn came back to repulse them at every turn in an 18-hole playoff for the title. With 36-34—70, two below par, he was two strokes ahead of Smith and six better than Cruickshank.

Mehlhorn's card compared with par:

National League Adopts Card Today

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Presidents of baseball clubs of the National League will meet in New York today to adopt the 1929 schedule. That matter will be only a formality, but the gathering of presidents and managers may produce some other baseball news.

The league president, John A. Heydler, may bring up the question of a 10-man team, received with some enthusiasm at the December meeting of the league. He would have pitchers relieved of batting responsibilities on the motion of their managers. The suggestion found scant favor in the American League camp, but it may be tried by some National League clubs in spring exhibition games.

The schedule to be adopted, but not to be announced for 10 days, will call for Sunday games to be played in Boston for the first time.

OLDTIMERS SEE PITT WALLOP RENSSELAER

By JESS CARVER.

The oldtimers, including the entire 1916 varsity team, looked on last night as the Pitt Panthers fricaseed the red-clad boys from old Rensselaer Poly, where you have to have the build of an Adonis and an 85 average to stay in school. Holding a 5-point lead at half-time, 11-6, the Panthers, with their full strength in the fray, triumphed, 48 to 15.

It was just another ball game. Rensselaer demonstrated early that it had no adequate defense for the Golden Cat offensive and was unable to check even the second team, which started the game and played through the entire first half for Pitt. Puss Ferrarro, at a guard, led the Panthers in the first half, with Phil Aiello and Willie Arture at the forwards, Monty Montgomery, the Warwood, W. Va., pride, at center and Dave Moritz at the other guard position.

Arture tossed in three field goals and Aiello and Sandy Sandberg, who subbed for Phil, one each. Rensselaer led 5 to 1 at one time. But that time wasn't long enough.

REGULARS GO WELL

Doc Carlson sent his regulars, still a bit tired from the jaunt to Philadelphia, where they played and beat Temple University on Saturday, into the contest to begin the second half and kept 'em in there throughout. Baker and Hyatt combined to run the score up to heroic proportions. Charley flipped in five baskets and four fouls and Baker netted six field goals. Hyatt might have had three or four more hoops had he not elected to pass to his mates. And the same goes for the rest of the boys.

The reserve players, while they failed to score a lot of points, handled the ball very cleanly and passed well in the first half. Their defense was almost airtight.

Three men, each with a field goal and a foul, tied for Rensselaer's scoring honors. They were Colvin and Warren, forwards, and Peterson, a guard.

'16 TEAM PRESENT

To break away from the present and go back a bit into the past just cast your eyes over this list of veterans, who composed the '16 team and who sat in a body and watched the boys of '29 last night. Here they are. Give 'em a big hand.

W. VA. OUTSMARTED SELF

The boys about the town are having gobs of fun at the expense of Harry (Cash Register) Stansbury and Francis X. Stadsvold, respectively director of athletics and head basketball coach of West Virginia, since the Mountaineers were sunk by Geneva last Saturday night.

"Ho, Ho," chuckle the lads on the curbstone when they think about that 42-24 licking. "Ho, Ho, those babies weren't SO smart this time. Ho, Ho, Ho, Ho."

You see, when Brother Stansbury discovered, to his horror, that he had neglected to book a game for February 2, which was a Saturday night and therefore a good "money" night in Morgantown, he promptly got in touch with Stadsvold and asked him who he wanted. The choice lay between the Dukes and Geneva. Having had some experience in playing the Dukes, Stadsvold figured they'd be tough again and, as he had not heard much about Geneva, and figured the Cov-

DUKES CHANGE SCHEDULE

After several changes and cancellations, the schedule of Duquesne's eastern jaunt has been definitely settled. According to the original schedule Manhattan College was to open the trip in New York Friday. They canceled and New York City College is to be met in the first game on Saturday. The Dukes then go to Washington, D. C., for games with Catholic U. on Tuesday and American U. on Monday. A tilt with Lebanon Valley on Wednesday at Annville, Pa., ends the four-game trip.

The Dukes have been playing in a slump recently and Chick Davies, their coach, hopes that they will shake it again as they did last year.

City College and Catholic U. are again rated among the leading teams of the Eastern seaboard. Catholic U. has never bowed to the Bluffmen, although all of their contests have been close. Nat Holman, coaching C. C. N. Y., would rather beat the Dukes than almost any other team on his schedule.

Hoover Decision In Army-Navy Row Likely

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—The induction of Herbert Hoover into the White House will be the starting signal for a new congressional movement for resumption of athletic relations between the West Point Military and Annapolis Naval academies, it was learned today.

Representative Britten (Rep.), of Illinois, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, and Representative James (Rep.), of Michigan, slated to be chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee in the next Congress, will foster it.

Both Britten and James today expressed hope that differences of the two academies could be patched up in the next administration.

REGAN GUEST AT GRUBER DINNER

Bill Regan, second baseman of the Boston Red Sox, and a flock of his Brookline admirers will be among the guests at the testimonial banquet to John H. Gruber, to be held under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America in the ballroom of the William Penn Hotel Thursday night of next week.

The Regan boosters have taken an entire table of 10 seats, the party including Bill Regan and his brother, Joe; Thomas Hester, county jury commissioner; Walter Caterall, John Miller, Frank Hughes, Fred Hart, John McCrory, Henry Alm and Joe Magnani.

Bill McKechnie, of Wilkinsburg, former manager of the Pirates and Cardinals, both of which clubs he led to National League pennants, also will be on deck.

A meeting of the banquet committee will be held tomorrow at 4:30 o'clock to pass on final details for the affair.

NEW BOXING BILL OFFERED

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Opposition in Pittsburgh and other sections of the state to the regulation of amateur boxing and wrestling matches by the State Athletic Commission resulted in the submission of a bill limiting authority of the commission.

The measure, introduced at the instance of the athletic board of control, makes the attendance of a licensed referee, physician and other attendants the only requirement of amateur exhibitions. Persons or associations sponsoring nonprofessional matches still would be required to obtain permits from the commission, but no fees would be collected and the issuance of the permit would be mandatory upon meeting the requirements.

Introduction of the bill was intended to offset the measure already introduced by Senator Frank J. Harris, of Allegheny county, taking amateur exhibitions entirely out of the jurisdiction of the commission.

LEONARD OUT TO SCORE WIN TONIGHT

Montreal at N. Y. Rangers.
N. Y. Americans at Boston.
Chicago at Detroit.

By CARL W. SHATTO

Benny Leonard, retired undefeated lightweight boxing champion and owner of the Pittsburgh Hockey Club, is seeking a new title today—that of being the only National Hockey League pilot ever to retire undefeated.

Benny's career as a National League manager began last Saturday when he piloted his Pirates to a tie with the Montreal Maroons, and it is to end tonight, when he will direct his men in a National League joust with the Maple Leafs of Toronto at Duquesne Garden. It can be seen, therefore, that a Pittsburgh victory over Toronto is all that Benny needs to add to the contents of his cup of achievement, and Leonard and his skaters are determined that he shall not be denied.

LEAFS TOUGH FOE

But, regardless of their determined fortifications, Benny and the Bucs will not find victory easy of attainment. On Saturday night the Leafs snapped Boston's record-breaking winning streak of 13 straight with a 3-0 triumph, and on Sunday night they subdued the Americans in New York, 3 to 1. Any club that can score two victories and six goals in two consecutive evenings must be taken very seriously, and the locals are taking the Leafs just that way.

Last Saturday's Pittsburgh-Montreal engagement was the roughest of the season here, and tonight's fray probably will be another thriller. The Leafs are only about eight ounces less rugged than are the Maroons, and their game with the Americans Sunday ended in a free-for-all fight. While pitched battles do not add to the attractiveness of hockey, fast spirited action does, and a club not adverse to fist fighting certainly can be expected to satisfy the fan's craving for furious milling.

Ace Bailey, right wing, who set some kind of a record Sunday when he scored two goals within a period of 20 seconds; Day, the best goal-getter among International Group defense men, and Blair, youthful center, who is the most versatile athlete in the ice sport, are Torontoans who will command most of the fan's attention.

MUST WIN 13 GAMES

The Pirates' present ambition is to overtake Detroit and get into the hockey world series, and if they are to do this they must win 13 of the 16 games that remain on their schedule. Seventeen games remain on the Detroit card, and since the season opened the Cougars have won just about as often as they lost. Provided they maintain this pace, the Bucs can beat them out by the margin of one point BY WINNING 13 GAMES.

Winning 13 of 16 games is quite a task, but it is not a hopeless task, for Boston recently piled up 13 straight wins. At the time that the Bostonians started their streak, incidentally, they and the Pirates were in a third-place tie. Pittsburgh's burden would be lightened by a Detroit slump, but the Cougars, unfortunately, cannot be counted on to do a flop and it behooves the Pirates to step out and win tonight and every other night from here on in.

Starting Saturday night, when they invade Toronto, the Bucs will be called upon to engage in five games in eight days, but Manager Odie Cleghorn will be back at the helm by that time and they expect to hold a victory keel. Cleghorn was able to sit up yesterday and his condition is reported as much improved today. He expects to hand "la grippe" a k. o. wallop Friday and get back in harness. The lineup:

PITTSBURGH	POS.	TORONTO
Miller	G.	Chabot
McCaffrey	R. D.	A. Smith
R. Smith	L. D.	Day
Frederickson	C.	Blair
Darragh	R. W.	Bailey
Milks	L. W.	Cox

SULLY ROSS, LOCAL SPORTS STAR, NOW FIGHT PILOT

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

A FORMER local all-round athlete is entering a new field these days. He is Sully Ross, who has just taken over the management of Al Iovino, southpaw bantamweight boxer of Swissvale, who has had four professional fights without making much progress following a brilliant career as an amateur.

Al Iovino.

Sully has starred as an amateur boxer and professional baseball and basketball player. He was with the New York Yankees as a pitcher and outfielder back in 1919 and also played with Toledo in the American Association, Springfield in the Eastern League, and Rock Island in the Three Eye League and was to report to the Chicago Cubs when he hurt his arm in 1922. Locally he played with the Pittsburgh Collegians, Green Cab, Honus Wagner's Club and other teams.

As a basketball player, Sully starred with several teams and he recently was an official until told by doctors that his heart was bad and he must retire from active participation in sports.

SULLY did his amateur boxing in 1917, '18 and '19. He had 126 bouts, like Iovine was a southpaw, and at one stage scored 28 consecutive knockouts. His only defeat was by Arnold Thornburg, via the technical knockout route. His seconds refused to let him go out for the third round because of an argument after he had floored Thornburg in the second round. They contended he had stopped the North Sider and would not permit him to continue when the knockout was not allowed.

Iovino is the former A. M. A. 118-pound champion, and Sully believes he will go far as a professional if given the proper opportunity. Promoters may address Ross at 7312 Shoyer avenue, Swisvale, or call him by telephone at Brandywine 3135 or 3139.

Plenty of ammunition is being prepared in Philadelphia for the showdown on the professional-amateur boxing fight now before the State Legislature. The state Athletic Commission has gathered data on some glaring instances of mismanagement of the amateur boxers to present to the solons when the issue comes before them for a public hearing.

THERE is, for instance, the case of a 16-year-old lad who was permitted to box three times in five nights in Philadelphia and New York. And of another one who twice knocked down his opponent in the middleweight class of a tournament in Philadelphia only to have the judges rule against him to get him out of that class and into the heavyweight division, in which there was no opponent for Leon Lucas, the knockout star, who outweighed him by upwards of 40 pounds. Another lad, aged 17, fought in Philadelphia on a Friday night and was taken from his home over his mother's objections for a bout in New York the following night. The next day he was returned home badly bruised and shaken.

If this is sport for sport's sake in the eyes of the men who control amateur boxing, it is time some one were named to manage the managers. Professional boxing is no more highly commercialized than this sort of "amateur" competition, in which the promoters have no one to answer to for the dire consequences of their greed.

PAT GALLAGHER AND HEILMAN MATCHED

Patsy Gallagher, of the South Side, one of the leading local featherweights, has been matched with Tommy Heilman, of Donora, for the second bout of six rounds at McKeesport, Thursday night. It will be Gallagher's first bout in these parts in some months, although he recently fought at Oil City.

The Gallagher-Heilman bout, together with a six-pounder between Honey Kilvady, of Donora, and Joe Poole, of Lawrenceville, completes the card. Happy Atherton, of Indianapolis, and Jackie Rodgers, of the North Side, bantams, top the bill, and Teddy Welch boxes Sig Keppen in the semi-final. A wrestling bout will be an added attraction.

Dan Billick, Duquesne featherweight, has just signed a three-year contract with Jimmy Bronson, of New York, whereby the latter will act as his manager. He has been with Bronson ever since he turned professional, but has not been under contract.

Young Saylor Wins Over Johnny Carey

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 5.—Young Saylor, of Charleroi, won the decision over Johnny Carey, of Erie, in the eight-round feature bout of a show staged at the Gardens here last night. In the second round the fight was held up 10 minutes when Carey struck his opponent below the belt. After being examined by the club physician, the injured boxer was ordered to rest 10 minutes and then resume.

Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, won an unpopular decision over Tiger Joe Randall, of Clairton, in the six-round semi-final. Lee Sala, Donora, defeated Red Ryan, local product, in another six-rounder, and Nat Litfin, Pittsburgh, beat Scotty Graham, Donora, in six rounds.

GENERALS SIGN KERR

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 5.—Eugene Kerr, a shortstop, of Torrance, has been signed for a tryout with the Greensburg Generals of the Pennsylvania League this spring. Kerr played with the Blairsville Colts last summer. He bats and throws righthanded.

SPORT COMMENT

By JAMES J. LONG

Beresford, Jr., former diamond sculls winner, will not compete in the event, and is urging Kenneth Myers, of the Bachelor Barge Club, of Philadelphia, to try for the big prize.

Myers probably will decide to do so, and in that event rowing authorities believe he will have a good chance to capture the honors, even though he may have such a formidable competitor as Bob Pearce, of Australia, world amateur champion.

Kenneth Myers

IN his efforts to induce Myers to enter, Beresford has written the following letter to the Philadelphia star: "Why don't you come over for the Diamonds next summer? Old Joe Wright will back me up when I say that they certainly are worth the getting, and the course is a beauty. I may scull this year, but I doubt it very much. You see I am captain of my club, and therefore must row in the eight-oared boat, and further, having to work long hours at my job in the East End of London managing a furniture factory, there is not much time left to devote to the best sport of all—sculling." Myers is considering the suggestion with favor, not only because of the chance afforded to win the diamond sculls, but because his highest ambition is to defeat Pearce, to whom he lost the Olympic title last summer in Amsterdam.

GOLDENSONS NOSE OUT HAKOAHS

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Basketball fans who attended the fast exhibition between the Goldensons of the County League and New York Hakoahs in the South Side Market House last night certainly got their money's worth. The locals hooped their winning goal in the last 60 seconds of the contest, to beat Davey Banks, former Celtic, and the rest of the American pro league crew, 32 to 30.

Nat Holman, coach of the City College, of New York, a former Celtic and mainstay of the Hakoahs, did not play, due to a strained knee.

Moon Klinzing was at his best for the Goldensons. With the battle deadlocked at 30-all and the seconds of play remaining on the wane, Moon slipped in a perfect field goal from a most difficult angle directly under the basket.

The game, a rough and tumble affair throughout, saw the Goldensons hold tight the New Yorkers in the first quarter, only to be held in turn in the second, to the extent that only one point separated them at half-time, the count being 16 to 15.

The last half was even all of the way, and it was only Klinzing's superb display of spectacular shooting that enabled the boys to end the contest in the regular time. The lineup:

Goldenson—32.		New York—30.
C. Klinzing	F	Banks
O. Klinzing	F	Schein
Ketchell	C	Chizmadia
Siegel	G	Topel
McVicker	G	Moskowitz

Goldensons	10	6	7	9—32
New York	3	12	6	9—30

Substitution—McGuirk for Ketchell.

Referee—Al Speer.

Time of quarters—10 minutes.

CONLEYS VS. IMMACULATE

Immaculate Heart, strengthened considerably since the close of the first half of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League schedule, will present one of the best attractions of the season in its hall in Brereton avenue tonight when the M. J. Conleys are met in a second round contest.

Joe Dobbs, hustling manager of the Immaculate Heart passers, has boys in fine fettle for the important contest, and while his team takes the floor the underdog, it is determined to show its best form tonight.

The Conleys, who finished in a tie with the Morrys for the first half championship, also made an impressive showing in the Homestead District League, losing their grip on first place in the closing stages of the race. The Conleys are popular in this section and a large crowd is expected to see them in action against Immaculate Heart.

COUNTY LEAGUE FEATURE

The Duquesne Lafayettes, County League champions, will attempt to get back in the running for the second-half title tonight when they oppose the Miele-Franchinas in a league game at Duquesne High School.

The Miele-Franchinas have been suffering from a slump since the second-half schedule got under way, but Coach Gross expects his boys to show improved form against the champions.

The Lafayettes at present are trailing the Goldensons as a result of losing to the Rauhs last Thursday night and they cannot afford to suffer another reverse if they expect to stay in the running.

The Tempest Club, which has scored 17 victories out of 20 games to date, meets the Sewickley Y. Ramblers tonight in a second round A. A. U. tournament contest. The game is scheduled at Taylor Allderdice High School.

Boston Council "Rubs It In" On Braves

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The city council yesterday expressed indignation by votes and words at charges of attempted extortion made against 13 of its members in connection with its ratification of the Sunday sports bill.

Council William G. Lynch, who was accused of asking for the bribes, obtained a plurality of the votes for president of the Council, and the application of the Boston Braves for a Sunday baseball permit was tabled.

After the Braves' application for a permit was tabled, the Council passed an order inviting representatives of the Braves to attend a public hearing by the executive committee next Friday to discuss the permit.

"I want to face the Braves' officials across the table," said Councilman John F. Dowd, "and tell them what I think of them for slandering 13 members of this body. I'd like to know who really owns this club anyway. It is a farm for the New York Giants?"

JAP CUE ACE BEATS CHAMP IN 18.2 PLAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Kinrey Matsuyama, of Japan, scored a sensational upset in the opening match of the world championship 18.2 balkline billiard tournament last night by defeating Edouard Horemans, of Belgium, defending champion, 400 to 292 points, in 16 innings. The match lasted three hours and 40 minutes.

The defeat did not eliminate Horemans from the tournament, which is played in round robin fashion with each player meeting the other.

It was the first victory Matsuyama had ever scored in a senior championship tournament. He entered the match on a short end of 5-to-1 odds, but once the match was under way he played the champion off his feet with a string of brilliantly conceived and even more brilliantly executed shots.

Matsuyama had the high run of 89 in the tenth inning. He also had high runs of 74, 67 and 40. Horemans' high score was 59.

The inning scores:

Horemans	29 24 0 10 1 8 3 1 6 0 30 59 4 15 58 44—292
Matsuyama	8 74 3 28 15 38 0 67 2 89 1 3 13 40 0 20—400

Averages: Matsuyama, 25; Horemans, 18 4/5.

This afternoon Welker Cochran, of the United States, will close with Eric Hagenlacher, of Germany, and in the evening Felix Grange, the big Frenchman, tackles Jake Schaefer.

Hammond Signs Schmeling for Two Years

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The firstic future of Max Schmeling, one of the brightest heavyweight prospects of a decade, has been placed squarely in the hands of the Madison Square Garden Corporation. Col. John S. Hammond, head of the Garden since the death of Tex Rickard, backed the German youngster who knocked out Johnny Risko last Friday night into a corner and came out of the clinch with Schmeling's signature on a contract giving the Garden exclusive rights to the fighter's services for two years. If Schmeling wins the heavyweight championship in that time, he promised to defend the title for Hammond.

Under terms of the contract, which included financial guarantees that were not revealed, Schmeling will box only in either the New York or Boston Gardens or in outdoor shows promoted by the corporation in other cities. The Teutonic reproduction in looks and action of Jack Dempsey may fight for other promoters, but only with the consent of the Garden.

With the signing of the contract, Schmeling prepared to sail for Germany February 15 for a vaudeville tour.

The Hotel, Club and Restaurant Golf Association will hold its annual party tomorrow night. The club will first attend the Davis Theater and then join in an elaborate supper at the Nixon Restaurant.

FOOTBALL, SOCCER FANS TO ATTEND GRUBER FETE

By TOM BIRKS.

SOCCER and independent football are to be well represented at the John Gruber testimonial dinner to be given by the Pittsburgh Chapter Baseball Writers' Association of America, at the William Penn Hotel on Thursday evening, February 14. Many managers and leading performers in both sports already have made reservations, and the list of those who are to attend is being swelled each day.

McChesneytown and West View, represented by Managers Howard Kennedy and Paul Muzzir, will be seated with other members of their clubs. Fred Iverson, the popular sportsman and manager of the McKeesport Olympics, is going to try and be on hand at the independent table. And there is a chance that Grafton Sullivan, popular mentor of the Burns club of New Kensington, also will be on hand.

Tommy Connelly, manager of East Pittsburgh Firemen and now a big gun in politics, will be present with Secretary Brown, and there is a chance that Roy Quinn of Glassport will be there.

Soccer football should have a big night. President Harry Fairfield, representing the West Penn Football Association, is to have a table of well-known soccer men. Manager Balsarini is bringing down some of the famous Heidelberg players for the occasion.

An effort has been made to have the Green and Gold team intact at one table, for outside of the collegiate ranks it was the only National champion in Pittsburgh last season—and all are American-born players.

Doctor Wunderlich and Manager Karl Meisenberg of the German Sport club will be there, and Tommy Dolan and Jack Lowther of the Pittsburgh Soccer Club are to attend.

ENGLAND SEEKS 'TITLE' BOUT

LONDON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Phil Scott's financial backer today offered to post side stakes of 2,000 pounds sterling for a fight for the "world" heavyweight title between Scott and Tom Heeney, the New Zealand blacksmith.

The fight would be staged in England during the second or third week of May.

O. K. WITH HARVEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Charley Harvey, Tom Heeney's American manager, when informed today of the offer made in behalf of Phil Scott for a "world championship" fight in England between Scott and Heeney, said "Heeney would be glad to meet him."

"I am not much interested in the sidebet laid by Scott's backer, though," Harvey added. "What I am interested in is the gate. Provided the terms are all right for Heeney, the fight may be arranged."

STAGE AND OPERA STARS HEAD RADIO PROGRAMS

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

FANS at last have obtained Paul Whiteman's wavelength and tonight he will be heard in his first major broadcast in a hookup of 43 stations. WJAS will broadcast the concert in Pittsburgh, starting at 9 o'clock.

While nationally acclaimed "The King of Jazz," the versatile Mr. Whiteman will play a few numbers not so hectic in rhythm. One of these will be "Liebestraum."

Three original compositions will be played by Wendall Hall over WJAS at 11 p. m. "Er Somethin'" will have its radio premiere.

SACRED SONGS, KDKA

Every song given on the Sacred Song program is a request number, the Sun-Telegraph has been informed by the sponsor of this unique feature at KDKA. An attempt is made to give every hymn requested and postcards are mailed to the persons requesting them, it was learned.

"Throw Out the Lifeline" and "Jesus I Come" are two of the better known hymns on the air at 7:15 tonight.

Margaruite D'Alvarez, Peruvian operatic contralto, will sing the Habanera from Bizet's "Carmen" at 8 o'clock. "Estrellita" will be played as a violin solo by Godfrey Ludlow.

IRVING KAUFMAN

Three guest soloists will be heard with the Michelin Tiremen at 8:30 over KDKA. They are Irving Kaufman, Irma de Baun and Taylor Buckley.

Al Bernard will sing "Lindy Lou" at 9:30 p. m. and at 10:30 the evening's program will be brought to a close with Vaughn de Leath appearing as a guest soloist with the Freed-Eisemann Orchestradians.

Radio-Keith-Orpheum at 11 o'clock will present some well known vaudeville characters over WCAE. They include Irene Franklin, singing comedienne; Annette Kellerman in a talk, "Beauty;" Joseph Regan, Irish tenor; Al Bernard and Billy Bear in a blackface sketch.

"COCK FIGHT," WRNY

A cock fight, which has been planned for some time, will take place over WRNY at 10:15 o'clock. This is the first time such a combat has ever been broadcast. The contenders will be "Tampico" and "Chile Con Carne." Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, who was at one time middleweight champion of the world, will describe the event.

Lacome's "Masquerade Suite" will be played during the Slumber Music at 11 o'clock over WJZ, WRC and WJAX.

Comedienne

IRENE FRANKLIN

Heading the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Hour over WCAE tonight at 11 o'clock is Irene Franklin, singing comedienne. Annette Kellerman will talk on "Beauty." The Tremaine Orchestra will play.

would mean utter finish to a novice. Though he were brilliant as Shakespeare; strong as Hercules. And on a single night, December 18, a whole ton of high-grade opium, cocaine and morphia was taken from a French liner docking at Pier No. 2, Jersey City.

Supply for 7,500 Victims in Ton

A ton of narcotics—13,984,000 grains. Enough to kill a million and a half people. Enough to keep 7,500 confirmed addicts in a year's comfortable supply. Enough to bring doom ultimate as death to 32,000 of this nation's youth. The contraband seized in the last six months of 1928 could create for us half a million new addicts.

What can we do about it?

Seventy years ago the question confronted China. She found no answer. Today 27 per cent of her adult male population are hopeless drug fiends.

Twenty years ago this country, aroused by conditions in the Philippines, saw the necessity for an immediate end to opium production except for medical and scientific uses.

A plea was sent to the nations interested in poppy and cocoa leaf cultivation. "Destroy your gold-bearing flower! Eliminate all surplus above humane, legitimate needs."

The naive plea resulted in the International Opium Commission at Shanghai in 1909 and The Hague conferences of 1911 and 1912.

The nations solemnly agreed to cut production and limit manufacture so that no surplus over the easily estimated medical and scientific needs of the world would exist.

The total acreage involved is relatively small and under the absolute control of the contracting nations. The poppy is confined to certain sections of India, Persia, Turkey, Greece, Jugo-Slavia and China. Coca leaves are found in Peru, Bolivia and the Netherlands possessions of Java.

Treaty Proves Futile To Check Growers

The treaty was signed. How it has been kept finds eloquent answer in the colossal production of today. Ten, twenty times all legitimate needs, according to the conservatives. A thousand times these needs, according to the radicals.

"Smugglers' reunion as the ribald call it," says Ellen La Motte of the 1927 League of Nations opium conference. "Everything booming! Contraband seizures reaching staggering totals. Poppy cultivation never more flourishing. And of the eight countries controlling the forty or fifty factories, only one—America—has limited output."

America stands alone—a helpless onlooker. The alleged reformers of the fearful traffic reveal themselves as its avowed protectors. Then Cavazzoni, representative from Italy and new to the conference, demands that the nations keep the solemn treaty made. He is snubbed—ignored.

Japan protests that his plan of rationing factories would kill her drug industry, which is profitable and but nine years old.

Serbia objects that her market will be shut off.

And Sir John Campbell, British representative of India, states that he cannot subscribe to anything which will reduce drug output!

Human waste and suffering are not to be measured against pounds, shillings and pence.

Eventually Cavazzoni's blunt challenge wins the support of France, Portugal, Serbia and Japan. The meeting ends in noble resolutions passed—the traffic unhampered.

An international dope ring in full swing; profits running high into the millions; the whole country swamped with drugs.

A cold, inhuman brilliance marks the transactions of these master crooks. They are not addicts. Any more than the delegates to the opium conference are addicts. They are the big profiteers.

They also estimate their "business" in dollars and cents—the shame, the torture, the doom belongs to the consumer.

They are logical in their deductions. If a man kills another outright, cleanly and quickly and in the heat of passion, we arrest him as a dangerous outlaw. We tie a rope around his neck and jounce him to an ugly death. Or we sit him in a chair and burn him up with electricity.

But the big fellows who peddle lifelong degradation and the cruelist torture the nerves of man can endure—these big fellows escape with a year in prison—or a fine.

Can we do nothing about it? Are we helpless before this menace as the drug-slaved nations of the East?

Rebroadcasting Of London 5-SW Not Regular

Rebroadcasting of the radio program of station 5-SW, of London, England, by KDKA last night was merely an experiment, it was said today by the engineers in charge of the local station and radio listeners should not assume that they will frequently be given such a rare treat.

Transmission of European radio programs through a hook-up with American stations still is in the experimental stage, and success cannot always be assured, as conditions may be unfavorable. Hence, it was said, no promise can be made at this time that London broadcasts will be made immediately a regular feature of KDKA'S schedule.

CODY AND WIFE REUNITED BY HIS ILLNESS

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—The specter of serious sickness has drawn the Codys together.

Mabel Normand, of Hollywood, has telephoned New York every day from Los Angeles to learn her husband's condition, according to Edward Burke, Cody's manager.

While no one was permitted to communicate with the Cody suite in the Warwick Hotel here, the film star's fever is abating, Burke said this morning.

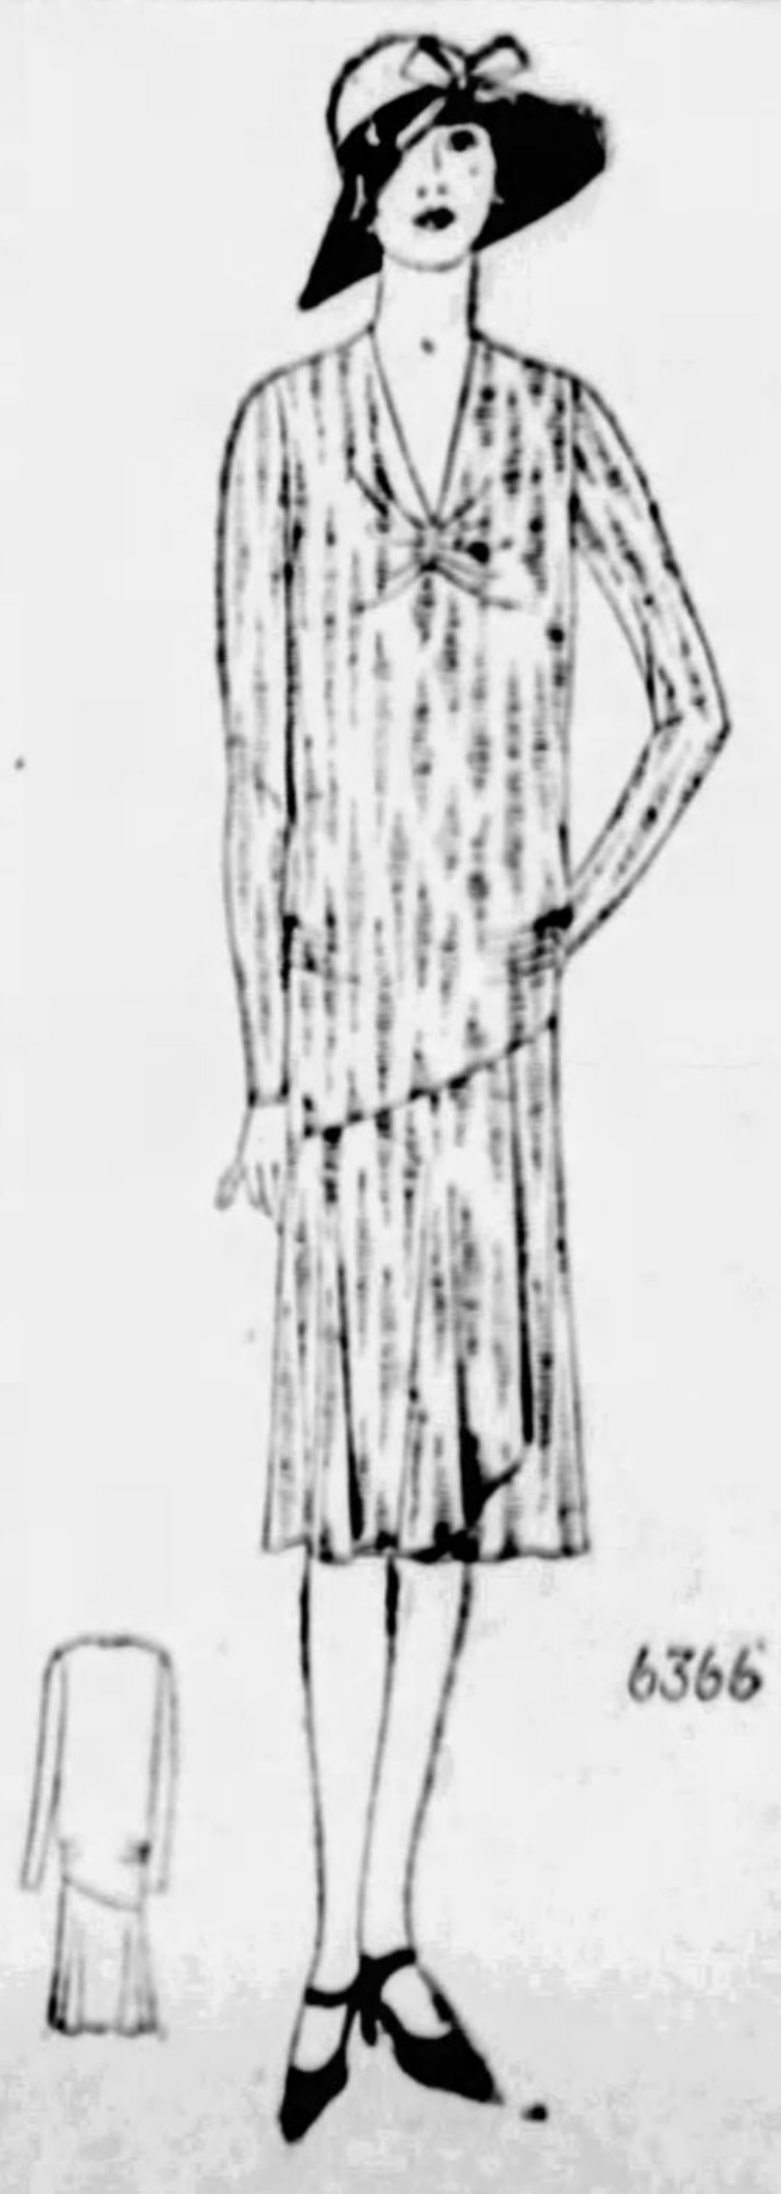
A STYLISH AFTERNOON FROCK.

Moire taffeta was chosen in this instance. The design is also good for crepe, or velvet, and nice for satin! The long waist portions are bloused above a group of crosswise tuck folds, and are shaped in curves that lengthen at the right side.

The pattern for this design is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 38-inch size will require 4½ yards of 39-inch material. If "apron" is made of contrasting material it will require ⅝ yard 40 inches wide. The width of the skirt at the lower edge is 2¼ yards.



COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Non-Prosperous Industries Those Not Capably Managed.

—By B. C. FORBES—

CAN it be laid down as a general rule that, with some notable exceptions, American industries which have prospered most are those which have been managed with the greatest initiative, enterprise and ability?

The facts prompt the answer, "Yes."

FIRST let us consider industries which have not been prosperous and see what caliber of management they have had.

The coal industry has experienced more trouble than any other over a period of many years. Its management has been lamentably lacking in business statesmanship. Disastrous strikes have been frequent, demoralizing not only the industry itself, but at times dislocating other lines of business and unsettling sentiment. America's coal "barons" long ago became extremely unpopular. The public regarded them as unconscionably high-handed. Their employes regarded them as heartless.

NEW ENGLAND'S textile industry has long been in the doldrums. It is admitted that too many New England cotton mills were ruled by "dead hands," meaning that their ownership and control were trusteed. In many other cases management was in the hands of families too rich or too lazy or too incompetent to adapt themselves quickly and vigorously to changing conditions. In most other industries nepotism has been largely discarded as fatal to success.

In any case, the fact is that New England textile manufacturers did not early enough switch from old methods and concentrate upon originating new and more artistic products and then energetically apply modern merchandizing practices found effective in other industries. Labor troubles have also been peculiarly rife in cotton mills, although the mill owners have been perhaps less blamable than certain trade union leaders.

FOR years the shoe industry has not been prosperous. Yet at the very time makers of staple footwear were able to keep their plants running only part time, manufacturers who turned to producing fancy footwear for women, to say nothing of sport footwear for men, were doing well. Which suggests that here, also, profits were reaped by the most enterprising manufacturers and the losses by the less enterprising.

A CLASSIC example of ruinous losses being turned to generous profits was afforded by the phonograph industry. The advent of the radio threatened phonograph manufacturers with bankruptcy. The leading phonograph company, however, applied itself with tremendous zeal to research, enlisted the co-operation of the best scientific brains in the country, and, lo, an improved product was invented which began to earn millions. Brilliant management won.

THE lumber industry has suffered severely from lack of far-sighted management. Thousands upon thousands of acres of timber have been "given away" during recent years, meaning that it has been cut down and manufactured into lumber without yielding a fair profit. Overproduction has been chronic. Moreover, the lumber industry has lagged far behind others in evolving trade-marked or patented products. Lumber has been just lumber. Latterly, certain enterprising interests have instituted steps to correct this. They are creating a market for their own patented or trade-marked goods, and the results promise to be very satisfactory.

Some progress indisputable has been made in most agricultural states in the direction of applying improved methods, using more fertilizer, utilizing modern machinery and, wherever feasible, introducing diversification. But the charge still continues to be made, by those who ought to know, that a woeful number of farmers, especially small farmers, have done little or nothing to modernize their equipment or their operations, but have continued to follow outworn ruts, neglecting such aids as vegetable gardening, dairying, chicken raising and feasible crop diversification. Where large-scale farming has been organized on a scientific basis, the results, it is declared, have proved profitable, as has been the case where co-operative marketing has been efficiently organized.

THE success achieved by brilliantly managed industries calls for, not a tag-end comment, but for a column to itself.

Would Make Values Of Stocks Tax Basis

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 5.—Representative Joseph C. Marcus, Pittsburgh, today introduced a bill making the actual value of a stock rather than its sales average the basis for state taxation. The bull market in Wall Street, he explained, has boomed stocks to speculative figures, increasing their sales average to a point where the tax based on that method is burdensome.

UNITED STATES GLASS UP ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

There were no conspicuous changes in quotations in the early trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Volume of business showed a slight contraction as compared with yesterday's turnover.

Lone Star Gas, which moved to a new high of 75 yesterday, started today at a small fraction under that figure, but later closed up the gap and was again at its high at the end of the first hour. Other oil and gas stocks were quiet and showed practically no changes.

United States Glass moved up a little in response to reports that the company will report better earnings in the annual statement to be issued shortly. The company has instituted policies and operating economies which are expected to be reflected in higher margin of profits in the ensuing year. While there have been reports from time to time that United States Glass would figure in a nation wide merger of flint glass manufacturers, the quiet buying noted in the stock here recently has been based on company improvement rather than expectations of merger developments.

The National Fireproofing issues were steady, but showed no disposition to break out of the trading range to which they held most of yesterday. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt also covered a narrow range with the street hearing of no new developments in connection with the company's plans to take over the Colona Manufacturing Company and engage in the manufacture of a wind-suction airplane propeller, said to be an innovation in aeronautics.

Witherow Steel, in which speculative activity has been centered since the middle of last week, was quiet today and rested around a level of 70 for the new stock in the unlisted department. All offerings around that level were well taken and the stock seemed to have little trouble in consolidating the gain made Saturday when the company obtained the court decision in the patent suit with Donner Steel, of Buffalo. Other stocks in the unlisted division were narrow but there was a fair turnover in Western Public Service and Aluminum Goods, both of which were handled around the best levels of the current movement.

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt developed strength in the last hour and sold to around 97, as compared with early sales around 88. There was nothing to account for the rally other than that stock for sale at the lower levels had been cleaned up and available supplies were shrinking.

Metal Market.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Copper prices were advanced another quarter of a cent today to 17½c a pound for domestic shipment, the third increase in recent weeks.

Foreign and domestic demand has been heavy. Foreign sales yesterday exceeded 11,000,000 pounds and this morning were more than 7,000,000 pounds.

The export price is expected to be increased tomorrow to 17¾c, c. i. f. Hamburg, Havre and London, corresponding with the domestic rise.

SIDESTEPPING CHARGED TO OIL HEAD

W. W. Goldsborough, a member of the committee protesting the Tidewater Oil Company's management of the affairs of the Tidal Osage Oil Company, has sent a letter to stockholders of the latter company taking issue with the statement mailed to the same stockholders by Axtell J. Byles, president of the Tide Water Company. Mr. Byles' statement was issued in response to a circular letter signed by the Tidal Osage committee, which is composed of Mr. Goldsborough, E. M. Love and Harrison Nesbit. Mr. Goldsborough's letter, dated February 4, 1929, says in part:

"There are several things in Mr. Byles' letter of January 31, that cannot go unanswered.

"For at least five years we have been trying to obtain representation on the board of directors and it was only after a draft of our circular letter of January 25 had been shown to the officers of the Tidewater Oil Company that the 'invitation' to name one director was extended to Mr. Love. His understanding was that this offer would not hold good if we sent out the letter.

KEPT IN IGNORANCE

"None of us knew anything about the sale of the Osage gas lease until an option, which had been given to a purchaser whose name was unknown to us, was about to expire. We understand that this option was taken up and resulted in the sale. Up to this date I have never been informed of the purchase price. I was told, however, that the proceeds of the sale would be distributed and therefore inferred, and still infer, that the dividend of $2.50 paid last November came from this source.

"Quite recently, and after they had seen the draft of our proposed letter, Mr. McKelvey and Mr. Williams, of the Tidewater Company, told us that it was a fact they intended to liquidate the Tidal Osage Oil Company, at the same time admitting that they had not purchased a single property for two years.

"It is true that we were offered the majority holdings. This offer was coupled with restrictions covering the output of the company which were so drastic as to be prohibitive.

SILENT ON INTEREST

"If you will notice that though there is quite a lot of general information in Mr. Byles' letter he still neglects to give us any intimation of the rate of interest paid by Tidewater Oil Company on the deposit of nearly $4,000,000 and he mentions no security for its repayment."

There are about 1,500 holders of Tidal Osage stock in the Pittsburgh district, according to members of the committee.

60 miles an hour

FEW events have a more romantic appeal to the imaginative mind than the invention of the air brake. It resulted in nothing less than a revolution of railroad transportation. It made practicable a greatly increased speed, with safety, and reduced the cost of operation.

Sixty years ago, when George Westinghouse first conceived the air brake, the average speed of the fastest trains was 25 miles an hour. They did not dare run faster, as all they had to depend on in an emergency, was a set of hand brakes operated by the brakeman and conductor. The air brake places control of the train entirely in the hands of the engineer, and trains can speed at more than a mile a minute with safety. Trains can be longer and heavier, too, and this means reduced cost of operation.

It was a particularly happy stroke of fortune that brought George Westinghouse and his invention to Pittsburgh. Not only has the manufacture of the air brake brought wealth to the district, but it has carried the fame of Pittsburgh to every corner of the world.

To the Employes of the Westinghouse Airbrake Co.

DULL BUILDING PERIOD NOW HINTED

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

BUILDING activity in most parts of the country appears to be going into a slump. High money rates are given as the most probable reason although the fact that construction activity has been remarkably great for several years may indicate that new structures have caught up with the demand.

Building in this district is maintaining a good rate of activity and has not paralleled the general trend. During the last two years, however, there has been a preponderance of the building of large structures such as office buildings here while there has been some decline in smaller projects.

THAT building may be due for a long period of dullness is indicated by the fact that some real estate mortgage bond houses are turning to new fields. S. W. Straus and Company is going in for a wider range of banking activity. This organization is forming trust companies in various parts of the country. An application has been made for a charter in this city.

The increased investment taste for stocks has contributed much to the difficulties of the real estate mortgage bond business. The National City Bank of New York suggests that methods of financing building operations have not kept pace with the changes in the security markets.

"IN THIS period of depression in the market for fixed income securities," the bank says, "general industry is finding it possible to continue to raise new capital on favorable terms through the issuance of stock or of bonds carrying privileges of conversion into stock. These examples from the field of general business point the way to a solution of the chief problem facing building. If this industry can conform to the public trend, pr[illegible]ling on a sound basis the type of security the public wants, there seems no reason why it should lack for ample funds with which to go ahead to the realization of another year of large volume operations."

THE sale of stock along with first mortgage bonds in new building projects would also correct what always appeared to be an injustice in some building financing. There was a tendency on the part of some, but not all of the houses to float bonds covering almost the entire equity in the finished properties.

With an income sufficient to cover interest charges as well as sinking funds, the bonds in the course of 10 to 20 yeras were retired leaving the complete ownership in the hands of individuals who had risked little of the capital. Under such conditions participation in the common stock ownership would be only the just due of the bond holders.

SECRETARY of Labor James J. Davis will address a group of leaders in Pittsburgh industry at the breaking of ground for the new plant of the A. M. Byers Company at Ambridge on February 11. The choice of the speaker is particularly appropriate. Mr. Davis was once an iron puddler. The new plant will produce wrought iron by the Aston process which threatens to make an end to the hand puddling of iron. The speaker's father was one of the skilled Welsh puddlers who came to this district in the early days of its development when wrought iron was the product that laid the foundations of Pittsburgh's industrial strength. The development of the Bessemer process and later the open hearth process for making steel started puddling on the decline. Within the next few years the last of the puddle furnaces are expected to go into the discard before the march of modern machinery.

Going Up!

Head your bank balance that way, you will soon be elevated to a position where you can look over the world with new confidence and self-respect.

STOCKS MOVE IRREGULARLY HIGHER

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Favorable trade and dividend news provided the background for an irregularly higher price movement in today's stock market. Although a sprinkling of issues fell back 3 to 9 points on profit taking and scattered bear selling, a long list of issues were selling 2 to 10 points above yesterday's final quotations by early afternoon. Trading showed a marked contraction in volume, presumably in response to the cautionary advices of some of the leading commission houses.

Call money renewed at 7 per cent and was likely to remain at that rate all day. A bullish interpretation was placed, however, on the taking of $10,000,000 additional in British gold by American banks. The stock exchange brokers' loan statement, showing an increase of nearly $300,000,000, was about in line with Wall street's expectations and was without market influence.

Copper shares responded briskly to the announcement of an increase from 17¼ to 17½ cents in the price of copper, and the placing of Anaconda Copper common stock on a $7 annual dividend basis. Greene Cananea ran up nearly 6 points and Anaconda moved up 3 to a new high record at 130.

Delaware and Hudson ran up 5 points, but the other rails showed a tendency to heaviness after an opening interval of strength. The reaction in this group, which was generally regarded as profit taking, ran to 3 points in Atchison and to a point or more in "Nickel Plate," Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific and a few other high grade shares.

Publication of record-breaking January chain stores sales and bank clearings were among the leading bullish developments of the day. Reis first preferred soared 10 points to a new top at 104. Adams Express jumped 9½, Union Carbide 7⅝, Bordens and Wright Aeronautical 7 each and Curtiss, Wesson Oil, Packard, Chrysler, Coca Cola and General Railway Signal sold 4 to 5 points higher. American Can and Howe Sound were among the score or so issues to reach new high ground.

Case Threshing Machine broke 9 points, Peoples Gas 6¾ and Commercial Solvents Trust, Dupont (new) and Commonwealth Power sold down 3 points or more.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Raw sugar was quiet early today. Prices were nominally unchanged at 3.77c for spots duty paid.

Price changes in raw sugar futures were narrow, but continued liberal offerings in the spot market checked aggressive operations. The undertone in the main was a little easier under continued liquidation and hedge selling. Prices opened 1 point higher to 1 point lower and then eased off slightly, with the March contracts declining to a point below the 2-cent level, under liquidation. There was enough covering at this level to check the decline and partial rallies followed with midday prices net unchanged to 1 point lower.

In refined business continued mainly in the way of withdrawals on old contracts and prices were unchanged at 5.10c for fine granulated.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Indiana Opens at 100¼.

The Street was agog over the situation in Standard Oil of Indiana, but it was not until after 1 o'clock that the stock opened on the New York Curb. The initial sale was a block of 90,000 shares at 100¼, comparing with last night's close of 96. Throughout the morning brokerage houses were bombarded with messages inquiring as to the proce of the stock and the brokers in turn were clamoring for some news from the New York Curb and the Chicago Stock Exchange. Around noon Chicago reported that the stock was quoted 100 bid, 110 asked, but no sales. The first sale was reported from the New York Curb. Several thousand shares changed hands at the opening figure following the initial transaction after which the price ran up to 102 before it met enough selling to halt the rise. The Indiana incident was one of the most colorful of a long series of interesting events on the curb during the past few months. The Street was guessing all kinds of figures for the stock before the official opening was posted with predictions of the opening price ranging all the way from $100 to $150 a share.

Good News Lifts Market.

An enthusiastic advance in the stock market greeted a series of bullish developments today, chief of which was the big melon on Standard Oil of Indiana. Later it was announced that Anaconda Copper had raised its dividend to $7 a year, against $6 heretofore. The Indiana news and the fact that $10,000,000 of British gold was reported engaged for New York shipment instilled confidence in the bull traders who have had some difficulty recently in keeping their pets in the public favor. Fears of a vague nature have permeated the Street for some time, but just what the impending happening is to be, and when, and why, are elements of the situation nobody seems to have a definite answer for. Conservative market observers have been outspoken in their comment to the effect that the constantly tightening credit situation must be adjudged and their opinion seems to be that adjustment can only come through a lowering of stock market prices. On the other hand, the money gorged bulls assert that the conservatives were complaining that the market was "too high" two years ago, and point to present prices, which are double and in some cases treble what they were then. In the midst of it all is the so-called "little fellow" floundering about in the market, lucky in some instances, unlucky in others, but, on the whole, making money when he holds on to his stocks for any length of time. In this connection, it is the impression in many quarters that some of the little fellows who have held their stocks are partly responsible for the high level of prices, as they cannot be shaken out on an ordinary reaction and their profits are such that they are in a position to wait for the ultimate fortune they have been told will come to the investor in the good stocks who hold them long enough. Study of the enhancement of common share values over the last 20 years confirms this attitude as in the case of several big stocks such as General Electric, Biscuit, Can, Aluminum, Packard, General Motors and many others.

Carson Patent Settlements.

The Phelps Dodge Corporation and the Calumet and Arizona Mining Company have made a settlement with the Carson Investment Company for infringement on the patents of George C. Carson. The Phelp Dodge and Calumet and Arizona in the settlement provided for a license for future use by them of the Carson inventions in their furnaces. Settlements previously had been made by the United Verde and the Magma Copper companies in cases which were pending against them. While the amount involved in the settlements was not announced, it was said it will amount to millions of dollars. The announcement of the settlement said it "was on satisfactory terms." Carson, through hins investment company, has suits for infringement and damages pending against the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, the American Smelting and Refining Company and other large mining companies. The Carson patents cover a cheaper method of smelting ore than was used by an older process.

Goldman, Sachs Holds Gain.

Goldman, Sachs Trading Corporation, yesterday's sensation on the New York Curb, retained its gain today and was handled between 175 and 180. The stock closed Saturday at 136½, opened yesterday at 175 on a block of 16,000 shares and closed yesterday at 170 after having been up to 181. The opening today was at 178, up 8 points overnight. It is understood negotiations are under way for merger of Goldman, Sachs with the Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation, another large investment trust. Goldman, Sachs Trading was organized only about a month ago and its stock was offered at $104 a share. The company's charter gives it wide leeway in operations and this factor is said to be one of the attractions for the traders who have been following the long side. A Pittsburgh plunger and his associates are understood to have cashed in some handsome profits on the stock in yesterday's trading.

BUSINESS

Commercial Investment Trust Corporation, a holding company, is one of the largest and most successful organizations offering financing service to facilitate the distribution of manufactured products on credit. Operations, conducted through the medium of subsidiary companies, are widely diversified, one of the major functions being the extension of credit in connection with instalment payment sales. Such financing is an important factor in the sale of such products as automobiles, machinery, farm implements, hotel, office and factory equipment, electrical appliances, musical instruments and furniture. The corporation now assists in the distribution of more than 70 different types of manufactured products, carefully selected on the basis of usefulness, durability and marketability. A number of leading automobile manufacturers have availed themselves of the service of the corporation in assisting distributors and dealers to finance purchases and sales of cars, and contracts have been made with the manufacturers of the following automobiles: Chandler, Essex, Graham-Paige, Hudson, Hupmobile, Nash and Reo. A few of the other manufacturers served are the American Piano Company, The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, The Hoover Company, Radio Corporation of America, United States Radiator Corporation and Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company.

The corporation acquired during 1928 all of the capital stock of Peierls, Buhler & Co., Inc., one of the oldest and most representative institutions engaged in factoring service to the textile trade, and in January, 1929, contracted to acquire Fredk. Vietor & Achelis, Inc., a leader in the same field for nearly one hundred years. It is planned to merge these two concerns.

The business of Commercial Investment Trust Corporation was started in 1908 by the present management with a paid-in capital of $100,000. The consolidated balance sheet as at December 31, 1928 shows a total capital stock and surplus of $41,697,531. Total obligations acquired during 1928 (adjusted to include those of Peierls, Buhler & Co., Inc. for the full year) amounted to $302,543,829. The volume of business of Fredk. Vietor & Achelis, Inc., and certain other companies, arrangements for the acquisition of which are nearing completion (payment to be made in cash and Common Stock), should increase substantially the total business in 1929.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE

The proceeds from the sale of these debentures are to be used to provide additional working capital for the increasing volume of business and are to be applied, in the first instance, to the reduction of bank loans of subsidiary companies, thereby substituting long-term funds for short-term borrowings, and, based on the present cost of bank loans, effecting a saving of interest.

EARNINGS

Since inception of the business in 1908, substantial net earnings have been shown in every year.

Consolidated earnings of the corporation and subsidiaries for the five years ended December 31, 1928 (adjusted to include earnings of Peieris, Buhler & Co., Inc. for the entire period), as certified by Messrs. Touche, Niven & Co., have been as follows:

Year	Net earnings before all interest and U. S. Federal income taxes	Net earnings available for dividends on the corporation's Common Stock
1924	$4,571,118	$2,298,800
1925	6,129,217	3,099,059
1926	7,817,291	2,927,607
1927	7,143,727	2,567,962
1928	10,381,508	4,669,812

Interest and preferred dividends paid by subsidiary companies during 1928, adjusted to give effect to the reduction of bank loans with the proceeds of these debentures and the proceeds of 127,429 shares of Common Stock sold in December, 1928, amounted to $720,342. After deducting such interest and preferred dividends of subsidiaries from the $10,381,508 of earnings shown above for the year 1928, there remains $9,661,166 available for interest on indebtedness of Commercial Investment Trust Corporation and U. S. Federal income taxes. The annual interest requirement on total funded debt of the corporation to be outstanding upon issuance of these debentures amounts to $2,998,960. The corporation has no bank loans, all bank borrowings having been by subsidiary companies.

BUGS BAER Says

TEACHING EINSTEIN A LESSON

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

PROF. EINSTEIN and his ingrown theory of electro-halitosis have all the scientists reaching into their hats for bigger and better rabbits.

The professor knows a lot of words containing six and seven vertebra and has passed that educational stage where a man can hang his hat on a tooth-pick and have enough room for his overcoat too.

He claims that only 10 men in the world can understand it. We would like to know the names of the other eight.

We can now state without fear of corroboration that Einstein is wrong. He is rushing around in circles like a ring-worm with the wanderlust.

When you are sleeping on a stepladder it is dangerous to roll out of bed. No successful man ever carried a bundle by the string.

He stepped off the wharf of facts and there wasn't a boat there. We would rather be a small fish in a smaller pond than a whale in the River of Doubt.

His theory about the double-breasted vests is all wrong like a No Smoking sign in a cigar store.

We admit that we stand alone in our denunciation of Einstein. When we look around for support we find that we are deserted and as barren as fly-paper in January.

What he claims to be an indisputable fraction of the rumor of gravitation is really the reaction after trying to read the labels in drugstores during a slight deviation in the course of the Gulf Stream.

You should start buttoning a double-breasted vest from the top. If you do not know how to count over a hundred you will never be able to keep score for a left-handed golfer.

This is what Einstein was trying to say when his gears twisted. Like all scientists, he starts out to claw existing conditions to pieces and winds up with well manicured nails.

But like all scientists he made the mistake of saying something we could understand.

He has broken the law slowly but surely like a snail trespassing on a government reservation.

Einstein is in Europe. We are here. But if he wants to talk it over we will meet him half-way.

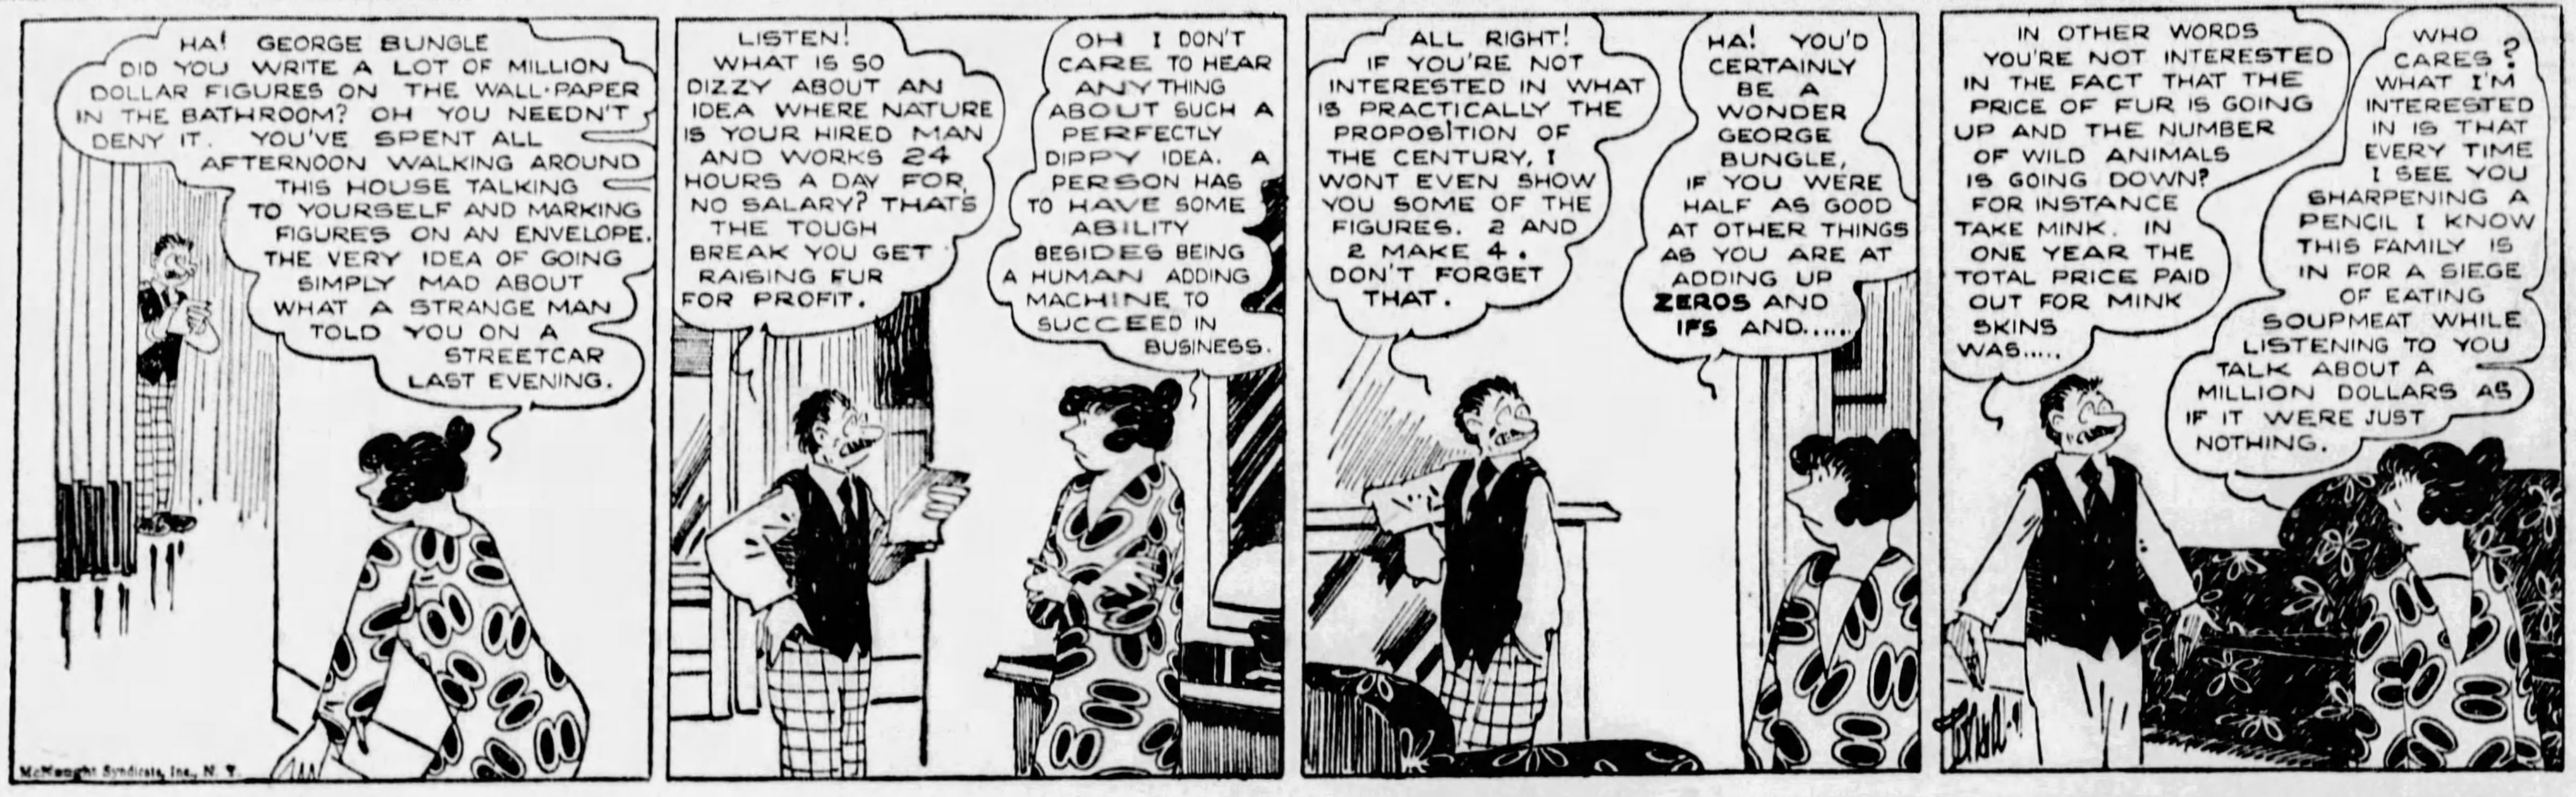
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

Fur for Profit



HA! GEORGE BUNGLE DID YOU WRITE A LOT OF MILLION DOLLAR FIGURES ON THE WALL-PAPER IN THE BATHROOM? OH YOU NEEDN'T DENY IT. YOU'VE SPENT ALL AFTERNOON WALKING AROUND THIS HOUSE TALKING TO YOURSELF AND MARKING FIGURES ON AN ENVELOPE. THE VERY IDEA OF GOING SIMPLY MAD ABOUT WHAT A STRANGE MAN TOLD YOU ON A STREETCAR LAST EVENING.
LISTEN! WHAT IS SO DIZZY ABOUT AN IDEA WHERE NATURE IS YOUR HIRED MAN AND WORKS 24 HOURS A DAY FOR NO SALARY? THAT'S THE TOUGH BREAK YOU GET RAISING FUR FOR PROFIT.
OH I DON'T CARE TO HEAR ANYTHING ABOUT SUCH A PERFECTLY DIPPY IDEA. A PERSON HAS TO HAVE SOME ABILITY BESIDES BEING A HUMAN ADDING MACHINE TO SUCCEED IN BUSINESS.
ALL RIGHT! IF YOU'RE NOT INTERESTED IN WHAT IS PRACTICALLY THE PROPOSITION OF THE CENTURY, I WONT EVEN SHOW YOU SOME OF THE FIGURES. 2 AND 2 MAKE 4. DON'T FORGET THAT.
HA! YOU'D CERTAINLY BE A WONDER GEORGE BUNGLE, IF YOU WERE HALF AS GOOD AT OTHER THINGS AS YOU ARE AT ADDING UP ZEROS AND IFS AND.....
IN OTHER WORDS YOU'RE NOT INTERESTED IN THE FACT THAT THE PRICE OF FUR IS GOING UP AND THE NUMBER OF WILD ANIMALS IS GOING DOWN? FOR INSTANCE TAKE MINK. IN ONE YEAR THE TOTAL PRICE PAID OUT FOR MINK SKINS WAS.....
WHO CARES? WHAT I'M INTERESTED IN IS THAT EVERY TIME I SEE YOU SHARPENING A PENCIL I KNOW THIS FAMILY IS IN FOR A SIEGE OF EATING SOUPMEAT WHILE LISTENING TO YOU TALK ABOUT A MILLION DOLLARS AS IF IT WERE JUST NOTHING.

AS AN EXAMPLE OF MY LUCK, I WAS ONCE PURSUED BY A BAND OF HUNGRY WOLVES IN NORTHERN RUSSIA, WHILE ON ONE OF MY TRADING TRIPS.....
STANDING IN THE BACK OF MY SLEIGH, MY HORSES RUNNING WILD, I PICKED THE WOLVES OFF ONE BY ONE WITH MY RIFLE — THEN I DROVE BACK AND SKINNED THEM.....
THEY WERE WHITE TIMBER WOLVES, NOW AN EXTINCT SPECIES, AND I TRADED THEIR PELTS TO THE HEAD MAN OF THE NEXT VILLAGE FOR A TIMBER CONCESSION, WHICH I LATER SOLD FOR HALF A MILLION DOLLARS —
And that's one way to get rich! More tomorrow!

WASHINGTON—Congressman Horace B. Frisby has accepted the challenge of the "Question Mark." He will attempt to prove his contention that a man can walk day and night without sitting down to eat. Arrangements have been made to re-fuel Mr. Frisby every 20 minutes.

"The Army is naturally interested in my effort," said Frisby, in a handbill which he dropped to the gutter. "It is all very well to experiment with airplanes. But there will always be infantry. If I can prove that the human being is capable of non-stop perambulation it will revolutionize modern warfare."

One-Man Filibuster of Edge Canal Resolution Example of Radicalism

For downright fatuousness the one-man filibuster of Senator Dill of the State of Washington against the Edge resolution to correct and complete the Nicaraguan Canal survey beats anything of the kind Congress or the country has seen in a long, long time.

Here is a simple, straightforward, fact-finding resolution which authorizes the sum of $150,000 to pay the expenses of a few American engineers to bring down to date the survey of that route which our government made 27 years ago.

Naturally, changed conditions and new methods of construction make this additional information necessary if the survey now on file in the War Department is to be of value in the future.

The committee on interoceanic canals, which considered this resolution, reported it favorably to the Senate. It has the support of an overwhelming majority of Senators on both sides of the aisle, and has been indorsed by the President, the President-elect, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy.

Not only is there no objection to it on the part of the government and people of Nicaragua, but the leaders of the conservative and liberal parties of that country joined in an earnest appeal to Mr. Hoover when he was there to support the completion of just such a survey as that for which this resolution provides, and the interest of Nicaragua in this regard is also shared by the people of the other Central American republics.

To no part of the United States are the facts which this resolution would turn over to the American people of more vital concern than to the people of the Pacific coast, including Senator Dill's fellow-citizens of the State of Washington.

A new Isthmian canal through Nicaragua would save 550 nautical miles between New Orleans and California over the Panama route. And between New York and California the Nicaraguan Canal would save 360 miles. In time, including canal transit, the Nicaraguan route would save two days between New Orleans and California, and one day between New York and California.

If anything the engineering problems would be less difficult in Nicaragua than they proved to be at Panama. Certainly there would be no Culebra Cut to reckon with. The Nicaraguan Canal could be passed in 24 hours and lake navigation would be at a greater speed than at Gatun.

Most important of all, the Nicaraguan route would offer no serious problem of sanitation, such as we encountered at Panama, because the country along the Nicaraguan route is unusually free from malaria and other diseases. This has been demonstrated by three years' of survey work already to the credit of American engineers.

Not one of these facts is disputed by Senator Dill, nor does he say why he is unwilling to have any additional information regarding a new Isthmian canal which would contribute so much to the prosperity of his state and his region and his country, as well as to the welfare of the world.

The only interest in his home state which Senator Dill's foolish filibuster against this timely and useful resolution of inquiry could possibly benefit is the Northern Pacific Railroad. And hitherto Senator Dill has not been known to be "a railroad Senator."

If Senator Dill is now serving as a fetch-and-carry for the transcontinental railroads his childish opposition to the Edge resolution must be set down as only another lamentable example of that "lunatic-fringe" of radicalism, which too frequently proves to be a more formidable foe of the people's cause than all the sinister forces that make up "the invisible government."

People's Fight Against Blue Law Is Under Way

The bill drafted here providing for the modification of the blue law of 1794 has been introduced in the House of Representatives in Harrisburg and has been referred to the committee on law and order. It is sponsored by Representative James Wettach, having been drafted by the Pittsburgh organization promoting modification of the repressive old law, a representative of which, Wilmer M. Jacoby, is visiting Philadelphia in behalf of the Wettach bill.

So this week may mark the beginning of the end for eighteenth century Puritanical rule in Pennsylvania, a modern state in every respect save in its ostrich-like attitude toward an outdated and unenforceable law that adds nothing to the moral fiber of the people and restricts them only in places where persecution can make its unfair power felt.

In many parts of the state, officers of the law, recognizing that the act of 1794 is not enforced against railroads, street railways, power plants, bus operation, hotel and club activities, milk delivery, and a thousand and one other things against which it could not and should not be enforced, refuse to discriminate. They know the people of their community want the law to be a dead letter, even as its supporters do in the matters that concern them, so they permit, or at least do not interfere with, Sunday recreation. In some places they have Sunday baseball and other games. In some places those who wish to attend Sunday movies are not annoyed and persecuted, the authorities properly holding they are no more law breakers than the person who rides a train on Sunday.

The tragic thing about the partial enforcement of the blue law is the inconsistency of its supporters. They insist there be no sports or amusements. Apparently they do not see that many of the necessary activities of Sunday also are law violations. They hold up their hands in horror at a straw man they call the "Continental Sunday," which is the same as bread eaters criticizing macaroni eaters, denouncing macaroni as something we should shun, forgetting the advice is unnecessary since the bread eater's appetite is for bread and not macaroni.

The "Continental Sunday" is just a scarecrow. The people do not want it. It is as foreign to us as caviar. All right in its place, perhaps, and, in its place, not to be criticized by those to whom it is foreign, but we do not want it. We want an American Sunday. A Sunday of religion and of individual choice as to conduct that makes harmless recreation a matter of conscience for all.

Tales That Are Told

A Head for Business

LITTLE Walter was the proud owner of a black mongrel, which was a perfect nuisance to the rest of the household. But Walter was so devoted to the dog that he could not be persuaded to have him killed or sent to another home. At last, when the dog's antics became quite unbearable, Walter's father made him an offer.

"My boy," he said, "I'll give you a dollar if you'll get rid of that dog."

The following morning, to his surprise and joy, Walter came to him and told him that the mongrel had gone.

"That's excellent news," said his father. "Here's the dollar. How did you get rid of him?"

"I swopped him with Riggie Jones for two black pups," he said.

Preferred to Pay

THE two revelers were returning home. Being a little ashamed of their hectic evening together, they decided to reform and to obey their wives in the future. It was agreed that the first to break this vow should stand dinner for the two.

The first reveller reached his home and crept inside. While groping for the electric light switch he knocked a vase off the mantel-piece.

"That's right," shouted the wife's voice from upstairs, "break everything we've got!"

The first reveller did as he was bid.

The second reveller thought for a moment. Then he shook his head.

"I'll pay for two dinners," he decided.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

SOME people don't get your meaning unless they want to. Now there was a gardener that was working for a rich couple, and he knew his stuff pretty well, so he didn't like to be bossed about it. He knew his plants and such stuff, and he knew the employers were just trying to show their authority when they objected to the way he run things, so he hardly ever paid any attention to them.

One day the lady came out to him and says, "Say, Mr. Johnson, I'm bound to tell you that my husband complained bitterly this morning over the way you trimmed them rose bushes."

"Yes'm, I know he did," said the gardener. "I heard him grumbling and carrying on, but I thought maybe you could handle him, and I hate to interfere until I have to."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

EVERY now and then I get stuck on myself.

Not that I ever exactly hate myself, but there are periods when I am particularly gummed up with Elsie.

Now, there are people who can get a lot of kick out of being stuck on themselves. They think what great guys they are and what wonderful things they have done, and they go around broadcasting their findings. They may be pests to everyone else, but they certainly enjoy themselves.

If you can get stuck-on-yourself like that you're playing in luck, but such is not my fortunate habit.

When I get stuck on myself it's on the reverse.

I spend all my time thinking about myself, to be sure, but instead of thinking what a humdinger I am I think what a flop I've turned out to be, and how God and the whole human race are picking on me.

Instead of being glad about myself I spend hours and hours being sorry for myself.

And it doesn't need any great personal tragedy to start me going.

When I decide to throw a lil' spell of melancholia any old gloom will do. The darndest trifles.

I get sorry because I ought to go to the dentist and haven't, just as if I had the only tooth on earth!

I get sorry because my bureau drawers aren't tidy, as if the Devil invented bureau drawers just for me!

I bust out into big, wet tears because someone did me dirt when I was going on eight.

And when I can't cry any more over that I get to thinking how lonely and miserable I'm going to be when I'm 80 and all my false friends have deserted me.

In short I get sore at everything under the blue heaven and with each second I sink deeper into the mire.

"But I thought you were talking about being stuck on yourself," you say. "That's self pity—that isn't being stuck on yourself—"

Yes, it is, dearie!

Self pity is the most cussed and complete form of being stuck-on-yourself.

It doesn't matter whether you're making whoopee over yourself—

Or weeping over yourself—

In either case you're concentrating on your SELF and letting the rest of the world go hang.

And perhaps if that fact were more generally understood a lot of these self-pity artists would be eliminated.

MARVELS OF MOTION

By Garrett P. Serviss

"I can readily understand that the earth rotates; but if so, then why do the 'heavier-than-air' flying machines when in mid-air, rotate with it? Surely the friction of the atmosphere, which travels with the earth, is not so great as to overcome the force of inertia and thus keep the machine traveling at the same rate as the earth—1,500 feet per second. I am sure an explanation would be appreciated by your amateur-science readers.—Wm. L. Dejon, Chicago."

THERE is in this question a very common error. Many people will persist in thinking that a flying machine must cast off all connection with the earth when it mounts up into the air. The fact is that the machine remains effectively a part of the earth when it is in the air just as much as when it is on the ground. The atmosphere rotates together with the solid globe on which it rests, and whatever is in the air rotates along with the air. It is not the air that pushes the flying machine onward in the direction of the earth's rotation, but it is the very thing you speak of, the inertia of the machine itself.

Before the machine rises from the ground it is traveling round with the surface of the earth, just as is the air above it. When it goes up into the air it retains the inertia of the motion which it partook with the earth when it was on the ground. The air having the same motion of rotation, does not oppose the inertial motion of the machine, which rests in it like a cork in a current of water. Both atmosphere and machine possessing the same rotational motion as that of the earth, there is no disturbance of that relation when the machine quits the earth and goes up into the atmosphere.

If the machine could rise high enough for the difference between the linear speed of the rotating atmosphere at a great height, and its speed at the earth, surface to become apparent, then, only, the atmosphere would tend to hasten the machine onward in the direction of the earth's rotation. But there are so many internal motions in the atmosphere—winds and currents—that these principles are not everywhere and always directly applicable. If the machine could shoot up through the atmosphere, it would still retain the inertia derived from its original rotation with the earth.

If it started from the equator and went immediately as far away as the moon without any loss of inertia, it would tend to revolve as a satellite around the earth. But its velocity would be considerably less than half the velocity of the moon in her orbit (1,500 against 3,550 feet per second), and this would be insufficient to enable it to keep going around the earth orbitally. Gravity would bring it back to ground in a spiral track with the same west-to-east motion that it had in common with the earth's surface before it started on its record-breaking flight.

We must not forget, however, that no flying machine could get above the atmosphere, unless it was impelled on the principle of the rocket, which, contrary to a common notion, doesn't need air to push against.

Bible Passages

A Psalm of David

(Psalm 25)

UNTO thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul.

O my God, I trust in thee: let me not be ashamed, let not mine enemies triumph over me.

Yea, let none that wait on thee be ashamed: let them be ashamed which transgress without cause.

Shew me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths.

Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day.

Remember, O Lord, thy tender mercies and thy lovingkindness; for they have been ever of old.

Remember not the sins of my youth, nor my transgressions: according to thy mercy remember thou me for thy goodness' sake, O Lord.

Good and upright is the Lord: therefore will he teach sinners in the way.

The meek will he guide in judgment: and the meek will he teach his way.

What man is he that feareth the Lord? him shall he teach in the way that he shall choose.

The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him; and he will shew them his covenant.

Mine eyes are ever toward the Lord; for he shall pluck my feet out of the net.

Turn thee unto me, and have mercy upon me; for I am desolate and afflicted.

The troubles of my heart are enlarged: O bring thou me out of my distresses.

Look upon mine affliction and my pain; and forgive all my sins.

Consider mine enemies; for they are many; and they hate me with cruel hatred.

O keep my soul, and deliver me: let me not be ashamed; for I put my trust in thee.

Let integrity and uprightness preserve me; for I wait on thee.

Redeem Israel, O God, out of all his troubles.

Loss or Gain

IT is not always gain to win,
Not always loss to fail,
For who can see
What is to be
Or pierce the future's veil?

And who can fill the puzzle out
From any clues he holds?
Through time alone
Life's plan is known,
The full design unfolds.

When it is hard to understand
The use of pain or care,
We can but trust
A power all just,
A purpose hidden there.

No man can measure loss or gain
By what the world may see;
What some count loss
May be not dross,
But matchless victory!

A Different Crook Story

By Herbert Kaufman

SHE was a thief in her earliest 'teens—a pickpocket, a shoplifter, and, when occasion offered, a dabbler in easy marks—a crook by inclination and deliberate choice. She loved the game—its thrills, its risks, the clash of wits and the gambling odds.

She was an artist with the technique which stamps all eminent virtuosity.

The toils of the law were forever twisting about her—and mostly in vain. Her fine touch was evident in a hundred brilliant coups. But it was a superdick who managed to pin the goods on Sophie Lyons.

Her mob was the swellest outfit in the underworld—its aristocracy the great forgers, con men and safe-blowers of the nineties.

Generally, though, she played solitaire. The lone wolf doesn't have to share the kill. Besides, if there's a pack, there's usually a yelper.

Old-timers say she looked like a lady, dressed the role, intoned a perfect English. Where she got her gift of gab and mimicry Heaven alone remembers.

The whole Continent was her hunting ground. She forayed like a hawk, striking without a false stroke or misjudgment.

Her alibis and getaways were masterpieces and unfumblingly executed. She gained enormous sums—just how much no one will ever learn.

Then, in the prime of life, and at the height of her glory, she quit.

Not through fear of consequences, not in a spirit of repentance—but because she recognized the stupidity of dissipating such intelligence and capacity on objectives inferior to her talents.

She grew convinced that its was easier to swim with the tide than against it—became a business woman, a realty operator, an investor—promptly accumulated a fortune, and turned the bulk of it into a helping hand for wayward girls and a grubstaking fund for released convicts hoping to go straight.

For 25 years she rendered important, constructive service to the society she had once exploited.

Detroit, her home town, knew her for what she had been, and honored her for what she became.

Sophie was too proud and brave to sail under false colors—a hypocrite, a sneak at heart couldn't have gotten by.

She died last week, leaving her heirs in comfort and bequeathing the rest of a considerable estate to provide delicacies and aid for the ill and destitute in prisons and penitentiaries.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The Strand is, like Broadway, one of the crossroads of the world. Standing in the horseshoe court entrance to the Savoy this morning I exchanged greetings with a half dozen from over yonder and saw at least a dozen I knew by sight.

The Strand was once a narrow, winding and miry track straggling through the lush fields. (Just an antiquarian who likes to recall: "When I was a boy this street was a brook.") Today London's Main Stem ripples with contrasts. Curbs are lined with hawkers peddling everything from matches to motor robes, from spiced cakes to buggy whips.

Picturesque news venders, encased turtle like in billboards, herald the latest bulletins. Lumbering green buses gaudy with advertising placards. Bobbies with comic chin straps. Fortune tellers. Clerks in spats. Blowzy creatures lurching from pubs. The very rich—the very poor. London Town as it always is!

On the way to Trafalgar square to watch the pigeons around the Nelson monument, a man, staggering under his load, was trundling a screaming and tipsy crone home on a wheelbarrow. "She's been 'arf seas over for a fortnight," he explained to the corner bobby, who waved him hurriedly on.

One of the sorry spectacles of London is the heavy drinking among its old and poverty stricken women. They are always lined up like hooded vultures for the pubs to open. It is their way of snatching forgetfulness from the tedium of despair. Along the embankment benches many are stretched out in oblivion as early as 10 a. m.

The long ago is ever present in London. In Haymarket I turned beside a saddler's shop into one of the myriad courtyards, and there in the center was a sundial bearing a name too faint to decipher, but the date, 1745, was legible. A perky American flapper smoking a cigaret was photographing it.

What one misses most in London is color. Everywhere the sullen, sober grey of twilight. The great scene painter is smoke—all buildings merge from a pearl pale into a charred black. You begin to long for the brilliant and audacious reds of an American five and ten.

In the lounge of the hotel today a slightly disheveled young man arrived, obviously late, for his appointment with a fair maid. "I've been on a terrific binge," he explained. There's a word—binge!

The shrill chaffer of London's street cries is at least a novelty for the newcomer—the first time visitor remembers them as he does the cacophony of auto honks in Paris. "Sweet Lavender!", "Chairs to Mend!", "Rosemary, sage and thyme!", "Hats Refurbished," and a thousand others are somehow pleasant to alien ears.

And the horn of the night watchman of Dickens' day, telling the hour and tokens of the weather and bidding remembrance to the dead, has been supplanted by the wireless—the radio is the wireless here—announcer who signed off last night with: "11:22 precisely and a starlit night in London. Good sleep all." I did a fireman's bound from the bed, but missed the stars. When I reached the window a fog was there as usual.

At a coffee stall near Cockspur street the server was an American with a rich Cockney accent. He came over here with a rodeo show 14 years ago and when the company stranded remained. As he volunteered information he was an American, I quite naturally inquired: "How did you pick up your accent?"

"And 'ow did yer pick up yer nibbiness?" he replied. Lots of people have wondered about that and some day I suppose I'll learn to keep my big mouth shut.

If there is anything with a worse taste than an "American soda" in London I don't care to know about it. One wonders what they put into it aside from shredded rubber heel, hair oil and a dab of axle grease. I know what I suspect. This afternoon I ordered a chocolate soda. The clerk disappeared through some sort of a trap door and showed up in 10 minutes with a sickly green concoction without a single effervescent bubble. With it he served a tiny saucer of mints. And they were welcome, to remove the taste.

Isn't It So?

A man's will goes into effect after death, but a woman's will is in effect during life.

If two souls have but a single thought it is useless to waste any time contemplating matrimony.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

DO YOU keep the secrets your friends tell you?

Or do you tell just one person?

Of course, you extract a promise not to tell, but you must tell someone.

And if you cannot resist confiding what is supposed to be a secret how do you expect others to keep what you cannot keep?

It may be difficult for you to keep your own private affairs.

You want to talk them over with someone.

But before you do, you would better consider whether you are violating a trust or not, if another is concerned.

If you want to keep stories from circulating you must not start them.

The friend of today may be your enemy tomorrow.

Damaging information trusted to a friend may turn out to be most embarrassing at a least expected moment.

The one who knows the most about you can cause you the most trouble.

It may not be with intent, but a loose tongue is dangerous.

Perhaps there are things in your life that even a close friend has no right to expect you to tell him.

Keep private matters to yourself.
